DAMAGE PUT AT $500,000

RAIL TRAVELERS RELIEVED

Only Three Persons So Far Reported as Injured—Many Buildings Wrecked.

HELENA, Mont., June 28 (AP).—Mother earth became nervous again late today in Central Montana and there were renewed tremors. Temblors occurred at Three Forks, White Sulphur Springs, Anaconda, Bozeman and Wilsall. All of them were slight. After spending a night fraught with fear the population in several small towns were preparing to vacate their homes in case a new disturbance occurred.

Today's temblors at White Sulphur Springs was felt at 3:45 P. M. A previous shock had been felt at 4 A. M.

The tremors today were confined to the south central region of Montana, whereas last night's shocks covered sections of four States in the northern half of the Rocky Mountain range.

Two isolated towns are reported to be seriously damaged by temblors, incomplete reports stated. At White Sulphur Springs virtually all of the county buildings of Meagher County and many of the business structures have been demolished, with an estimated loss of $100,000. A property damage of $100,000 was also reported from Three Forks.

The centre of the disturbance, information here indicated, was in the lower Gallatin Valley, where smaller towns bore the brunt of the earthquake's damaging effect.

Jail Prisoners in Panic.

Railroad officials in the south-central section of the State today were organizing their forces to repair the damage wrought by landslides and boulders tossed down from mountains on their tracks.

Prisoners in the county jail at Billings were panic-stricken when the second tremor last night split the floor of the courtroom, located in another building near the jail.

Indications that there had been marked underground disturbances were evident near Three Forks, where huge fissures, several feet deep, appeared in the earth's surface. The water level of the Jefferson River a mile above where it joins with the Gallatin and Madison Rivers, was reported to have dropped two feet.

The little town of Willow Creek, a community of 300 inhabitants, today surveyed the wake of destruction left by the earthquake. The two largest buildings in the town, the school and the principal business structure, were badly damaged.

Special to The New York Times.

BUTTE, Mont., June 28.—Early this evening a report from Three Forks stated that temblors were again occurring there and residents had been warned to stay away from buildings.

Panic over yesterday's earthquake had subsided here today. Thousands of miners laboring in the 1,200 miles of underground workings of the Butte mines dropped their tools when the sides of the slopes and drifts trembled. Not one landslide occurred, but had the quake in any way disturbed the 100 shafts that pierce Butte Hill an army of men would probably have lost their lives.

Passengers in two sections of the Olympian, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul transcontinental flyer, spent several of the tensest hours of their lives when the sections were hemmed in by landslides near Three Forks. A slide ahead and one behind forbade all movement and the passengers waited through the darkness, momentarily expecting another slide, until help came at dawn. The spot where the slides occurred is one of the wildest in Montana.

Earth Shocks Oscillatory.

The earth movements were of an oscillatory character, a back and forward wavelike swaying as distinct from the crunching movements of some temblors. The lines of movement, generally, were easterly and westerly and somewhat at right angles with the main range of the Rocky Mountains and apparently were due to gigantic faulting action, presumably extending in both directions from the mountainous uplift but seemingly displaying the greater intensity eastward from the mountains and toward the plains country.

A great readjustment of the earth's crust undoubtedly was under way in the Rocky Mountain region. The zone of movement was rather fanlike in contour.

Citizens Camp in Streets.

LIVINGSTON, Mont., June 28 (AP).—A recurrence of earth tremors was reported at Three Forks, near here, at 10:45 o'clock today by Manager Clark of the Trident Cement Company. Mr. Clark declared he had counted forty-one distinct earth tremors at Three Forks since last night.

The new tremor at Three Forks caused new apprehension to the population of this section of southern Montana.

Idaho, Montana, Washington and Wyoming felt the oscillations of the earth last night, but Central Montana received the heaviest buffets. There scores of cities and towns suffered severe tremors, while their residents,

TO DEFEND SCOPES IN SCIENCE'S NAME

STATE CONTROL AN ISSUE

Not Settled by Oregon Decision, He Says—Talk of Fosdick as a Witness.

CHICAGO, June 28 (AP).—The Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick and the Rev. Percy Stickney Grant were discussed today as possible witnesses in the Scopes trial.

While announcement that the two New York churchmen, both noted for their liberal interpretation of the Scriptures, will testify was withheld by Clarence Darrow and Dudley Field Malone, associate counsel for the Tennessee school teacher, after their conference today, it was revealed that the final decision in the matter of their appearance at Dayton next month rested with them rather than with the defense attorneys.

Mr. Malone will leave for New York tomorrow evening to submit the matter to the clergymen.

Several other persons prominent in the realms of theology and science were considered at today's conference and a tentative program of defense was outlined. At a conference tomorrow Darrow and Malone will be joined by Dr. John R. Neal, senior counsel for the defense.

"We are planning tentatively to add to our list of witnesses perhaps as many names as have already been published," Mr. Darrow aid after today's conversation with Mr. Malone, "But we are not yet in a position to say who may be called. We try always to first get in touch with the man we are considering."

The defense attorneys are proceeding on the assumption that their case will be directed to bring about a judicial consideration of two questions which they hold to be at issue in the case of Mr. Scopes: First, whether the State has the constitutional power to decide what shall or shall not be taught in the public institutions of learning, and, second, whether, if the State is held to have such regulatory power, it may decree instruction, imparting knowledge or conclusions which may be adjudged by qualified scholars to be not in harmony with contemporary thought.

Neither question is regarded by the attorneys as having been decided in the recent Supreme Court decision in the Oregon school case.

Mr. Malone emphasized that the defense testimony would not be an attack on the principle of religious instruction in schools, nor an attempt to place it in a curricular position which might be regarded as making religion inferior or subordinate to scientific training. It was hoped rather "to preserve the principle of freedom of thought so that the way to freedom through truth shall not be blocked by legislative enactment."

This view precludes the assumption that the Oregon and Tennessee cases are parallel in point of constitutional principle. The defense attorneys stress the fact that Oregon did not attemp to prescribe the subject matter of educational institutions but merely to decree the type of institution which should be authorized and sanctioned by the State.

Kentucky Professor As Adviser.

Special to The New York Times.

LEXINGTON, Ky., June 28.—Professor A. M. Miller, head of the Department of Zoology at the University of Kentucky, has been notified that he will be called upon to testify in defense of John T. Scopes in his trial at Dayton. Scopes is a graduate of the University of Kentucky.

Dr. Miller has been requested to serve as an adviser to the defense, and will go to Dayton in a few days. He said today: "While I have not been notified as to the line of defense the attorneys for Scopes will pursue, it is my speculation

HIS ENTIRE TICKET WINS

POLICE GUARD NEAR POLLS

Protection Furnished Because of Threats of a Guerrilla Raid—Johnson Vote 1,118 to 226.

Overwhelming defeat of the Brindell faction in Local 1,456 of the Dock Builders' Union was shown by the complete tabulation yesterday of the vote for officers of the local cast in an election on Saturday night. In no instance did the friends of the former "building czar," who recently was paroled from Sing Sing, win a place in the administration of the local. The victory of Charles Johnson Jr. and his entire ticket was decisive.

Johnson was elected President of the local by a vote of 1,118, against 226 for Kleng Nelson, running on what members of the union described as the "Social Club ticket." Thomas F. Walsh, President of the Social Club, organized by Brindell recently, was scheduled originally to run against Johnson, according to members of the union, but he declined at the last moment to be a candidate.

Edward Olsen, running for financial secretary, beat the Brindell candidate, Albert J. Olsen, former financial secretary, by a vote of 1,087 to 236.

Charles Johnson Sr., father of the President of the union, defeated two Brindell candidates for treasurer. Johnson received 907 votes and the highest Brindell candidate, John B. McLoughlin, received only 288.

Elect Even Business Agents.

The most important office in the union, next to that of President, is business agent, and the administration forces had anticipated they might lose one of the two business agents' places. But so complete was the rout of the Brindell faction that both administration candidates, Ray Clarke, with a vote of 821, and Louis Benson, with 873 votes, defeated respectively John J. McLoughlin, a Brindell spokesman, with 275 votes, and Thomas Furdy, with 218.

Jake Larsen was elected Sergeant-at-Arms over Patrick Flaherty by 924 to 203, and Peter Peterson, with 734 ballots, defeated James Boyd, with 359, for the place of delegate to the Central Trades and Labor Council.

The election was held after the Brindell faction had accused the administration of mismanagement of funds of the local. As a result of the accusations a committee, of which former Assemblyman John J. McLoughlin, a Brindell man, was Chairman, made an investigation and found, according to members of the union, that the administration had husbanded the resources of the organization and that its finances were in sound condition. There was nothing left for the Brindell men to do but to sign the report.

Johnson, who is continued at the head of the local, became President after Brindell went to prison following his conviction of extortion. It was Johnson who, at a recent hearing on Brindell's application for a parole before the Board of Parole, accused Brindell of interference in union affairs.

The names of the opposition candidates in the election of the Dockbuilders' Union were the same in every case as the Social Club candidates given in testimony before the Parole Board and cited by Samuel Untermyer before he obtained an order requiring the exile of Brindell from New York City pending the outcome in the Fall of the parole forfeiture proceedings.

Policemen and detectives kept a close watch on the headquarters of the union, 67 Lexington Avenue and at another polling place 124 East Twenty-fifth Street, while the balloting was in progress. Police protection was furnished because there were threats of a guerrilla raid like the one organized four years ago and threatened at two succeeding elections. But there was no trouble. The count of the ballots was begun early yesterday morning.

Told of Seeing Brindell.

The alleged machinations of Brindell to inject himself again into the building trades situation in New York City, where he formerly was the dominant power, were described in an affidavit

Son Is Born to Mrs. Charlie Chaplin, Youthful Wife of the Screen Comedian

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 28.—A six and three-quarter-pound boy was born to Mrs. Charlie Chaplin at 6:10 this morning at the Chaplins' Beverley Hills home, it was announced today.

Dr. James F. Holleran, who brought Lita Grey Chaplin herself into the world seventeen years ago, was the attending physician. He said the baby was a fine physical specimen, although artificial respiration had to be used for a brief time. He added that Mrs. Chaplin was "doing well."

A request for an interview brought the reply from his press representative, Edward Manson, that "Mr. Chaplin is too excited to see anybody or say anything."

"All these stories about differences between Mr. Chaplin and his wife and about money settlements are untrue," he said. "Charlie is overjoyed. He may revise his plans now and take Mrs. Chaplin with him to New York for the opening of his new picture there."

The couple were married Nov. 25, 1924 in Empalme, a suburb of Guaymas, Mexico, by a Mexican Justice of the Peace. At the time Lita was 16 years old and occupied the position of Charlie's motion picture leading lady, although the role was withdrawn from her immediately after the ceremony.

Since the marriage Charlie has refused at any time to see reporters, although his wife gave several interviews. One of these forecast the advent of the stork in May. At another time, attorneys for Mrs. Chaplin in a joint statement with her kindred, announced that conversations were going on with Chaplin's legal advisers, concerning a property settlement upon her. Chaplin's Los Angeles lawyer denied this.

Tuscania Hits Schooner on Quero Bank; 15 Fishermen Are Lost, 9 Are Rescued

GLOUCESTER, Mass., June 28 (AP).—The Cunard Anchor Line steamer Tuscania rammed and sank the fishing schooner Rex of this port with the loss of fifteen lives today, according to a message received by the schooner's owners here from the Anchor Line offices in New York. The collision occurred off Quero Bank, in longitude 44.24 north, latitude 57.15 west, or about 200 miles east of Halifax. Nine men were rescued.

The dead included Captain Thomas O. Downey of Lowell, thirteen members of the crew and a 10-year-old boy. The message from New York, thought to be based on a wireless dispatch from the Tuscania, read in part:

"In collision during fog with schooner Rex Sunday. Sunk. Survivors picked up and now on board Tuscania. Thomas Downey picked up dead. Tuscania undamaged and cruising on spot."

The Rex sailed from this port on June 17 and when struck was loaded with halibut. The Tuscania left Liverpool for New York June 22 and cleared from Moville, Ireland, June 23. The fisherman registered 75 tons net and was 102.6 feet in length. She was built in Essex in 1908 and was valued at $25,000. The Tuscania is registered at 17,250 tons.

The names of the dead were reported as follows:

Captain Thomas O. Downey, Lowell; Samuel Tibbetts, Angus MacDonald, Charles Goodick, W. M. Roach, Archibald Pill, Clyde Larkin, Angus Smith, George Johnson, Cook Austin Firth and Charles Austin Firth, his 10-year-old son, all of Gloucester; M. W. Turner, Shelburne, N. S.; Charles Wieball and Joseph Talton, address not obtained, and an unidentified sailor.

BIG SWINDLES BARED IN ALIEN SMUGGLING

OFFICIAL SAYS EVIL GROWS

Assistant Secretary of Labor Cites Hardships and Loss to Aid Society Here.

Assistant Secretary of Labor W. W. Husband said before the annual meeting of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society of America yesterday afternoon in the Metropolitan Annex, at Madison Avenue and Twenty-fourth Street, that exploitation by professional smugglers of immigrants was akin to "piracy on the seas and highway robbery on land." He cited cases of thousands of dollars put into the pockets of the swindlers by unfortunates who did not get even a glimpse of America for their money.

"It is inevitable, of course, that efforts to violate the immigration law through smuggling should become more intense as the law becomes more severe," said Mr. Husband. "There is a very intense movement all around the land borders, and through the seaports and water routes, to violate the law.

"In it is some of the worst exploitation of today. We might speak of it as highway robbery, as far as land is concerned, but it amounts to piracy, almost, so far as the sea is concerned. The stories of the hardships that are undergone by people who try to enter this country by the back door' are sometimes hard to believe.

"I might cite dozens of examples of those who tried to come from Cuba to Florida. Some have succeeded, but the hardships that others have undergone have been intense. The same is true of the land borders.

"We are increasing our effort to prevent that sort of thing, and we feel that we are having some success. But in the meantime a very large sum of money is being expended by ignorant people and put into the pockets of professional smugglers, without at all gaining access to the country.

$18,000 in One Swindle.

"I know of one case of the movement of a considerable body—I think there were about 120 persons involved in it. After much effort they were permitted, not to come to the United States, but to go to another country. And I was informed by an officer of the receiving Government that the promoters of that movement had made $18,000 from those 120 immigrants.

Mr. Husband asserted that Ellis Island was unsuited to handling immigration under the restrictive law, because it was built to handle a maximum of 7,000 immigrants a day. Today the average is about 300.

"We have an enormous and expensive plant to maintain," he said. "If we could apply a very small fraction of the money invested in Ellis Island, and expended in its upkeep, to a modern institution, suited to present needs, we could provide much better facilities and accommodations for immigrants."

Society Will Sell Property.

It was announced at the meeting that the property owned and occupied as a headquarters by the society on Lafayette Street, near Astor Place, which formerly was the Astor Library, will be sold and smaller quarters obtained. This change will not be made immediately, but is a tentative program to reduce cost of operation corresponding to the reduction in immigration.

President John L. Bernstein of the society, who presided, said the administrative work had increased while the volume of immigration had decreased, principally by work in behalf of the immigrants here and in Europe. In addition to giving food and shelter here and elsewhere, the society found employment for 1,973 persons. The income of the society in 1924 was $525,710. Expenditures were $509,337, including $245,248 appropriated for branches and affiliated organizations.

Immigration officials said yesterday that there would be no difference in the numbers of aliens arriving at Ellis Island next Wednesday, which starts the quota year, than on any other day. They expect 800, who will arrive in the steerage quarters of Atlantic liners from various parts of Europe and also from the West Indies and Central and South America. There will also be from 300 to 500 aliens arriving in the cabin and second-class quarters on the liners. They are examined on board and do not have to pass through Ellis Island, but are all classed as immigrants under the

COMMUNISTS THREATEN

SCRANTON, Pa., June 28.—The Tri-District Convention, representing 155,000 anthracite miners, at which terms for a new agreement to be proposed to the coal operators will be framed, opens tomorrow. The present agreement expires on Aug. 31.

With the gathering of delegates today, and preliminary unofficial discussions, indications were shown that the miners demands will centre around wages, the check-off and the duration of the new agreement. Unofficial forecasts are that the miners will ask for a 10 or 15 per cent. wage increase, a long-term agreement, probably for two years, and for the check-off under which union dues are deducted from the miners' pay envelopes by the employer. This custom obtains in the unionized bituminous districts, but the hard coal operators have refused to adopt it. Other requests may include payment of contract miners on a gross ton basis instead of by mine car, uniform rates between colleries and payment for certain dead work.

President Lewis of the International Mine Workers will preside at the convention. Following the framing of the demands, joint negotiations will begin with the operators, probably in Atlantic City the latter part of next week. Those who will play an active part in the miners' convention include Philip J. Murray, International Vice President; Thomas Kennedy, Secretary-Treasurer, who was formerly President of District 2; Rinaldo Capellini, President of District 1; C. J. Golden, President of District 3, and Andrew Mattri, President of District 2.

What the Miners Will Ask.

The report is heard that the anthracite operators may ask for a wage reduction of 20 per cent. and a short-term contract. This would tend to balance the miners' terms on wages and term of contract, leaving the check-off as the stumbling block.

Both miners and operators are apparently preparing for emergencies, the workers by hoarding their savings and the employers by piling up huge reserve stocks. Business men here have been complaining for some time that the miners have not been purchasing goods on their usual generous plan and the operators are reported to have piled up approximately 12,000,000 tons of coal in storage. This equals the maximum production of two months or more and if a suspension occurs on Sept. 1 the operators would have the large reserve stocks to fall back on to fill orders.

The joint negotiations will be carefully followed by Secretary Hoover and Secretary Davis who will, the understanding is, offer their services if a deadlock is reached. Two years ago Governor Pinchot summoned the conferees to Harrisburg when they reached an impasse but it is reported that the operators this year are determined not to accept a similar invitation. This attitude is the result of the fact that they were practically compelled to grant a 10 per cent. wage increase two years ago against their will.

Secretary-Treasurer Kennedy said today that it was impossible to predict what the demands of the miners would be, but he stated that the sentiment of the miners was "irrevocably opposed to any backward step" and that the men were "in favor of progress whenever and wherever possible."

The convention will be attended by 700 delegates from the local unions. Tomorrow will be spent largely in examining credentials. The keynote speech will be made on Tuesday by President Lewis.

Communists Make Demands.

The Communist program was brought here tonight in leaflets which have flooded the southern section of the hard coal fields for the last week.

The demands are set forth as those of the Progressive Miners Committee and are printed by the Daily Worker Publishing Company, 1,113 West Washington Boulevard, Chicago, which publishes the Communist newspaper The Daily Worker.

Beginning with an attack on the officers of the United Mine Workers of America who "have refused to lead the miners in a militant struggle against the

TWO OF THE VICTIMS DYING

2 HOSPITALS SEND AID

Thirteen young women, all from New York, were injured, two of them fatally, near Nyack yesterday afternoon when a Department of Plant and Structures bus carrying eighteen young women bound for a picnic crashed into a tree on Barmore's Hill. The bus was wrecked and its driver, who, the police said, was James White of 105 East 108th Street, was held for examination by Justice of the Peace George H. Link at Nyack today.

The bus was one of four Department of Plant and Structures machines carrying ninety-three young women, members of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church in East Eighty-seventh Street, Manhattan, to an outing at Congers, nine miles northwest of Nyack. The wrecked bus was last in line, when about three-fourths down the steep hill it crashed into a tree in front of the Palais Rockland, a dancing place. The driver said he veered to avoid striking an automobile bearing a New Jersey number, but Motorcycle Policeman Joseph Kunz of Clarkstown, who arrived within five minutes, said he could find no trace of the New Jersey car.

The dying are:

Both are at the Nyack Hospital, where it is said they are dying.

Eleven Treated and Sent Home.

The eleven other young women, who were taken to the Nyack Hospital, were sent home after treatment, although several were said to be in a serious condition. The hospital was crowded and they could not be kept there. They are:

MARTIN, MAY, 19, of 525 East Eighty-eighth Street; abrasions of forehead and both arms.

The crash of the bus and the screams of the women in front of the dance hall brought hundreds of persons to the spot, which is on a much traveled road. The occupants of the bus were caught in tangled masses of the machine's wreckage and some injured. Some one in the dance hall telephoned for an ambulance from the Nyack Hospital, and Patrolman Kunz commandeered several automobiles to take the most seriously injured there.

The driver of the wrecked bus said he was Harry O'Brien, but Patrolman Kunz, who got his driver's license, said the latter showed he was James White of 105 East 108th Street, and that his license number was 10,703.

Driver Held in Bail.

The driver was arrested and taken before Justice of the Peace George H. Link. The latter fixed a small bail for his appearance for examination. No charge was made against him.

Not one connected with the outing would discuss it either at the scene of the wreck or at Congers. Instead there were efforts to keep reports from reaching New York.

"Please don't print anything," begged

16 Governors Sail for Conference in Maine; Gov. Smith and Family Reach There by Motor

Governors of sixteen States sailed from New York on the specially chartered Eastern Steamship liner Calvin Austin for Portland, Me., at 10 o'clock yesterday morning to attend the seventeenth annual Governors' conference, which will begin tomorrow and end Wednesday afternoon. The Governors were accompanied by members of their families and 150 friends.

Governor Nellie T. Ross of Wyoming, although she had planned to sail, left for Boston by train on Saturday evening, and will arrive in Portland this morning.

Governor Ralph O. Brewster of Maine, who is Chairman of the Governors' conference, before departing yesterday said that in addition to the program which had already been published, discussions would be held on the relations of the State to the Federal Government, which are the questions of the right of the State, State park systems and the questions of prison labor.

The Governors gathered at the Hotel Pennsylvania at 8 A. M. and were taken in automobiles to the ship, which sailed from the foot of Murray Street. The conference will be held at Poland Spring, Me. The following is a list of the Governors who sailed yesterday:

POLAND SPRING, Me., June 28 (AP).—Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York arrived here by motor this afternoon to attend the conference of Governors. In his party were Mrs. Smith and their son, Arthur; Mr. and Mrs. Vincent B. Murphy of Albany, the Governor's Secretaries and his guard of New York State troopers.

Weather Experts Graduated At Army School to Aid Airmen

CAMP VAIL, N. J., June 28.—Diplomas to the graduating class of the United States Army School of Meteorology were presented today by Major General Charles McK. Saltzman, Chief Signal Officer of the Army. The school has been in operation for some months and the student body is made up of enlisted men specially selected for the course.

Highly trained weather forecasters, graduates of the school, are being used along the army airways from the Atlantic to the Pacific, where weather forecasts must be supplied to army aviators before they start on long flights.

A greater part of the study is devoted to the theory and practice of observing, computing and transmitting of forecasts, plotting currents and preparing charts. There are also thorough courses in mathematics. The army has vital need for efficient weather observers. Gas attacks easily may be turned into a boomerang by a skittish wind, and artillery firing, especially anti-aircraft, would be helpless without carefully computed tables of wind direction and speed at various altitudes.

BOY DIES OF BURNS AS HE SAVES MOTHER

FATHER AND SISTER HURT

Thomas J. Daly Jr., 5 years old, died yesterday in Union Hospital, the Bronx, of burns he sustained trying to extinguish the flames in his mother's dress, which had caught fire at the stove in the kitchen of their home at 2,392 Valentine Avenue, the Bronx. Mrs. Daly is in a serious condition at Fordham Hospital, and the father, a patrolman, and Reta, a daughter, 2½ years old, were treated for burns about the face and hands.

Thomas's father, a World War veteran and a member of the Special Service Squad on duty in Chinatown at night, was asleep shortly before 11 o'clock while his wife Julia, 27 years old, and the two children were in the kitchen preparing a picnic lunch. The family intended to go to Rockaway Beach in the afternoon.

Mrs. Daly had a chicken boiling on the gas stove over two burners. On a rack above the stove hung some clothing. Suddenly, as she stood over the pot, with her two children beside her, eager to see the progress of the picnic cooking, the pot boiled over, extinguishing the flame on one burner. The escaping gas ignited from the adjoining flame and flared, setting fire to the clothing on the rack and Mrs. Daly's cotton house dress and scorching the children.

Thomas and Beta ran, screaming, toward the door, but the boy turned and saw his mother enveloped in flames. He ran to her. Regardless of the sheet of flame about her body, he beat upon it with his hands frantically, crying for help.

His father, roused by the first cry of the children, ran into the kitchen from the bedroom across the hall. He pulled his wife and son into the corridor, and with his bare hands was beating upon the flames in his wife's dress when neighbors, who had also heard the children's screams, ran in to help. They extinguished the fire in Mrs. Daly's and Thomas's clothing and then Daly, seeing that his two children were burned, picked up one under each arm, ran down four flights of steps and two blocks to Union Hospital. He refused aid for himself, although he was painfully burned about the face and hands, but ran back to his wife.

Meanwhile the neighbors had turned in a fire alarm, applied first aid to Mrs. Daly and telephoned for an ambulance. She was swathed in cloths soaked in caron oil. The firemen had succeeded in confining the fire to the kitchen and dining room of the apartment when an ambulance from Union Hospital arrived just as Daly returned. Dr. Kline took her to the hospital immediately and the patrolman accompanied her. Her condition was said to be serious and she was removed to Fordham Hospital. Daly was treated for his burns and learned that his daughter had been only slightly burned about the arms. They were able to go home, but Thomas was burned so severely about the face, hands and body that he died early last night.

Patrolman Daly was a Flight Sergeant in the Aviation Service overseas and served there sixteen months, taking part in four major engagements. He became a member of the Police Department shortly after his discharge from the army.

COOLIDGE'S FATHER IS OPERATED UPON; PRESIDENT ARRIVES

JOKES WHILE UNDER KNIFE

SON RUSHES TO BEDSIDE

Special to The New York Times.

PLYMOUTH, Vt., June 28.—President Coolidge arrived at the bedside of his father, Colonel John Coolidge, at 6 o'clock this evening after rushing from his Summer home at Swampscott, Mass., by motor car and special train, only to find that his 80-year-old father had been operated on at 1:05 o'clock and was resting comfortably.

The operation, which was for an abscess of the prostate gland, was performed by Dr. Arthur L. Chute of Boston, assisted by Dr. J. F. Coupal, Dr. C. F. Ball, Dr. C. H. Swift and Dr. A. M. Cram. The operation was performed in the room where less than two years ago Colonel Coolidge in the light of a kerosene lamp administered the oath of office to his son soon after hearing of the death of President Harding.

While the operation was being performed President and Mrs. Coolidge were just leaving Boston on the special train. On their arrival at the Coolidge homestead the President and Mrs. Coolidge immediately went to the sick room, where they found Colonel Coolidge resting comfortably and conscious. After a brief greeting the President consulted with the physicians.

This bulletin was issued at 6:20 o'clock:

ARTHUR L. CHUTE,
J. F. COUPAL,
C. F. BALL,
C. H. SWIFT,
A. M. CRAM.

Colonel Coolidge at that hour, while suffering great pain from the operation, described by his physicians as preliminary to a major one, was cheerful and joked with the President.

May Be Better in a Few Days.

Dr. Chute announced at 11 o'clock that Colonel Coolidge's condition continued satisfactory and that no further bulletins would be issued. Recovery from the operation, which is preliminary to a more serious operation for the removal of the prostate gland, is expected in three or four days and in any event the acute period will be passed within forty-eight hours. It was said to be probable that another operation would be performed in from two to four weeks.

Despite the fact that the surgeons considered Colonel Coolidge in no immediate danger, Drs. Chute, Coupal and Ball remained at the Coolidge homestead all night to be on immediate call, and at least one of the surgeons remained at the bedside. It was explained that the operation was not uncommon in the case of men of more than 60 years of age, and Colonel Coolidge was said to have stood it remarkably well. At the same time, it was said that any illness might be considered serious in a man of his age and heart condition.

As an indication of the fortitude with which Colonel Coolidge bore the operation there was mentioned his first remark to the President, whom he asked: "Have you brought your valet with you so I may be shaved?"

Visit Their Son's Grave.

The nurses did not permit the President and Mrs. Coolidge to remain long in the sickroom, and about 6:30 o'clock when the sun was descending, and after the end of an all-day rainstorm, the President and Mrs. Coolidge left the house and drove to the graveyard on the hillside, a short distance below the homestead. There they laid a few flowers on the grave of Calvin Coolidge Jr., whose death occurred in Washington on July 7. They had planned to come here to visit Colonel Coolidge on this anniversary but the sudden relapse of the President's father brought them here on their sad mission after an all-night vigil on the telephone at White Court.

The President and Mrs. Coolidge remained at the cemetery only a few minutes, and upon returning to the house entered the sick-room again. They then had supper. They had not partaken of food since early morning.

Colonel Coolidge's relapse developed early Friday afternoon. He had been failing rapidly in the last few weeks and frequently was seized with fainting spells after slight exertions. He complained that he was not feeling very well before the lunch hour on Friday and lay on the couch in the living room for several hours. He is a very determined man and declined to permit his housekeeper to send for a physician. His grandson also implored him to seek medical attention without avail.

Later in the afternoon he recovered and John Coolidge, his grandson, left to spend the evening in Rutland. Upon his return he found his grandfather sitting in the living room suffering great pain and complaining that he was very cold, despite the fact that the room was hot. The grandson kept vigil and both sat in their chairs throughout the night.

Neighbors who called tried to persuade Colonel Coolidge to send for his family physician, Dr. A. M. Cram, on Saturday morning. He still refused to admit that he was not as well as usual. Attorney General Sargent called upon him after lunch and found his condition so serious that he promptly called the physician.

Dr. Cram found that Colonel Coolidge's kidneys were sluggish and the heart action slow. He said that an operation was necessary as soon as it could be performed by specialists, and Mr. Sargent and the doctor advised President Coolidge of the grave turn in his father's condition over the telephone.

After Dr. Coupal, the President's physician, had been told of all the symptoms he advised the President that an operation should be performed as quickly as specialists could be rushed to Plymouth. This decision was not made until late Saturday night. Dr. Chute, Professor of Genito-urinary Surgery at Tufts College, was hurried to Plymouth and the other physicians obtained.

Dr. Coupal received instructions from President Coolidge to go to Plymouth. He left Swampscott at 5 o'clock this morning, and shortly after his arrival here there was a consultation of physicians. They determined that the operation should be performed. President Coolidge agreed to it when informed over the telephone.

All arrangements had been made for the operation before the arrival of the physicians. Within a few minutes after they appeared at the homestead a dining room table was placed in the living room, near where Calvin Coolidge took the oath of office. A sheet was spread over this and the surgeons were ready to make the lancing.

Colonel Coolidge witnessed the preparations from his bedroom, and when the surgeons were ready he declined to be assisted by the two nurses who had been brought from Boston and Rutland.

Jokes During Operation.

This living room looks directly to the road, and many friends watched their old friend and neighbor go under the knife. His heart was too weak to stand ether, and a local anesthetic was applied. The operation took thirty-eight minutes. Colonel Coolidge was conscious throughout and joked with the surgeons.

The operation was most successful, the physicians declaring that the heart action was as strong after it as it had been before. As soon as the gland is properly drained and the condition of the patient permits he will undergo the major operation—the removal of the prostate gland.

The train ride to Ludlow, where the President and Mrs. Coolidge alighted for their twelve-mile ride to Plymouth, was sad. Several bulletins during the trip kept the President informed of the operation and his progress. The last half hour was through a heavy rain which had been falling in the foothills of the Green Mountains all day, the aftermath of a terrific thunder and lightning storm. The storm swept away several bridges on the road to Plymouth. Fortunately these had been repaired when the President's party came along. The lightning put the electric light plant out of commission at Ludlow and the telegraph operators and press correspondents were compelled to work with oil lamps and candles.

John Coolidge and Major Coupal, with Attorney General Sargent, met the train at the Ludlow station and drove with the President and Mrs. Coolidge to Plymouth. President Coolidge was told of the details of the operation and that there was no necessity for him to make a fast trip over the wet, slippery roads, which in some places were badly washed out. The trip through Ludlow was traveled by the President very slowly. He reached his father's house at 6:02 Standard Time.

Motorists Stop at House.

All day long people came from the far hills and motorists stopped to see the place where the President took the oath of office. Usually about 200 or 300 motor parties visit the place daily. They stopped today to learn of the grave condition of Colonel Coolidge and expressed sympathy to his neighbors and relatives standing in groups under the trees on the lawn.

Colonel Coolidge has personally shown more than 100,000 visitors the living room where his son took the oath of office.

The minister in the church just across the road prayed for his recovery this morning. As the worshipers were leaving the church the surgeons arrived and the operation was performed which relieved the pressure of his suffering.

President Coolidge was assured on his arrival by the physicians that his father had stood the operation well. They said that there now appears to be no reason why he should not improve rapidly and undergo a second or major operation within the next two weeks. His illness may upset the President's plan to deliver a speech at Cambridge. He will remain here several days or until it is apparent that there is no further danger to his father.

It is said that the President was anxious to leave Swampscott for Plymouth last night when he was informed of his father's serious condition, but physicians prevailed upon him to delay his trip until today, saying that his father would not pass away in the meantime. With this assurance he agreed to wait until today for his start to his father's bedside.

PRAYS FOR COL. COOLIDGE.

A prayer for Colonel John Coolidge, father of President Coolidge, was offered yesterday morning by the Rev. Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor of the First Congregational Church, Washington, D. C., at the First Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Eleventh Street, this city, where Dr. Pierce was the preacher of the day. The President is a member of Dr. Pierce's church.

After prayer for the President Dr. Pierce offered a prayer for his aged father.

"We thank Thee for the men and women in the world who make it worth while to live," said Dr. Pierce in his prayer. "We thank Thee that in spite of so much sin in the world there are so many good men and women in it.

"Bless Thy servant, the President of the United States, we beseech Thee. Bless all whom he loves, and especially at this hour we pray Thee to bless the one so dear to him who is threatened with sickness."

CLEAN-UP IN HARLEM NETS 43 DRUNKEN MEN

One of the most extensive round-ups of intoxicated persons in Harlem since prohibition was made yesterday by the police of the East 126th Street Station, who arrested forty-three men during the afternoon. So fast did the police gather in the drunken men that they made three trips in the patrol wagon before they delivered all to the police station.

Some were found by the police lying near the waterfront. In one or two cases the men lay near the ends of piers and might have fallen overboard. Others were picked up in parks throughout the precinct. Many were found asleep on the park benches. Still others were taken on Second, Third and Lexington Avenues.

At the police station the men were charged with intoxication and disorderly conduct. Half listened dreamily to the accusing officers, and probably the other half didn't understand the procedure. Only one negro was in the company of prisoners.

Last night they were taken in three police patrol wagons to Night Court—all save one, who was still under the influence of liquor. According to the police there has been much bad liquor in Harlem lately and the result has been a greater number of intoxicated men on the streets and in other public places than at any time in recent years. The round-up was the beginning of a movement by the police to stamp out drunkenness in Harlem.

Two Held in Income Tax Fraud.

Joseph Spier, 47, of 1,374 East Ninth Street, Brooklyn, an auditor in the State Income Tax Bureau, and Louis Leffler, 32, of 1,511 Park Place, Brooklyn, were arraigned yesterday before Magistrate Thomas F. McAndrews in the Yorkville Court on a charge of extortion and held on $2,500 bail each for examination July 3. The complainant, Harry Duckor, 604 Henry Street, Brooklyn, President of the Garant Art Lamp and Novelty Company, charges they tried to extort $400 from his firm to escape payment of State taxes.

PEKING, June 28.—The period of comparative quiet here now gives the foreign colony time to review the situation with special reference to the future.

One of the few redeeming features is that the Diplomatic Corps is holding well together and showing an increasingly firm front in dealing with the Peking Government. It is hoped by many that they continue to stand united when the time arrives to discuss peace and China's demands for the revision of the treaties. Most observers say that it must be remembered that, although the treaties hurt the feelings of the Chinese they were appropriate under the circumstances in which they were contracted and operate as much for the benefit of the Chinese as for foreigners.

Nevertheless, the powers at the Washington Conference agreed to afford China the fullest and most unembarrassed opportunity to stabilize its government without foreign interference, and they promised to take immediate steps toward treaty revision to meet the aspirations of the Chinese people. But China since then has been perpetually involved in civil war.

Her armies are bigger than ever, brigandry goes unpunished and the State is suffering every possible evil from misgovernment, conditions in which light the treaties seem to be a positive blessing.

Signs are not wanting, therefore, it is asserted, that a united foreign demand for stern measures would be welcomed by those Chinese who are capable of taking them as a good excuse for pursuing what would be an unpopular native policy. Certainly it is not in the interest of the powerful military commanders, let alone the preponderating mercantile and other interests, to have the extremist Chinese and Bolshevist influence get beyond control, as it is now becoming.

PEKING, June 28.—The Chinese Mohammedans, under Chi-Ti-jen, President of the Mohammedan Foreign Relations Association, and the veteran Mohammedan General Mallang, who commanded Tsai Ao's demonstration, have decided to send delegates to India and other protectorates "to arouse the people against Great Britain as against a common enemy."

The Government today appointed former Premier W. W. Yen, Dr. C. T. Wang and Admiral Tsai Ting-kan as commissioners for negotiations with the powers when a basis is reached.

Rioters Still Active in Shanghai.

SHANGHAI, June 28.—The latest form of Chinese protest against "foreign domination" is acid throwing. A gang of rioters today attacked a street car and threw sulphuric acid over the occupants. One Chinese woman had to be taken to a hospital and other Chinese received minor injuries. The street car company, despite the incident, and the persistent stone throwing over the weekend, is keeping the cars running as usual in the daytime, discontinuing the service at night.

While the shopkeepers and merchants have resumed business, the strike continues unrelentingly among artisans, mill hands and seamen.

They are not working, simply because if they return their strike pay will cease and the agitators' emoluments will be cut off. Many workmen, in view of the fact that they are receiving benefits of half to one-third of their regular pay, are dissatisfied, but so far they dare not work for fear of the terrorists employed by the strike leaders.

Business in Hongkong Revives.

HONGKONG, June 28 (AP).—Chinese bankers at a meeting today passed a resolution to reopen their banks on Monday, while the share brokers decided to fall in with the action of the Stock Exchange, which will reopen on July 1.

A gang of coolies, under police protection, last night discharged the cargo of the German ship Ansalt at the Kowloon docks. It has been discovered that the Chinese crews tampered with the engines of the Kowloon ferryboats before going on strike.

Strikers Make World Appeal.

LONDON, June 28.—Chinese labor leaders are making a striking attempt to enlist the help of labor throughout the world in what they describe as "a struggle against the common enemy."

The appeal issued by the Trades Union Federation of China to labor organizations universally declares that "international imperialism," irritated by recent events; the victories of the Canton Government, the development of the students' movement, the revival of railway workers' activity and the formation of the Trades Union Federation of China, decided to crush the movement by force and that the Shanghai strikes by the workers answer this "imperialist" challenge.

In a message to the Trades Union Congress, the Chinese Federation of Railwaymen say they would heartily welcome a delegation from the British unions, which would serve, they say, to expose the attempt of the alleged imperialist press to depict the Chinese revolutionary movement as a mere anti-foreign agitation.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

THE HAGUE, Monday, June 29.—The Dutch Indian Government now forbids all money collections alleged to be for victims of the Chinese riots, but really to support revolutionists. Extensive measures against collections are announced.

TO DEFEND SCOPES IN SCIENCE'S NAME

that they will seek to prove that the present statute, which Scopes is charged with violating, does away with the freedom of teaching and freedom of thought; or the defense may seek to establish that the theory of evolution is so intimately attached to all the regular sciences that to bar the teaching of evolution will indirectly result in the exclusion of the teaching of all sciences."

The professor went on:

"Fundamentalists in their attack on evolution do not hesitate to include in their condemnation the sciences of biology and geology because of the support these give to the 'persistent doctrine.' If the evolution theory were abandoned, embryology would have to go, and with it and comparative anatomy, anthropology and other biologic sciences, a large part of premedical courses in tax supported institutions. Even medical schools in connection with such institutions would have to be abolished, for modern medical science is evolutionary, interpreting in the light of man's descent from an animal ancestry rudimentary organs (of which there are over seventy in man, some of them, such as the vermiform appendix, especially liable to disease) and certain anomalies in anatomical structure otherwise inexplicable."

Says Trial Is a Travesty on Law.

The coming Scopes trial was attacked as "a travesty on law, a mockery of religion and a burlesque of science," in a statement yesterday by John E. Edgerton of Nashville, Tenn., President of the National Association of Manufacturers.

"Such a spectacle as the turning of an American court into an advertising arena for publicity seekers with warped mentalities and a parade ground for freaks, fanatics and fools ought to be impossible in the country which gave John Marshall to immortal fame."

"The walking delegates of agnosticism, atheism, communism and bolshevism will be there. Everything will be represented except science and religion."

Gutenberg Museum Gets American Gift; Chancellor in Mayence for Rhineland Fete

MAYENCE, Germany, June 28 (AP).—The Gutenberg Museum in this city is the recipient of a gift of $5,000 from the United States for the extension and support of this edifice founded in honor of Mayence's most distinguished son, Johannes Gutenberg, inventor of printing from movable types.

The American donation was handed to the directors of the museum today by Dr. Stempel of Frankfort, in behalf of the American committee which collected the funds, including donations from well-known publishers and printers.

Chancellor Luther, speaking in the museum at the celebration in commemoration of Germany's possession of the Rhineland for 1,000 years declared: "We must remember through all vicissitudes that there is one thing which was, is and will be—the German Empire."

Mayence is the general headquarters of France's Army of the Rhine," and in behalf of the French Government, a representative of the French High Commissioner in the Rhineland visited the Chancellor and expressed the hope that the fêtes would be celebrated calmly and would not have any character of animosity toward France and the Allies. He added that France entertained no thought of conquest, but desired to live peaceably alongside her neighbors.

The French representative also expressed the wish that the French and German Governments would reach a complete accord within the limits of treaties for the greater good of both countries and for the world's peace.

Dr. Luther thanked him for his visit and gave assurance that the German Government would endeavor to pursue a policy of conciliation within the framework of the London agreements.

General Guillaumat, commanding the Rhine army, sent an officer of his staff to pay respects to the German Chancellor.

In the course of his address Dr. Luther paid tribute to the burghers' pride in their city's geographic situation at the junction of the Rhine and the Main. It signified something positive for Germany, he said—a link between the North and the South.

In conclusion he declared that the destiny of the German people was linked up with the Rhineland and that the German Government would do all possible to soften its lot, saying: "We live in the firm hope that a better future is in store for the German Empire and the German people."

BULGARIA ACCEDES TO YUGOSLAV DEMAND

SOFIA, June 28.—A special meeting of the Cabinet considered the Yugoslav Government's demand for information regarding the Yugoslav subjects who were arrested in Sofia after the Cathedral outrage, and the Yugoslav Government's instructions to its legation in Sofia to refuse visas to all Bulgarians. The Cabinet is supplied by information from the police showing that seven Yugoslav subjects have been arrested, of whom five were liberated and the whereabouts of the other two is uncertain.

The Bulgarian Government informed the Yugoslavs of these facts and it is hoped the latter will take a compromising attitude. In event that Yugoslavia continues to refuse to grant visas it is possible that Bulgaria may apply similar measures against Yugoslavs. Although the matter at present is merely an incident, it is realized that it is one that might develop into something serious. Of the two Yugoslavs whose whereabouts was uncertain it has since been ascertained that one is interned and rumored that the other has been killed.

Belgrade is pretty sure to demand explanations if the Yugoslav subject has really been killed. It is further reported that one of the two arrested was charged with harboring a Communist and though the Communist was liberated the Yugoslav is still held.

The Bulgarian attitude is that Yugoslavia is interfering with Bulgarian internal affairs, but Yugoslavia asserts that she does not mind her subjects being brought before a court of justice or expelled from Bulgaria, but she cannot permit her subjects to be interned. Twenty-four Communist boys and girls have been condemned to various terms of imprisonment up to fifteen years in the recent conspiracy.

Imprisonment is coupled with heavy fines and loss of civil rights. The military courts has decided to ask the King to exercise his prerogative of mercy towards them.

OIL DIVIDED IN ALBANIA

Largest Areas Obtained by Italians and British Companies.

BELGRADE, June 28.—Delimitation of oil concessions in Albania, either made or in course of being made, indicates that the English and Italian oil companies obtained the largest areas, while that of the Standard Oil Company is comparatively small.

The concessions so far distributed, it is understood, are as follows: Anglo-Persian Company, 32,000 hectares; Italian Railway Administration, 48,000 hectares; the Italian company Selenizza, 28,000 hectares, and the French Oil Company, 15,000 hectares. The limits of the Standard Oil section now being demarcated will probably not exceed 20,000 hectares.

Engineers are said to be of the opinion that the most abundant oil sources are in the section of the Anglo-Persian Company. British engineers have already arrived on the field and intensive work will be begun immediately in the British and Italian sections.

FINDS DISHONESTY COSTLY.

Director Makes Appeal in $225,000 Educational Drive in Jersey.

"The community must pay the bills when boys go wrong," said Charles W. Shinn, State campaign director for the $225,000 drive being conducted by the New Jersey Protestant Council of Religious Education, yesterday at the Vailsburg Methodist Church in Newark.

"The criminality, law-breaking and common dishonesty of the American people cost us three times what it costs to run the Government—more than ten billions a year," continued Mr. Shinn. "The people of New Jersey and the nation as taxpayers and rentpayers must foot this huge bill. It is cheaper to invest money in the character-building process of religious education than to build jails and reformatories to protect us from the results of our neglect."

BOY KILLED IN A FALL.

Wanders From Father Into Garage Elevator Shaft.

Urban Roca, 5-year-old son of Anthony Roca of 73 Clermont Avenue, Brooklyn, fell three stories to the bottom of an elevator shaft in the Carleton Garage at 166 Carlton Avenue, Brooklyn, last night and was killed.

The boy had been riding in the afternoon with his father and an older brother. They had returned to the garage, where Roca kept his car, and had gone with it to the third floor. While his father was seeing to storing the machine Urban went too close to the open shaft and fell in. When Dr. de Mott and an ambulance arrived from the Cumberland Street Hospital the boy was dead.

'ROVERS' ON CALL TO GIVE BLOOD FREE

LONDON, June 28.—An association of voluntary donors of blood to London hospitals for transfusion purposes has been formed by Elder Brethren of the Scout movement who call themselves the Rovers.

Immediately upon receipt of instructions to report for transfusion of blood the Rover takes a taxicab to the hospital in need of his services. Suitability of his blood having previously been tested, there is no delay in putting him on the operating table. A day and night service is maintained. The Rover makes the sacrifice without charge but expenses, and any loss of wages involved are borne by the Blood Transfusion Service.

The King is greatly interested in the organization. He recently conferred the Order of the British Empire on B. W. Tibble, who on forty-four occasions had given a pint of blood for transfusion purposes and declined payment.

SCORES OUR DEBT MORALITY

London Newspaper Says We Press Europe While Our States Default.

LONDON, Monday, June 29.—The nonpayment by some of the Southern States of $60,000,000 borrowed from British bondholders is made the subject of caustic editorial comment in The Morning Post. The Post bases its attack on a statement in the annual report of the Corporation of Foreign Bondholders just issued:

"The Council regrets to report that while the Government of the United States during the past year has devoted much attention to the payment of obligations incurred by its allies in the Great War, no effort has been taken by defaulting States of the Union to recognize or pay their debts."

The Post reminds its readers that these loans were not contracted by the Southern States but by Federal Government but for industrial purposes before or after the Civil War.

There is no reason to doubt, it says, that if the British bondholders could proceed against the States in a court of law their ocuses for non-payment would be held invalid and the States forced to pay, but the British bondholders were debarred from any such action by the Eleventh Amendment to the Constitution of the United States. It is in fact the American Government which prevents our bondholders from recovering their just debts from its constituent States.

"As Americans are now so righteous in these matters, and incidentally so rich, we might venture to suggest that it hardly accords with their reputation for higher morality to persist in this default and as we are paying our big debt to them they should pay their little debt to us."

Indians Here Want Revolution.

Another world war and the downfall of the British Empire within the next five years was predicted by East Indians last night, meeting at the Garden of India Restaurant, 672 Eighth Avenue. Mahatma Ghandi, passivist leader in India, was condemned as a coward and an armed revolution was advocated by Chaundry Lall Khan, President of the recently organized National League of India. Other speakers were Dalip Singh Gill, representative of Afghan newspapers, Professor J. J. Cornelius of Lucknow University, and Sean Conway, Irish nationalist.

MORE EARTHQUAKES FELT IN MONTANA

Many Landslides on Mountains.

Landslides on many mountains blocked highways and railroads, but reports of the disturbance still coming in fail to mention any loss of life.

Damage to property, based on scant information, is estimated at approximately $500,000. Towns in the Gallatin Valley were the heaviest sufferers, the damage there being estimated at $300,000.

Three passenger trains, two of them sections of the Olympian, the fast Chicago-Seattle flyer of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad, were hemmed in by avalanches near Lombard. The third was a Northern Pacific train. A small cave-in occurred in the Lombard tunnel of the Milwaukee line which temporarily blocked the passage of trains through it.

A branch passenger train of the Milwaukee lines was held up near Logan because of a trestle weakened by the tremors.

Three Persons Injured.

Incomplete reports from the affected cities and towns in Montana told of only three persons suffering injury. Mrs. Ernie Gray of Three Forks suffered a broken hip when the porch of her house collapsed as she was leaving it. Two motorists driving near Butte received injuries when their car was caught in the waves of the earth shocks and carried over an embankment.

Fear that the earth upheaval might be continued with disastrous effect prompted the residents of Three Forks and Manhattan to vacate their homes and sleep in the streets. They also moved their household effects from the houses and today prepared their Sunday repasts outdoors.

Patrols of police and volunteer citizens were thrown about buildings in Three Forks to guard weakened structures where danger of falling walls existed. Plans to raze with dynamite several of the shattered structures were under consideration.

The school building at Three Forks was virtually destroyed. At Manhattan two school structures were so badly shattered that they may have to be razed. Three business structures at Manhattan, including the town's bank building, are badly damaged and have been abandoned. The school house at Logan also was destroyed.

Many communities have taken precautions against fire. Police in Manhattan have forbidden the lighting of any fires inside buildings.

A fissure 2½ inches wide at the centre and from five to six feet deep has blocked the highway between Three Forks and Helena and between two bridges over tributaries to the Missouri River.

ANACONDA, Mont., June 28 (AP).—A slight earth tremor was felt here at 3:10 o'clock this afternoon. This was followed by another at 3:45 o'clock, the seventh in twenty hours. No damage was done.

Two buildings at the State Hospital for the Insane, eight miles from here, were damaged by yesterday's shocks. A well in one of the buildings for women patients caved in, but no one was injured. The coping of the hospital was so badly damaged that it had to be pried loose as a measure of safety.

Marooned Travelers Relieved.

BOZEMAN, Mont., June 28 (AP).—Railroad travelers marooned near Lombard on Northern Pacific and Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul trains by landslides due to last night's earthquake have been relieved and are continuing their journey under a rerouting plan.

Northern Pacific Train 235 tonight was still held up, but its passengers were transferred to another train at Logan and went on by way of Butte.

Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul trains 16 and 18, eastbound, and 17, westbound, continued their journeys on Northern Pacific tracks under an arrangement between the two railroads which provided for a connection between Harlowton and Sappington, clearing the Milwaukee tracks two miles west of Lombard.

A landslide covered the Northern Pacific tracks two miles west of Lombard for a distance of 1,200 feet and cannot be cleared before tomorrow. Service on the railroad into Helena will be limited to a connection from Butte until the line is cleared.

Railroad officials estimated today that it might take thirty days to repair the damage wrought by the landslides.

FRENCH STILL SUSPICIOUS

PARIS, June 28.—The German Government's decision to continue conversations preliminary to the negotiation of a compact of guarantee with France and England has been naturally received here with satisfaction. At the same time the difficulty of the task of M. Briand or any other French negotiator directing these conversations in a fashion satisfactory to French opinion is well shown by the suspicion and distrust still characteristic of all newspaper comment.

During the last few weeks financial affairs have overshadowed interest in the compact, but these have now been temporarily settled and the press has returned to discussion of all possible aspects of the compact proposal. Mr. Chamberlain's attitude and that of his Government has here so far received the fullest commendation.

There is no doubt that the known sympathy of the British Foreign Secretary for France is a valuable factor in the negotiations. But the French never allow themselves to be led away for long by any ideas of the disinterestedness of British policy. They are fully aware that the two points of interest for England in the compact are the prevention of any quarrel from happening near the Channel ports and the formation of a stable united Western Europe opposed to Russian Bolshevism and perhaps ready to take part in intervention against the spread of Bolshevism in Asia.

It is naturally Germany's attitude toward Russia which is the matter of most interrogation. It is recalled that all attempts at Genoa to form a European bloc against the Soviet was ruined by the German-Russian flirtation in the treaty of Rapallo. Further, the point is being stressed in the Nationalist press that Germany, having now no colonies, has not the same fear of the spread of the Communist spirit of revolt among the native peoples in the same way as it affects England and, in lesser degree, France.

The German reply to the French note is not expected for several days, perhaps not for several weeks, and it is not anticipated that Berlin will by any means accept the conditions of the Briand-Chamberlain note. These conversations are going to be long and very skilfully conducted. In them the attitude of Germany toward Russia is certainly going to play a very big rôle, and France's security will prove perhaps in the end to be only a minor question incidental to the whole. For that reason the German decision to open conversations, while regarded with satisfaction, is not yet considered more than a very small beginning.

Five months have passed since the suggestion of the Rhineland compact was first made, and there is no reason whatever to believe that much faster progress will be made now than formerly.

MANNING TO FOREGO WORK.

Bishop and His Family Will Spend 2 Months' Vacation Motoring.

Bishop and Mrs. William T. Manning and their two daughters, the Misses Frances and Elizabeth Manning, will leave town this week on their vacation. They have rented their Summer home at Seal Harbor, Me., because it was feared the Bishop would work if he remained in one place. The family will pass the next two months in brief motoring trips.

In previous years Bishop Manning has taken his Secretary to Maine and worked almost as hard as when in New York. Last Summer he spent most of the time planning for his personal solicitation for the $15,000,000 campaign to complete the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

Throughout the vacation a Bishop will be on duty. The shifts will be divided between the Right Rev. Arthur S. Lloyd and the Right Rev. Herbert Shipman, Suffragan Bishops.

KING'S ROYAL RIFLES BAG MARAUDING LION

NAIROBI, June 28.—Two lions which invaded the town of Entebbe, Uganda, coped so intelligently with all the usual lion-killing devices employed against them that, like Humpty Dumpty, all the King's horses and all the King's men had to be requisitioned to get them out again.

To be exact, 100 men of the King's African Rifles had to be called out and, though one lion has bitten the dust, the soldiers are still patroling the town with loaded rifles.

The first news of the arrival of Leo and his friend came from a native who found a lion in his back yard eating a goat while a cub looked on. Dashing into the house he was dumfounded to find another lion inside.

His story was naturally enough disbelieved until both lions one night visited a grass hut occupied by a European named Cashmere. The following day the military were turned ont and they tracked the animals to the Botanical Gardens, where they had obviously enjoyed a sunbath, and prepared two bullocks as bait.

After a second visit of the lions to Cashmere's house a number of residents sat up all night near the bait under an electric light pole. The lions turned up, but as soon as the light was switched on they disappeared.

The watchers persisted and finally their patience was partially rewarded. The body of one lion plentifully perforated was presented to the Governor, but the other marauder, to judge from reports of the mauling of natives, is still alive and busy.

HOLY NAME SOCIETY RALLY.

HICKSVILLE, L. I., June 28.—More than twenty thousand men marched through a downpour of rain here today at the twenty-fourth annual Summer rally of the Holy Name Society of the Diocese of Long Island.

Addresses of welcome were made by the Rev. Father Wunsch, pastor of St. Ignatius Church, Hicksville and Chester A. Painter, Township Supervisor of Oyster Bay.

Following a short address by William E. Kelly, County Clerk of Kings County, the principal speaker of the day, the Very Rev. Mgr. John L. Belford, rector of the Church of the Nativity, Brooklyn, called attention to the objectives sought in the society's work and outlined the purpose of the organization.

The society, he said, seeks to teach reverence for the Holy Name and to prevent as far as possible the use of profane and indecent language.

"In the latter instance," said Father Belford, "we can also construe the meaning to take in and combat the spread of indecent literature.

"This can be accomplished by our refusal as individuals to patronize stores and news stands that display indecent papers, magazines and pictures.

"Also we can aid by refusing our patronage to shows that do not maintain a moral atmosphere."

MEXICO CITY, June 28.—The Government has ordered troops to guard the railway shops where a strike has been declared effective today. Troops will protect mechanics who wish to work in the roundhouses and shops.

Officials say they will not take action against mechanics who failed to report for work today, but if they fail to appear Monday they will be discharged and non-union labor substituted.

A general strike is said to be prepared by the confederated railway societies who object to readjustment of wages. It is stated telegraph operators, dispatchers and mechanics' societies are backing the strike movement.

Telegrams from San Luis, Potosi and Guadalajara say the shop mechanics did not work today, obeying instructions from confederation headquarters.

Against Recognizing Soviet.

BUENOS AIRES, June 28 (AP).—A committee report in the Chamber of Deputies regarding recognition of the Russian Soviet Government says that such recognition would be "premature." The report adds that the time has not yet arrived when Congress should exercise its constitutional rights in the recognition of new Governments. It is understood that the report will be submitted to the House in the present week.

FEZ REPORTS CHECK TO RIFFIANS' DRIVE

PART OF LINE PUSHED BACK

Four Days of Hard Fighting on a Front of 62 Miles Northeast of Moroccan Capital.

FEZ, French Morocco, June 28 (AP).—An official communication issued today concerning the operations in Morocco says:

"The offensive which the enemy has been developing since June 23 in the eastern sector of our front has hurled itself against our forces everywhere, but despite the violence of the attack of the dissident tribesmen and a considerable number of regular warriors put in the line on the vast front between Cheyah (northeast of Fez) and the Algerian frontier, the offensive everywhere has been checked.

"We are witnessing a new Riffian attempt to force our line of resistance. It must be borne in mind that these regions are defended by a covering force of friendly tribesmen and supplementary forces, which not only have energetically resisted, but also in certain sectors, notably at Bou Mihiris, have counterattacked brilliantly, forcing the enemy to retreat.

"In the region between Cheyab and Bou Haroun, dissident tribesmen succeeded in pushing back for several kilometers our native covering troops, who furnished most brilliant resistance during four days and established contact with our troops posted north of Oulia and Bab Moroudj. In the region between Dar Caid Medroeth and Bou Mihiris, an action engaged in yesterday turned clearly to our advantage. Our partisans for a second time in several days inflicted a bloody setback to the enemy."

The communication adds that throughout the whole region the tribesmen and supplementary forces have shown rare military qualities and perfect organization. It says General Caistaing of the French forces) has stubbornly resisted the tribesmen and by fortunate dispositions has been able to hold a front of more than 100 kilometers (62½ miles) with the help of partisans and supplementary forces and aviators.

RABAT, French Morocco, June 28 (AP).—A French official communication issued here today says that Colonel Freydenburg's forces, continuing their operations in the region of Teroual (northwest of Fez), reached Ain Bou Alesa without difficulty.

"The group operating in the centre, ascending the Leben Valley," the communication adds, "met with lively enemy resistance in the Baz Taza region. Its advance elements reached the Bou Halifa, post during over night, pushing back the enemy and establishing their liaison."

SAYS FRANCE DEFENDS RIGHTS.

Premier Painleve Refers to Morocco War in Two Speeches.

VERSAILLES, France, June 28 (AP).—The French Government in its Moroccan campaign has resolved never to cause needless bloodshed and only to defend France's rights, prestige and just interests. This statement was made today by Premier Painlevé at a banquet commemorating the revolutionary General Hoche.

M. Painlevé appealed to all Frenchmen to show themselves to be equal to post-war duties, which would be burdensome but with which France could competently deal.

SENS, France, June 28 (AP).—Premier Painlevé, speaking today at the dedication of a monument to the war dead, reiterated his statement earlier in the day at Versailles with regard to Morocco.

"Let no drop of blood ever be shed needlessly," said the Premier. "Let our country, in defense of its rights, ever remain calm and resolute in moderation. Let our forces be put in the service of justice. When justice is satisfied, let France be the first to make peace reign. These principles always will inspire us. We exist only because we are the executors of such desires."

URGE AIRPLANE SURVEY.

Engineers Stress Value of Photography of Montana Earthquake.

BOSTON, June 28 (AP).—A recommendation that airplane photographs be taken of the area affected by earthquakes in Montana yesterday was made today by the Engineering Economics Foundation, which is collecting information as to hazards.

An airplane photographic survey, taken from a low flying plane, officers of the foundation said, would afford a basis for study and would add greatly to the knowledge of earthquake shocks and effects. In a statement the foundation said:

"The earthquake of June 27 in Montana, according to present reports, had its greatest effect on transportation and communication. It was accompanied by landslides and avalanches. Under the circumstances reported, where exterior changes in the face of the earth occurred it is most desirable to have immediate airplane photographic surveys to advance the knowledge of quake shock and effect."

MAN DIES IN CRASH; WAS TO HAVE WED

TODDLING BABY IS KILLED

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 28.—Eugene Heller, 22 years old, 2,334 North Fifth Street, Philadelphia, was killed and four other persons hurt today when the auto in which they were riding was struck and overturned by another machine at Cologne, N. J.

One of the injured was Nettie Deck, 21, of the same address, to whom Heller was to have been married yesterday. For some reason the wedding was postponed, and at the Atlantic City Hospital the girl, who sustained severe cuts, hysterically cried for permission to wed Heller at once, not realizing his critical condition. He died shortly after.

The other injured, none of whom was seriously hurt, were Alfred Deck, 18, brother of the girl; Joseph Deck, 48, the father, and Mrs. Ellen Deck, 42, the mother, all of the same address.

According to investigation by county detectives, the family, with Alfred driving, were coming to the shore for the day. At Cologne, on the White Horse Pike, a large red touring car darted across their path from a side road, striking the lighter machine and hurling it into a ditch, pinning the occupants beneath. Other motorists rescued them and brought them to the hospital here.

The touring car did not stop. Its left-hand fender and radiator were badly damaged, however, and State police and police in nearby communities have been asked to watch for it.

Seven persons sustained injuries this evening near Mispah, on the Mays Landing Road, when Carl Jansen of 427 Delilah Road, Pleasantville, lost control of the automobile he was driving and crashed into another car.

The injured, who were taken to Vineland Hospital, were George J. Clark, 21, of 7,105 Torresdale Avenue, Philadelphia, cut about the face and head; Mrs. Frank Toughhill and her daughter, Margaret, of 900 South Forty-eighth Street, West Philadelphia, lacerations of the scalp, face and arms.

In the other car Jansen, who was driving, received cuts of the right eye and may lose the organ; his wife, Bertha, lacerations of the scalp and forehead; a boy named Edward Bennett, lacerations of the head and Miss Chelbee Shaw, 20, of Pleasantville, lacerations. Jansen told State police of Mays Landing that the Bennett boy opened the door and that when he took his hand from the wheel to close it he lost control of the automobile and collided with the Clark coupe. The latter was demolished.

EAST ORANGE, N. J., June 28.—Mary Barrett, aged 4, eluded the notice of her parents late tonight as they were sitting on the porch of their home at 305 Sanford Avenue, Newark, and toddled into the street in front of an automobile alleged to have been driven by William L. McDonald of 438 Park Avenue, East Orange. The child was taken to the Orange Memorial Hospital by McDonald and G. Alfred Flood of West Orange, driving another car behind that of McDonald. McDonald then went to the East Orange Police Station.

Upon his arrival there he was informed by Lieutenant Christopher Bell, in command, that the victim had died on the operating table.

McDonald was held on a technical charge of manslaughter for the Newark police. He had been under the impression that the accident occurred in East Orange and had therefore gone to the East Orange Station instead of Newark.

Anthony Tomfello, 22 years old, of Elm, N. J., driver of a motor truck, was killed and three other persons, occupants of a touring car, were injured on "Dead Man's Curve" on the Newark Turnpike, near Kearny, N. J. last night when the truck and touring car collidedd uring the rain and electrical storm which swept over that section.

The injured are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Girgenti and their daughter, Susan, 5 months old, of 609 Bloomfield Avenue, Newark. They are in West Hudson Hospital, where it was said the parents are in a serious condition. The child was only cut slightly above the right eye.

Tomfello was driving a truck loaded with blackberries toward New York, while Girgenti was diving toward Newark. Suddenly in the rain at the curve, the scene of many accidents, the cars met. Tomfello, it was said, jumped before the collision, and his own machine, turned about by the impact, struck him and killed him instantly.

SOUTH RIVER, N. J., June 28 (AP).—Within a half hour after he is alleged to have killed Miss Hedwig Eberle, 21, of Fairville, whom the police say he struck with an automobile which he was operating while drunk, Constant Paraeowsay, 38, a chauffeur, of South River was on his way to serve a thirty-day sentence in the Middlesex County Jail at New Brunswick for operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated. When Paraeowsky finished the sentence he will be served with a warrant charging him with manslaughter.

Miss Eberle, who was almost instantly killed, was struck by the car driven by Paraeowsay on the Summerville road near Turners.

SPRING LAKE, N. J., June 28.—Miss Mae Kelly, 17 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kelly of New York, sustained fractures of both arms and her mother was severely lacerated on the arms, leg and back, in an automobile accident here today.

Mrs. Kelly, Mae and two younger daughters, Evelyn and Lillian, who are spending the Summer here, were on their way to church in a car driven by Mrs. Kelly's brother-in-law, Thomas Kelly of Asbury Park. The car is said to have struck a curb and turned over on its side. Kelly and the two young girls were not hurt. Mrs. Kelly and Mae were taken to the Ann May Hospital. The mother was discharged after treatment, but the daughter is still in the hospital. Her condition was reported as favorable tonight.

11 PERSONS ARE KILLED IN 2 CROSSING WRECKS

Six in Auto Slain by Interurban in Illinois—Ohio Train Wipes Out Family of Five.

BURLINGTON, Ill., June 28 (AP).—Six members of one family were killed, another person is believed to have been fatally injured, and several passengers of an interurban were hurt when an automobile was struck by an Illinois Traction System car seven miles west of here today. All of the dead resided in Bloomington. They are:

BEAVER, L. M., 55.
BEAVER, PAUL, 8.
BEAVER, JESSIE, 3.
A newborn baby.
ZORA BEAVER, aged 9, is seriously hurt.

The touring car was carried down the track about eighty feet before it was caught between the car and brace-pole of the Interurban line, and literally ground to pieces. The interurban was derailed by the crash, the front end of the car swinging nose down into the ditch.

There were twenty people on the Interurban train and while none suffered severe injury, they were badly shaken up, and three were brought to a Bloomington hospital for medical attention.

With the exception of the littld girl, Zora, all members of the family in the automobile were instantly killed when the automobile was crashed between the car and the pole. A baby was born as a result of the accident, but was dead.

Even the little terrier, the family pet, was killed.

ASHTABULA, Ohio, June 28 (AP).—Five persons in one family were killed this evening when an automobile in which they were riding was demolished by a fast eastbound New York Central passenger train at a road crossing. The dead are:

WOODRING, C. F.;
WOODRING, MRS. ARMINTA;
WOODRING, GLENN, 11;
WOODRING, LERNICE, 15.

The victims, all of Ashtabula, were apparently on their way to church. The bodies were mangled beyond recognition. That of Mrs. Woodring was carried half a mile on the pilot of the locomotive before the train was brought to a stop.

Identification of the victims was established through the finding of a Sunday school book bearing Woodring's name on the pilot of the engine.

GREAT PRE-MAYA CITY DISCOVERED IN MEXICO

Copyright, 1925, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

MEXICO CITY, June 28.—Engineers headed by Pedro Cafarell report the discovery of an immense pre-historic city near Orizaba, in the State of Vera Cruz. It covers several miles, has four immense pyramids, has overgrown fortifications or city walls, more than 100 underground chambers, a multitude of buried houses and vast terraces, the construction of which must have occupied thousands of men for many years.

Sculptured tablets, similar to those found in the uplands near Mexico City and bearing a crude resemblance to those of Yucatan, give the newly discovered city great importance.

"This city can easily rival the famous ruins of Teotihuacan, which were recently excavated by the Mexican Government," Señor Cafarell said. "The ruins are so vast and so far-reaching, the terraces so large and the pyramids so high that it would take years to evacuate and require immense sums of money.

"As the city undoubtedly flourished previous to the wonderful civilization of Yucatan, it may furnish a key to the origin of the ancient and mysterious Maya race which is now occupying the attention of the Carnegie Institute and noted American scientists."

MEXICO CITY, June 28.—A new archaeological discovery is reported from Tampico, whene an American named MacNair, exploring some small hills near the city, found a series of mounds. Digging into one he found a small space about five meters in diameter perfectly paved with cement and covered with a bright painting of a winding figure. At the side of the mound he found a series of steps leading to the ground.

The Government has given orders to preserve the picture.

Replying to a statement by American scientists that Mexican ruins are deteriorating, Dr. Puig Casarunic, Minister of Education, says it is true but the Government is unable to prevent effects of the weather. Fifteen hundred and fifty-nine known ruins exist in Mexico. Owing to lack of funds the Government finds it impossible to guard all ruins, but caretakers have been sent to the most important.

The Government in an effort to prevent the most valuable stones and idols from leaving the country has ordered customs officials to seize all objects sent to ports from shipments abroad.

PARIS, June 28.—Léon Daudet, the Royalist leader, was defeated today in a Senatorial election in the Maine-et-Loire Department by the Republican Union Deputy Manceau.

M. Daudet led in the first ballot, obtaining 339 votes as against 278 cast for M. Manceau, the Radical candidate, M. Tardif, following close on M. Mânceau's heels with 275 votes. On the second ballot M. Manceau obtained the necessary majority by reason of a switch by the Radicals, the final result being 494 votes in favor of the Republican Union candidate, 356 in favor of M. Daudet and 84 for M. Tardif.

The defeat of Léon Daudet is a considerable blow to the Royalists, not only because of the importance of the candidate himself to their cause, but also because by M. Daudet's failure they lose the seat in the Senate that was held by the late Royalist Senator Jules Delahaye.

A Senatorial election in the Department of Calvados resulted in favor of Comte D'Harcourt, also of the Republican Union, who succeeds the late M. Boivin-Champeau of the Left Republican group.

Dr. Nansen, whom it consulted, has now submitted a plan drafted in collaboration with Captain Druhns, the German aeronautical expert, who, with Nansen, is expected in Moscow to give detailed explanations.

The Soviet Government has appointed a special commission to examine proposals to organize an expedition and to establish regular airship communication between Europe and the Pacific via the most northern territory, Russia.

Eastman Employes Will Share $2,806,850 In Company's Largest "Wage Dividend"

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 28 (AP).—The Eastman Kodak Company on Wednesday will pay its fourteenth annual, and its largest, wage dividend to employes, the distribution this year amounting to $2,806,850.86. Since the beginning of the wage dividends in 1912 the total distribution to employes has amounted to $14,981,584.35.

The wage dividends are based upon the dividends paid to the common shareholders in the company and upon the total wage of the employe during the past five years of his employment by the company. Every employe who has been with the company five years or more receives as his wage dividend a little more than nine weeks' extra pay. Those who have been with the company less than five years receive a proportionately smaller dividend.

Since 1912 the kodak company employes have benefited from the wage dividends, from George Eastman's personal gift of stock, from the treasury stock sold by the company to the employes at a fraction of its market value, and from the dividends paid on these stocks to the extent of $31,154,990. Mr. Eastman's personal gift, included in the above, amounts at the present market value of the stock to $8,578,297.

Shares have actually been issued to 8,480 of the employes, while thousands more of the newer employes will become shareholders as their temporary certificates mature, for there are still 79,644 shares in process of distribution.

RACE IN HAIL OF BULLETS

One Escapes, but the Other Is Felled by Policeman—Churchgoers Join Pursuit.

The quiet of a midsummer Sunday afternoon in the vicinity of St. Patrick's Cathedral was shattered yesterday afternoon when pistol shots sounded from a house in West Forty-ninth Street, a few doors from Fifth Avenue, and brought half a dozen policemen on the run, followed by scores of churchgoers and promenaders on the avenue.

The shots were fired by two guards of the Holmes Electric Protective Company at two men who were caught in the act of robbing the dressmaking establishment of Morris Beilinson at 49 West Forty-ninth Street. In the chase that followed when the robbers jumped from the windows, one man escaped but the other was caught after running a block and a half.

The guards, M. F. Bunce and B. V. Kohler, were on duty in the Holmes branch office at 145 West Forty-fifth Street when the automatic burglar alarm sounded. The indicator showed the alarm coming from Beilinsons' store. The guards hastened there and found that a door leading to the basement had been forced open. They drew their revolvers and tiptoed upstairs, where they found a second door, opening into the show room, also had been jimmied.

Inside they saw two men removing dresses from a large closet and piling them on the floor. More than a score of garments were on the floor and several score more, worth in all about $4,000 or $5,000, were in the closet.

The noise made by the guards entering the room startled the robbers, and they ran off. One man jumped from a rear window that had been left open. As he did so Bunce fired several shots and jumped through the window after him. The fugitive scaled a fence, dashed through a house out to Fiftieth Street and escaped.

The other robber ran to a front window and leaped fifteen feet to the ground. Kohler pursued, firing as he ran. The man fled down Forty-ninth Street toward Sixth Avenue, closely followed by Kohler and policemen who came from Fifth Avenue when they heard the shots. A large crowd took up the chase, and passing automobiles honked their horns and added to the noise.

Patrolman Joseph Burke of Traffic A was on Sixth Avenue, near Fiftieth Street, when he heard the shots. He was off duty and in civilian clothing, but carried his revolver. He ran to the scene and reached Forty-ninth Street in time to see the robber turning the corner. Burke drew his revolver as he saw the fugitive reach for his pocket and felled him with a blow from the butt of his weapon.

At the West Forty-seventh Street Station, the man said he was Frank Castillina, 30 years old, a jewelry salesman of 503 West 161st Street, but the police say he is Frank Costello of 505 West 161st Street. The police say he had a 14-inch jimmy in his pocket. He was locked up charged with burglary.

Radio Tells of Surprise Capture of Schooner With Full Cargo of Liquor.

The two-masted American schooner William A. Morse is being towed to Norfolk, Va., as a rum-runner by the United States Coast Guard cutter Kickapoo, according to radio advices received here yesterday by the Coast Guard. The message disclosed that the Kickapoo, formerly operating from a base at Cape May, N. J., had taken the schooner unawares about sixty-five miles off Nantucket Shoals, and that the vessel carried a full cargo of liquor. This is the second time within a month that the William A. Morse has been seized. The first time she was charged with running without lights and with having aliens on board in territorial waters. The nine men aboard the schooner at that time said that they were fishermen and that they were bound for the mackerel run off the Maine coast. After the owners paid a fine of $100 on the charge of running without lights, the vessel was released.

Captain W. V. E. Jacobs, Divisional Commandant of the Coast Guard, New York District, said he was without details of the seizure, but expected to receive further information from Norfolk.

SEE CIVILIAN AID IN ESCAPE.

Army Men Think Imprisoned Deserters Used Sympathizers.

Army investigators who are seeking three military prisoners who escaped from Governors Island on Saturday morning are convinced that civilians aided their escape, it was said yesterday. Civilian employes on the island have at various times expressed sympathy for the prisoners kept at Castle William and it is believed that information had seeped through to the deserters, Sullivan, McNorton and Mooney, that gave them the idea of escaping in a boat being used by workmen repairing the dock. The fact that the runaways had a definite objective on the Brooklyn side of the river, and that some one was apparently waiting to assist them when they arrived, is the basis for this belief on the part of the authorities.

Major Campanole, in charge of the regular Saturday morning inspection, was asked yesterday concerning reports that he had ordered his men to refrain from shooting at the zig-zagging rowboat halfway across Buttermilk Channel.

"There was no question of shooting or not shooting," he said. "All we knew was that some prisoners had escaped. We did not know where or how at that time. There was no way of identifying one rowboat out in the stream among various other craft as that with the prisoners in it. I saw the boat, but did not learn until later that our men were in it."

GUNMEN KILL MAN AND PASSING WOMAN

HALF A DOZEN IN THE GANG

Stray Bullet Hits Other Victim in 107th Street — $3,000 Drugs Found on a Roof Near By.

Just as a man stepped from a tenement house at 310 East 107th Street into his automobile a few minutes after midnight a fusillade of shots came from the opposite side of the street. The man for whom the bullets were intended slumped forward in the seat of the car with two of them in his head. He died instantly. An Italian woman who was passing was shot through the back of the head and also killed.

Instantly the congested districts where the shooting ocurred was in a turmoil and in the excitement the men who did the shooting escaped.

The outgoing detail at the West 104th Street Police Station were just going on duty when word of the shooting was sent in. They were sent to the scene and with them went Acting Lieutenant of Detectives William J. Quaine and Captain Daniel Kerr.

Quaine recognized the dead man as Angelo Marino, 27 years old, of 186 East 111th Street, who he said was a bootlegger, peddler of narcotic drugs and ex-convict. The woman was not identified.

None of the many persons living in the tenement from which Marino stepped to his death would admit that Marino had visited there. A search of the building by the detectives, however, borught to light a shoe box on the roof, filled with narcotic drugs which the police estimated to be worth about $3,000.

The dead man had a $10 bill in his hand and the detectives believe he had gone into the tenement to make a drug sale.

It is thought that at least half a dozen men took part in the shooting. Several bullets struck the automobile. Two went through Marino's head. Examination of Marino's wounds indicated the gunmen must have stood slightly to the rear of the machine. The police say Marino recently was released from Sing Sing Prison after having served a sentence for burglary.

PANGALOS STRIVING TO WIN IN ASSEMBLY

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATHENS, June 28.—The Pangalos Cabinet was sworn in on Friday night, but several changes were necessary at the last moment as Rendis and Livathinoppoulos were unable to accept office owing to the decision of the Democratic Union, to which they belonged, not to collaborate with the new Government.

The outgoing Prime Minister, M. Michalakopoulos, according to custom, was present when General Pangalos was sworn in and congratulated him, whereupon Pangalos replied: "We shall work for the country." Michalakopoulos answered: "I do not contest your patriotism."

Pangalos said: "We do not deny you this, but do not agree with your methods."

Pangalos added he hoped the politicians would not create obstacles. Michalakopoulos replied: "You surely do not imagine we shall crown your work."

On the first day after the coup d'état General Pangalos, in various declarations and actions, appeared to be aiming at a dictatorship. He declared among other things that he recognized the right of the head of the State to invite M. Papanastasiou to form a new Cabinet. On the following day he described the action of the army and navy as "a pacific armed demonstration." He now is concentrating his efforts on obtaining a vote of confidence in the National Assembly, before which he makes his appearance as Prime Minister next Tuesday.

Although his own party contains only twenty Deputies, Pangalos hopes to gain a vote from the adherents of all parties. While a certain number of Deputies of other parties will support Pangalos it is not thought there will be enough of them to secure a majority for the Government and the passing of the sought-for vote of confidence.

TEACHERS TO RESUME FIGHT FOR MORE PAY

Checked by Gov. Smith, They Now Will Appeal to the Municipal Assembly.

New York City teachers, checked in their attempt to get increased salaries by Governor Smith's veto of the Kleinfeld-Ricca bill, will carry their fight directly to the Board of Estimate next month, William R. Lasher of Erasmus High School, Chairman of the Joint Salary Committee, representing sixty-three teachers' organizations, announced yesterday.

Mr. Lasher said the teachers would first present their demands to the Budget Committee of the Board of Estimate, and would then go to the Board of Estimate and the Board of Aldermen, the two branches of the Municipal Assembly. In vetoing the Kleinfeld-Ricca bill Governor Smith said he considered the increase of teachers' salaries to be a matter to be passed on by the city authorities rather than the State.

"Many of the teachers are adverse to calling the proposed legislation a salary increase," Mr. Lasher said. "They say its purpose is to equalize the unit of the value of today with that of ten years ago. Their desire is to have their salaries today approximate the purchasing power of their 1914 salaries."

W. J. M'CAHILL DIES, STRUCK BY A TRAIN

WIFE IS SEVERELY INJURED

Mr. McCahill 41 Years With This Newspaper In Charge of Wall Street Market Tables.

William J. McCahill, 72 years old, of 635 East Twenty-first Street, Brooklyn, was killed instantly, and his wife, Mrs. Alida McCahill, 58 years old, severely injured, shortly before 8 o'clock last night when they stepped into the path of an express train on the Long Island Railroad at St. Albans, L. I.

Mr. McCahill was a member of the staff of THE NEW YORK TIMES. He joined it forty-one years ago and was one of its oldest employes in point of service. During all his service he was in charge of the Wall Street market tables, and in that capacity became widely known throughout the financial district as a statistician.

Early yesterday morning he and Mrs. McCahill went out to the St. Albans Golf Club. Mr. McCahill was a charter member of the club and for years almost his sole recreation had been golf. He spent the day on the links and when he came in around 5 o'clock he and Mrs. McCahill chatted with friends in the clubhouse.

After spending several hours in the clubhouse and on the lawn, they started back to Brooklyn. They tried to take the 7:41 P. M. local into Jamaica. As the local pulled into the St. Albans station, Mr. and Mrs. McCahill reached the tracks. They found the gate down. The exit from the grounds of the St. Albans club opens on a pathway alongside the westbound tracks, and a picket fence, with a gate, usually prevents persons from entering upon the tracks at that point.

In order to reach the local it would have been necessary for Mr. McCahill to walk some distance beside the tracks or else go around the end of the train, which extended down beyond the end of the fence. Apparently he decided that the quicker way would be to go around the end of the waiting train.

The express, an electric train of five coaches, had left Jamaica shortly before and was traveling at a good speed as it neared St. Albans, bound for Babylon. It was in charge of Conductor Wilfred D. Collins and Motorman Lester Taft, both of Babylon.

Mr. and Mrs. McCahill stepped from the rear of the local and were struck. Mr. McCahill caught the full force of the express, but Mrs. McCahill, who was slightly behind her husband, was struck only a glancing blow. Mr. McCahill was thrown to the opposite side of the track, rolling into a ditch.

Motorman Taft, who had applied his brakes as soon as the couple came into view, stopped his train quickly. He, the conductor and many passengers ran back. Meanwhile, men on the platform of the station had carried Mrs. McCahill to the platform and physicians were called.

Policeman Toomey of the Jamaica Station, on duty near by, notified his precinct and an ambulance from the Jamaica Hospital in charge of Dr. Courtner arrived. Dr. Courtner declared Mr. McCahill's death had been instantaneous. Mrs. McCahill, who was unconscious, was taken to Jamaica Hospital, where a preliminary examination disclosed that she had a broken left elbow. Dr. William M. Guilfoyle, Medical Examiner of Queens, and Assistant District Attorney Thornton visited the scene of the accident. Mr. McCahill's body was taken to Simonson's Morgue, Ninety-sixth Street and 101st Avenue, Ozone Park, L. I. Mr. Thornton began an investigation, and directed that the motorman and conductor of the express report at the Jamaica Police Station after completing the run to Babylon.

Detectives Mangan and O'Brien of the Jamaica precinct were assigned to aid Assistant District Attorney Thornton in investigating whether negligence had contributed to Mr. McCahill's death.

When Mr. McCahill first entered the employ of THE TIMES in 1884 he compiled the market statistics unaided. Despite his years he was active, and was at his desk at 165 Broadway in THE TIMES Financial Bureau every day.

Besides golf, Mr. McCahill had another major interest—amateur theatricals. He participated in the productions of the Brooklyn Institute Players at the Academy of Music. He was a member of the Crescent Athletic Club of Brooklyn.

Mrs. McCahill's condition was reported as good last night.

operators to establish real wages and working conditions in the industry." The program calls for the establishment of the six-hour day and five-day week, minimum wages of $10 a day, unemployment benefits to be paid out of profits and a yearly agreement in the anthracite and bituminous fields.

The Communist program also asks that the tri-district convention go on record as favoring a "fighting alliance" between the miners and the transportation workers, the amalgamation of the craft union into an Industrial union, support of the Russian attempt to form all world unions "into one great international" organization, the nationalization of mines, recognition of Soviet Russia, freeing of "class war prisoners," condemnation of the Dawes plan and of military training camps.

Delegates who arrived with the leaflet said that Thomas Myerscough, self-styled leader of the "progressive miners," was seen recently in the southern section of the hard coal fields and that later the circulars appeared. Myerscough was expelled from the union in 1922 on the ground that he had arranged for several local unions to go back to work during a strike at reduced wages.

The demands of the "progressive miners" are divided into three categories, wages and hours, strengthening of the union and general political demands.

Under "wages and hours" the demand is made for a minimum wage of $10 a day for men working at the face and $7.50 for day labor, the six-hour day and five-day week, increase of $2 a day for all inside and outside day labor and that all coal shall be mined on a tonnage basis.

Government relief for the unemployed is advocated and the campaign for such relief, it is said, "shall be based on the principle of full wages for the unemployed." The relief shall be paid "out of profits." Demand is made for the reinstatement of discharged mine leaders, including Alexander Howat, Myerscouch, Jim MacLachlin and others.

Against La Follette Movement.

Under "General Political Demands," the document calls for a labor party and repudiates "the so-called La Follette Progressive movement, which is devoted tot the interests of the middle class business elements and large farmers, which cannot serve as the party of the workers."

Alleging that private ownership of the mines "has become an intolerable curse to the miners" and that it "must be abolished." The program demands "the nationalization of the mines with workers' control of industry."

The Dawes plan is condemned as "enslaving the German workers," and it is asserted that it will mean a reduction of the standards of living "of the working class all over the world." The program calls for "a real fighting alliance between the men who dig coal and those who haul it. This must not be an agreement to pass resolutions of sympathy to each other in times of trial and struggle, but an agreement to actively aid each other by striking in support of each others demands."

Labor banking, the Baltimore & Ohio plan of collaborating between employers and employes, insurance schemes and similar ideas are lumped together as "class collaboration" which "is a policy of surrender," and it is charged that labor banks as now organized practically make capitalists out of the handfull of officials who control them.

Leaders of the miners are not worried by the appeal to the communist elements in the organization. They are of the opinion that nobody will be found among the 700 delegates to present the demands to the committee that will draw up the demands that are to be served on the operators. The present agreement expires Aug. 31, and the demands will probably be presented to the operators the latter part of next week at Atlantic City.

SUGGESTS COMMISSION TO NATIONALIZE COAL

League for Industrial Democracy Would Unite the Industry With Superpower.

Special to The New York Times.

BUSHKILL, Pa., June 28.—After adopting resolutions advocating the nationalization of the coal mining industry of the country and coupling the idea with the proposed superpower system throughout the United States, the annual June conference of the League for Industrial Democracy closed today at Camp Tamiment. The league will establish a commission of experts to endeavor to work out means of accomplishing this and to press the matter in a legislative way.

An insight into the operation of the superpower system that is expected eventually to weave its network of lines over the Eastern States was given by Judson C. Dickerman, director of the Giant Power Survey of Pennsylvania. The Giant Power plant is a carefully considered program to prevent enormous possible losses through mistakes, waste and profit grabbing practices in the development of superpower. It does this by encouraging the development of the industry by reasonable honest private initiative along socially valuable lines, said Mr. Dickerman.

To support this conclusion Mr. Dickerman asserted that electric power in its modern development is bringing about a second industrial revolution. He discussed three possible methods of development: First, control through out and out public ownership; second, absolute independence of Government control, which he said was unthinkable; third, some form of special regulation.

Already in one electric system, Mr. Dickerman said, one dispatcher directs and controls the distribution of electric energy to consumers of four States.

Replying to the statements of Arthur Williams, Vice President of the New York Edison Company, who defended private ownership of public utilities in a debate Saturday evening with Morris Hillquit, James Simpson, Vice President of the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress, denied emphatically that Ontario electric rates are higher than those in New York City.

2 POLICE RESERVISTS ARRESTED AS THIEVES

Flash Badges in Vain When Two Detectives Seize Them With Sacks of Sugar.

Lieutenant William Ott and Sergeant Andrew Brockhoff of the Police Reserves, and August Stein, a watchman at the Federal Food Stores warehouse at 38 Ross Street, Brooklyn, were arrested last night charged with the theft of eight 100-pound bags of sugar from the warehouse. Forty more 100-pound bags of sugar were found in an apartment at 658 Wythe Avenue, Brooklyn, where the prisoners were arrested, the police said.

Detectives Thomas J. Curley and Joseph Menahan of the Clymer Street Precinct, to which Ott and Brockhoff were attached as reservists, saw a taxicab apparently heavily laden leave the warehouse. They entered another taxicab and followed to the Wythe Street address. There they saw two men take eight bags from the taxicab to the second floor of the house. Curley and Menahan entered the apartment and accosted the men.

"We're police officers," said Ott, displaying his shield.

"So are we," said Curley. He placed Ott and Brockhoff under arrest.

After Ott and Brockhoff had been questioned at the Clymer Street Police Station detectives arrested Stein at the warehouse. Ott is alleged to have said that he understood Stein was owed $1,500 by the Federal Food Stores. All three men were locked up, charged with petit larceny.

William R. Bayes, receiver for the stores, identified the forty-eight bags of sugar as the property of the stores. Two patrol wagons took the sugar from the apartment. Eight bags were taken to the police station as evidence and the remainder to the warehouse.

Ott is 30 years old and lives at 658 Wythe Avenue, Brooklyn. Brockhoff is 53 and lives at 47 Ross Street, Brooklyn.

SHEPHERD WILL SUE FOR SLANDER DAMAGES

Wants to Clear His Name, He Says, and Reveal "Plot" That Sought to Ruin Him.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 28.—William Darling Shepherd is going to hit back. The man who was tried and found not guilty of the murder of his wife's former foster son, William N. McClintock, said today that he had determined to make some one pay for his three months' imprisonment in the county jail and plans civil action.

Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal Court, Alexander F. Reichmann and John H. S. Lee are to be named in the action, it is said, and will be charged with libel, slander, vicious prosecution and false imprisonment.

William Scott Stewart and W. W. O'Brien, who piloted Shepherd through the criminal trial, are preparing this suit, to be filed within a few days, it was said. The damages have not yet been specified, but Shepherd is said to have determined that whatever money is obtained will be given to some charitable institution.

It was said Shepherd wanted to clear his name as well as to wreak vengeance on the men who, he says, entered into a plot to ruin him and take from him the $1,000,000 McClintock bequeathed to him. Since the first hint of an accusation was made against him Shepherd has stoutly maintained that Judge Olson was inspired by malice rather than a desire to aid justice.

Judge Olson termed himself "counsel for the dead" when he acted for the prosecutor at the inquest wherein a verdict was reached holding Shepherd responsible for the murder of Mrs. Emma Nelson McClintock as well as that of Billy McClintock. Shepherd claims that Judge Olson began that "prosecution" without one scintilla of evidence to back it up.

AGED MAN KILLED BY TRAIN

Tries to Cross Track at Mariner's Harbor, Staten Island.

Andrew J. Scott, 64 years old, of 1,767 Townsend Avenue, the Bronx, was struck by a train of the Staten Island Rapid Transit Company at Mariner's Harbor last night. He died two hours later in St. Vincent's Hospital, West New Brighton.

According to the police, Scott attempted to cross the tracks at the Mariner's Harbor station, although the steam train was approaching. Apparently he misjudged the speed of the train and was struck. He was tossed to one side of the track, and failed to regain consciousness before death.

BACKS HYLAN'S NOMINATION

Seven Years of Progress Alliance Asks Democrats to Name Him.

Resolutions were adopted yesterday by the Executive Committee of the Hylan Seven Years of Progress Alliance urging the renomination of Mayor Hylan by the Democratic Party at a meeting in his headquarters at the Hotel Cadillac. Copies of the resolutions will be sent to George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany, and John H. McCooey of Brooklyn. Sheriff Edward J. Flynn of the Bronx, Borough President Maurice E. Connolly of Queens, and David S. Rendt of Richmond, the Democratic leaders in the other four boroughs of the city.

Thomas C. Burke reported that he expected to have an organization of independent Democrats in every Assembly district to support Mayor Hylan. It also was proposed to challenge Controller Charles L. Craig, a frequent critic of the Mayor, to a debate in the Town Hall with a speaker to be named by the alliance. The alliance reiterated its intention to inform the voters of Mayor Hylan's achievements through the World's Pictorial Service, recently organized by Francis C. Harley, former Mayor of Astoria, Ore.

CUT IN TARIFF RATES OPPOSED BY GREEN

Ways and Means Committee Chairman Says European Pressure Must Be Resisted

AS WELL AS DEMANDS HERE

Revenue Under Present Law Is Put at Double That Produced by Former Measures.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Any pressure by European nations to obtain a reduction in the tariff rates so that a more productive market would be opened up here for the products of nations which are heavily indebted to the United States should be disregarded, W. R. Green, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, said today.

This is the committee in which the tariff legislation originates, and the statement by Mr. Green attracted no little interest, particularly as his viewpoint squares with that of President Coolidge.

Mr. Green expressed the opinion that it was best to "let well enough alone" in connection with proposals for tariff revision in the Congress which assembles in December. An analysis of the situation, he said, showed that importations were heavy under the present rates and that the revenue received by the Government was more than twice the sum obtained under any previous tariff law in normal times.

"The proceedings of the Brussels meeting of the International Chamber of Commerce show very clearly that Europe intends to bring every possible pressure upon the United States to lower its tariffs, the claim being made that Europe will not be able to pay its debts to us unless this is done," said Mr. Green.

"On the other hand, there is an insistent demand in this country that the tariff be raised with respect to certain industries, for which the claim is set up that they are not sufficiently protected. There is also a demand in certain quarters for revision downward of the tariff for the same reason as was given at the Brussels meeting.

"I do not consider the claims made at the Brussels conference well founded. Balances between two nations are not necessarily settled on the basis of the balance of trade between them alone, for one of the two may have a favorable balance with a third nation to which the other, on the contrary, is indebted, and a settlement can thus be made among the three.

"When considering the demands of certain industries for an advance it will be found that it is practically impossible to revise the rates of our tariff as to these industries without taking all into consideration and making a general revision. It ought to be remembered that a general revision of the tariff in what is called the off-year, that is, between Presidential elections, has always proved disastrous politically to the party that undertook it, with a result that it has lost the House at the next election.

"The present tariff has worked well and has not unduly restricted our buying or selling, for our exports and imports are both more than twice the value of what they were before the war and in quantity they largely exceed the amount of that period. The revenue brought in by the present law is more than twice that produced by any other in normal times. Why not let well enough alone?"

The opinion pretty generally held in political circles here is that the Administration will take a stand against tariff revision in the next Congress and be strong enough to defeat any efforts to obtain action along such lines.

PARIS PAPER URGES DEBT NEGOTIATION

Says France Has Greatest Interest in Taking Up Matter at Once.

PARIS, June 28 (A).—The Petit Parisien, commenting on the interallied debts, will say tomorrow:

"The time has come to to take up the debt situation with the United States. A personality recently come from America has even told us that the time has not been more favorable in several years; therefore we should profit thereby and not expose ourselves by an attitude contrasting with that of our Italian, Belgian and Czechoslovakian friends, to render more bitter a discussion which will in itself be delicate enough."

The paper enumerates the following reasons for the delicacy of the discussions:

"Our figures and those of the American Treasury do not agree. We are in the grip of grave financial difficulties and it is shocking to our spirit of justice, after the enormous losses suffered and the sacrifices agreed on as to reparations due by Germany, to see ourselves asked for the capital and interest on the money spent entirely in the United States to pay for merchandise and material necessary for the fighters.

"These sentimental arguments, which today are valueless, can acquire some value only when presented over the conference table, and if we frankly accept the debate. Let us seize upon the occasion, because it means definitely only the consolidation of our debt and not its immediate reimbursement."

The Petit Parisien declares that Mr. Kellogg, Secretary of State, "despite all contradictions, last month expressed an unequivocal desire to see us make a decision before the middle of July." Therefore, it adds, "whatever difficulty may present itself, the Minister of Finance must gird himself for the task and bring to a practical basis the conversations which heretofore have been almost exclusively academic. Our country has the greatest interest in not postponing the discussion longer."

The newspaper is emphatic that it is only in clearing up the situation, "in ridding ourselves of this incessant menace, that we will be able in the economic field to stabilize our exchange and politically to recover our liberty of action."

The Petit Parisien understands that the Coolidge Administration intends to present before Congress in December a preiso arrangement regarding the debts and adds:

"If we can help the Administration in this, Mr. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, who understands our difficulties and is animated by the best disposition toward us, will be even more amenable to the arguments of our delegates."

AGAINST COLLEGE INQUIRY.

Committee Would Shelve Charges of Thiel College President.

ERIE, Pa., June 28 (AP).—A special committee recommended yesterday to the Pittsburgh Synod of the United Lutheran Church, in session here, that no investigation be made at this time of allegations by Dr. Carl Sundberg, President of Thiel College, Greenville, Pa., against trustees of the institution.

Dr. Sundberg, who tendered his resignation some time ago, made his accusations and when he concluded a committee was appointed to investigate. He said that five of the college trustees had voted themselves honorary degrees and that special funds had been used as part of the general fund.

The committee, in urging inaction at this time, said it "acknowledged common error on the part of the board and the President."

They are bewitching shades exclusively Peck & Peck, but may be had in all types of Peck & Peck's fine stockings, including the Princess at $3, the Queen Victoria at $5, and the Empress at $6.

HIT BORAH'S STAND ON THE WORLD COURT

Thirteen Americans, Headed by Gen. O'Ryan, Accuse Him of Trying to Prevent Our Joining

BY URGING A SUBSTITUTE

His Plan Declared Valueless Because Senate Won't Pass It Nor Other Nations Accept It.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—In a letter sent to Chairman Borah and other members of the Committee on Foreign Relations, signed by thirteen prominent Americans, Senator Borah is taken to task for his attitude toward President Coolidge's recommendation that the United States give its adherence to the World Court of Justice set up by the League of Nations at The Hague. Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, who commanded the New York National Guard division in the World War, heads the list of signers.

Senator Borah is accused, in effect, of endeavoring to prevent American participation in the World Court by proposing that a new tribunal of international justice, divorced from the League of Nations, be built upon the structure of the existing Permanent Court of International Arbitration at The Hague.

The signers of the letter contend that even if the Senate, by a "miracle," should ratify the Borah proposal, other nations affiliated with the existing World Court would not consent to the change proposed by the Senate.

The letter to be presented to members of the Foreign Relations Committee is dated June 29 because it is the intention of those signing it to have it presented to Senator Borah tomorrow. Whether he will be able to receive it then is problematical, as Mr. Borah is leaving the city tomorrow for an absence of several months in the West.

Text of the Letter.

Sirs:

Recent public expressions from the Chairman and other members of your committee in opposition to the adherence of the United States to the Permanent Court of International Justice upon the basis of the proposals of Presidents Harding and Coolidge, endorsed in the national platforms of both the Republican and Democratic parties, prompt the writing of this letter.

A letter by Professor Irving Fisher in reply to the recent address in Boston by your Chairman is worthy of your thoughtful consideration.

It recites that the foes (he might have said the few remaining foes) of the World Court "are moving heaven and earth to defeat it by the old device of proposing an impossible substitute." Its foes "defeated the League by offering a league, the result being no league at all." You are now trying to defeat the court by offering a court, the result of which can only be no court at all. You propose that we join instead the so-called "permanent Court of International Arbitration at The Hague," but there is no such thing as any real permanent court of international arbitration at The Hague. It is a misnomer, in fact only a list of names on paper, a panel of 135 men, none of them at The Hague, but scattered all over the globe practicing law at home and have not in the twenty-five years of that body's nominal existence been assembled in any one place either at The Hague or anywhere else. They have no court organization, no court statutes, no salaries, no sessions, no anything else except a high sounding name given this list by The Hague Conference which created this list of umpires because it could not get a real court. The panel has not been used once a year in the quarter century of its existence. Will the people allow a few irreconcilable opponents to thwart them by the offer of an impossible substitute? What object can there be in the proposal except to block the only way left for our country to cooperate in world peace.

From an entirely different angle, Dr. Manley O. Hudson of the Harvard Law School has demonstrated the baselessness of the premises and the falsity of the conclusions of the Boston address.

Dissent on Value of Plan.

But putting aside further debate, there are acid tests that make argument superfluous by a determination of the real value of your proposal, upon the assumption that it is offered with a sincere desire to associate the United States with other nations in the assurance of international justice and peace. They are stated in the following questions: Is there the slightest reason to believe that your proposal could receive the two-thirds Senate vote necessary to make it effective? You must know there is not. But if the miracle could happen and the Senate ratify the proposal, is there the slightest reason to believe that the forty-eight or more nations now associated in the existing World Court would forsake the judicial ship in which they are now contentedly sailing the international seas and come into a resurrected and hitherto useless hulk if we should salvage it and put it afloat? Or would they, if we invite them into a new one, be it ever so good?

Very truly yours,

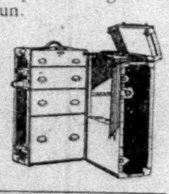
The Pilgrim Fathers Land—Bag and Baggage

"Oh," panted John and Henry, as with one last pull they got Priscilla's box ashore "that was a heavy one. What on earth have you got in it?" "Just your extra clothes, boys," replied Priscilla sweetly.

Priscilla's box was typical of those brought over by the Pilgrims—a sturdy, much studded, sea chest of pine wood. The Pilgrims also brought with them capacious bags made of heavy ribbed homespun.



Priscilla would have appreciated a trunk like this McCreery Blue Seal wardrobe. The exterior is made of the specially treated canvas which usually goes only into most expensive trunks, and the trunk is practically dustproof and waterproof. 69.95

CROWD OF 1,000 IN CHASE

A thousand persons joined the pursuit of Russell Barnes yesterday after he had attempted to hold up a cigar store at 2,199 Broadway. He was finally cornered in the hallway of an apartment house at 45 Riverside Drive by two policemen who had led the chase in a commandeered taxicab.

Barnes, 28 years old, an Englishman, who said he lived at 519 West 128th Street, walked into the Schulte store and asked the clerk, David Meyer, for a package of cigarettes. Barnes said later he had spent several sleepless nights worrying over the financial plight of his family in England, and finally decided to try a hold-up to get money for them.

Meyer searched under the counter for the cigarettes Barnes had asked for and encountered some difficulty in finding the particular brand. Barnes anticipated this, for he had formerly been employed by the Schulte Company. When Meyer finally got the ones wanted and stood up he looked into the muzzle of a pistol.

It was only a toy gun, it developed, but Meyer did not know that. It looked ugly to him, and he promptly complied with the order to hand over his money, which amounted to $77, and walked into the rear room. Just as Meyer disappeared, a customer entered the store. Barnes sauntered back of the counter and the newcomer specified the cigars he desired. As Meyer had had trouble finding Barnes's cigarettes, so te tyro bandit experienced difficulty in finding the cigars.

After looking high and low Barnes summoned Meyers and whispered a warning to him. As Meyers pretended to search for the cigars, Barnes became alarmed and dashed from the store.

Meyer and the customer followed him. Their shouts drew a crowd and the fleeing man ran faster. Barnes dashed up to Seventy-seventh Street and then headed west toward Riverside Drive. Policemen John Hardiman and James Gallagher jumped into a taxicab and got to the Drive in time to see the man run into the hallway of an apartment house.

According to the policemen, Barnes pulled two gimlets from his pocket when they confronted him. He was overpowered. The revolver proved to be a glass toy.

DENIES HONDURAN REVOLT.

Foreign Minister Says General Tosta Has Put Down Indian Trouble.

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP).—Reports indicating the possibility of a revolt in Honduras by General Vincente Tosta, Minister of War and Marine of that nation, were declared unfounded today in a dispatch from the Honduran Minister of Foreign Affairs to Luis Bogran the Honduran Minister.

"Contradict categorically, in principal papers," the message directed, "that General Tosta has rebelled. He has not rebelled and has overpowered the Intibucan faction. News of disturbances in other parts of the country is false."

Mr. Bogran said the Honduran situation which gave rise to the reports was brought about by "emigrados" from Guatemala who entered the Honduran district of Copan and surprised a garrison of thirty men.

"Government troops," he asserted, "were sent there but the emigrados retreated without fighting. The Indians of Intibucan, however, whose sympathy for General Ferrera is played upon by the Reds, started a faction in Intibuca which was promptly overpowered by General Tosta. This disturbance did not meet response in any other part of the country."

MISS FONTAINE WON'T TELL.

Dodges Inquiry as to How She Can Sue Whitney Again.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 28.—"They said I could not bring the suit again. I told them I could and would. The suit has been filed and that's all I can say now."

This was the answer today of Evan Burrows Fontaine, dancer, who has instituted a third suit for breach of promise against Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney in White Plains, N. Y., although at the dismissal of a previous suit a Federal Judge issued an order prohibiting her from ever renewing the action. Miss Fontaine, who is dancing at a Boardwalk cabaret, is living at 9 North Newark Avenue, Ventnor City, with her young son, who, she has alleged, is the child of Whitney.

BRINDELL FACTION IN UNION DEFEATED

made by Mr. Johnson sent to the Parole Board by Mr. Untermyer when the State Board of Parole asked Mr. Untermyer to furnish definite charges on which the Parole Board could make an investigation.

Mr. Johnson in his affidavit told of having seen Brindell last January, two or three weeks after Brindell was released from prison. He said he went to see Brindell at the latter's suggestion at Brindell's home at 1,890 Lyle Avenue, the Bronx.

"He asked me to go along with him and adopt his suggestions and follow out orders in the union, and said that I would be very well taken care of," read the affidavit.

The affidavit further set forth that Brindell tried to induce Johnson to have the headquarters of the union moved back to its old headquarters, 12 St. Mark's Place, a building held in Mrs. Brindell's name, and that Johnson refused to do so because he said it would not be consistent with his first step in causing the union to move away from that address.

According to the affidavit, Brindell talked of how much money there was to be made and of "how the dock unions belonged to him." The affidavit further read:

Promised More Pay, He Said.

"I refuted his arguments with arguments of my own. He told me that he intended to have the Dock Union back as his own and was going to run it as he had been doing. He made several promises that I would get an increase in wages of $25 a week and a three-year term, and that I could run the union without any opposition if I would take his orders."

Johnson stated that when Brindell failed to regain control of the Dock Union by direct methods he organized the "Dock Builders Old Timers Social Club," with a membership card similar to the card of the union. Johnson alleged that Brindell urged members of the club to pay their union dues so that they would be in good standing and could vote in the union.

When friends of Brindell met a crushing defeat last January in their effort to restore Brindell to good standing in the Dock Builders Union, Johnson announced that any further move to rehabilitate Brindell would be resisted with the backing of almost every one of the 2,500 members of the union.

URGES NON-ZIONISTS ON PALESTINE BOARD

Louis Lipsky Asks American Organization to Support Extension of Jewish Agency.

WEIZMANN MESSAGE READ

Counselor of British Embassy Predicts That Governmental Difficulties Will Be Overcome.

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP).—Cooperation of all Jews, whether Zionist or non-Zionist, in the upbuilding of Palestine as a Jewish homeland was urged by Louis Lipsky of New York, Chairman, in his opening address today at the annual convention of the Zionist Organization of America.

To this end, Mr. Lipsky said, the delegates should strongly support the proposal for extension of the Jewish agency provided by the Palestine mandate to cooperate in the Palestine movement to include both Zionists and non-Zionists. The World Zionist Organization is now designated as the agency, and the question of changing the basis of its membership to include half Zionists and half non-Zionists is to come up for final action at the Vienna World Zionist Congress in August.

The Chairman's views on the question supported the position of Dr. Chaim Weizmann, President of the World Zionists, who sent a message to the convention urging extension of the agency and declaring Jews throughout the world were closely watching to see what action American Zionists would take on the question. The message also expressed confidence that Lord Plumer, the recently appointed High Commissioner for Palestine, would "faithfully observe the letter and spirit of the mandate."

Describing the work of the new Jewish settlers in Palestine since the war, Mr. Lipsky declared they have "made a land unloved and disused, that had been treated as if God's curse rested upon it, into a land that begins to shower blessings upon those who labor upon it."

The convention heard a report from Colonel Frederick H. Kisch of the Palestine Zionist Executive showing that with the Jewish population in Palestine 116,000 already having doubled since the war, the migration of Jews there now has increased to more than 2,000 a month.

Greater credit facilities to relieve an acute land and housing crisis resulting from the rapid Jewish influx was declared by Colonel Kisch to be one of the chief needs of Palestine, although the situation was being improved, he said, by an increase in the number of more prosperous settlers.

Although expressing gratification at the general progress achieved in Palestine in the past year, the annual report of the Administrative Committee of the organization regarded the "slow pace" of the British mandate authorities in certain administrative matters as having tended to "disturb the development of normal conditions."

Messages were read from a number of other Zionist leaders throughout the world, including Professor Albert Einstein of Berlin and Philip Guedalla, President of the English Zionist Federation.

J. Boyce Broderick, Counselor of the British Embassy, in conveying to the convention the greetings of Ambassador Howard, who is in England, declared Great Britian can be relied upon to carry out fully its pledge to re-establish the Jewish homeland in Palestine.

While there may be a "natural sense of impatience that events do not march more rapidly in Palestine," he said, in view of what has been accomplished in the last few years, such impatience is "really not justified by the facts."

"I feel confident," Mr. Broderick added, "that the difficulties which naturally present themselves to the accomplishment of all you desire will be quickly overcome. At all events, I may say that, in so far as the British Government can accomplish that, they will be quickly overcome."

FAST ENGINE LEAVES RAILS.

CUMBERLAND, Ind., June 28 (AP).—While running nearly sixty miles an hour, the locomotive and tender of "The American," fast New York-to-St. Louis train of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was derailed near here shortly before noon today.

The engine, drawing a long train of passenger coaches laden with delegates to the National Education Association meeting, which opened here today, left the rails, jumped outside the tracks and plowed up a number of ties. No one was hurt, and the train continued to St. Louis after about an hour's delay.

United States laws if they intend to settle in the country.

Thirty-five members of the immigration staff of all ranks have been sent away since the beginning of this year and the remainder do not think there will be any difficulty in handling the work under the regulations which came into force on July 1, 1924.

Previous to that date the various steamships were waiting in Gravesend Bay filled with immigrants and jockeying for position to be first over the imaginary line into Quarantine at the hour of midnight, Eastern Standard Time, on June 30. The rush of immigrants was so great then that nine nationalities had their quotas filled for the ensuing year before 4 P. M. on July 3.

Under the regulation which came into force on July 1, 1924, not more than ten per cent. of the annual quota of immigrants can enter the country in any single month. In addition the Immigration Commissioner, Henry H. Curran, made a ruling that the steamships arriving after midnight on June 30 should leave Gravesend Bay on a ten minutes' headway, so that there would be no chance of any confusion liable to cause an accident.

All went well last year, the immigration officials said yesterday, and they have no reason to expect any difficulty on Wednesday. There are thousands of aliens waiting in all parts of Europe to come over and in some countries, including Great Britain, the quota for 1926 has been exhausted for the last three months.

Steamship agents at ports on the other side will not permit an alien to embark for the United States unless the Consul's visa has been stamped on the passport. The Consuls have been instructed by the State Department not to issue in any one month more than 10 per cent. of the annual quota of each country. Some of the immigrants due to arrive here next Wednesday on the Assyria, United States, De Grasse and other liners have been waiting for eighteen months to get into this country. Another 600 are due to arrive on Thursday on the Columbus of the North German Lloyd from Germany and the Red Star liner Lapland from Antwerp. The Cunarder Berengaria from Southampton and Cherbourg and the George Washington from Bremen are due on July 3 with another batch of immigrants. In July, 1923, from 1,700 to 2,000 immigrants visited Ellis Island daily and nearly as many had to be accommodated at night. There is room for 700 there now exclusive of the hospital, and the work of examining the aliens is carried on without confusion or delay in any department.

So far Commissioner Curran has not received any reply to his suggestion made to the Secretary of Labor at Washington a week ago that immigrants arriving in the second class or cabin of the Atlantic liners should go to Ellis Island for examination, the same as those in the steerage.

LEST MR. COOLIDGE become too economical in the matter of clothes, we must remind him of a painful incident in the career of the late Grover Cleveland.

President Cleveland was in Denver. So was John L. Sullivan. The local Democrats thought it would be a great idea to have the President shake hands with the Champion—the fraternal ceremonies to take place on the hotel balcony.

THOUSANDS swarmed in the street. The band played "See the Conquering Hero Comes". John L., panoplied with the splendor of a circus elephant, stepped out and greeted the throng.

Applause! Cheers! Hurray for John L.!

Sullivan grasped the President's hand, patted him on the back, and drew him up to the balcony railing.

The cheering still went on.

Finally, someone stopped long enough to inquire—"Say, who is that other guy?"

"Him?" replied his neighbor, glancing at the President, "Him? Why, that's John L.'s trainer!"

IN THE Army, we called him Dirty Joe. He was the most untidy man on the Western front. He was muddy when there was no mud. His spiral leggings were always unwrapping themselves and dragging behind him. The ribbon of his Croix de Guerre was stained with candle wax and the juice of tinned salmon. He was Dirty Joe . . . .

He came in to see us, the other day. At first, we took him for the Prince of Wales.

"Do you know" he remarked, as he flicked a speck of dust from his mouse-grey coat sleeve—"I've hunted all over town, but I can't find any place that can touch Brokaw's for white linen spats?"

An Eskimo Romance.

KIVALINA OF THE ICE LANDS, with the cast of Eskimos including Kivalina, Agguvaluk, Nashalik, Tookatoo and Nuwak; scenes take in the villages Koogalook and Tavik, produced by Earl Rossman; overture, "Indian Sketches," Joseph Plunkett's presentation, "Russian Exotic," with singing and dancing; "Ko-Ko Celebrates the Fourth," a Fleischer "Inkwell" novelty; special prologue; a Harold Lloyd revival, "Never Weaken." At the Mark Strand.

As an antidote to the sultry weather, "Kivalina of the Ice Lands," the principal attraction at the Mark Strand this week, undoubtedly served a purpose yesterday, as for more than an hour one felt all the cooler for centring one's attention upon a frozen background with scenes of the "restless Arctic Ocean, silenced by the grip of the deadly Winter." This film was produced by Earl Rossman, who has succeeded in making an informing and interesting effort. It, however, melts into mediocrity when compared with Robert J. Flaherty's masterpiece, "Nanook of the North," which was presented at the Capitol three years ago.

We are informed that in producing this new Eskimo picture Mr. Rossman endured the hardships of life in the Northern regions for approximately two years. An important result of Mr. Rossman's earnest efforts are two prismatic sequences of the majestic aurora borealis, which are impressive in spite of being all too short to give one a really comprehensive pictorial conception of this stirring phenomenon. There are the shooting lights and the giant rays of gold, green and red streaking up from what appears to be the other side of the world, looking like a blurred and constantly moving rainbow of vast proportions.

The producer claims that this is the first colored motion picture taken of the northern lights. In these stretches there is the occasional fringing which causes one to wonder whether the colors are as true as they might be.

Mr. Rossman has endeavored to increase the interest in this Arctic film by an Eskimo romance in which the hero accepts an appalling task from the Witch Doctor, one Nashulik. Aguvaluk, this gallant lover of Kivalina, is told that he must bring the wizened old Witch Doctor forty seals so that his father's spirit will rest in peace. The courageous Aguvaluk goes forth to bring back what is needed so that he may wed Kivalina, and through his adventures one has an insight into the colorless existence of the Eskimos. They are seen protecting themselves from a wicked wind by building a wall of great slabs of ice. The thousands of reindeer are driven into this Arctic camp and the unperturbed denizens of the North proceed to construct the comfortless igloos of blocks of snow and ice. The dogs are seen blinking as they squat, obviously eager for protection against the blizzard. Never have they known the comfort of a hearthrug before an open fire.

One has a glimpse in another stretch of a so-called village "sprawled on the edge of a frozen ocean." Yet these stoics of the North make the most of their lives, Mr. Rossman shows us what one might allude to as their Derby. Here one sees them in groups watching the reindeer, attached to sleds, racing.

There are hard, glum Eskimo countenances, others that now and again light up with a flicker of a smile, and still others that appear quite contented. The grimness of the life stirs one, as for months these folks have no color on which to gaze. There are only the bleak, boundless wilds of snow and ice.

Aguvaluk is seen busy spearing a seal. Actually there is not much of this business, as no sooner has Mr. Rossman depicted the hero killing one of these animals than follows a scene in which he has the quota of forty. He hastens back to the old parchment-faced Witch Doctor, who strikes one as an old villain. Aguvaluk is told that it is all very well to bring the forty seals, but how about the interest? His father's spirit cannot rest until that is paid. What is the interest? It is that Aguvaluk at the most difficult season of the year must bring a silver fox. Thereupon ensues the hero's adventures in finding and killing the silver fox.

One of the most stirring chapters is where Aguvaluk is caught in a terrific blizzard, and to save himself he has to construct an igloo in great haste. One perceives here that by the time the camera man starts to turn his crank Aguvaluk has already prepared several blocks of snow and that his cutting them out with a small knife is but a perfunctory action. Mr. Rossman later shows Aguvaluk crawling out of the top of his igloo, which is completely covered by the deep snow.

It strikes one that even a sticky day in New York is better than camping on the edge of a frozen ocean. There is a deal to be learned from this picture, and much credit is due Mr. Rossman for his courage and energy in putting forth such a production. That he had to follow a veritable masterpiece on the same subject does not diminish the sterling worth of parts of this effort.

The Crafty Wife.

GROUNDS FOR DIVORCE, with Florence Vidor, Matt Moore, Harry Meyers, Louise Fazenda, George Andre Beranger, Gustav von Seyffertitz and Edna Mae Cooper, adapted from Guy Bolton's arrangement of Ernest Vajda's comedy, directed by Paul Bern; overture, "Raymond"; Reisenfeld's "Classical Jazz"; Carl Formes, baritone, aria from "Marriage de Figaro"; Delores Farris, dancesque, "The Sky Tribe," a Fox scenic; Patrick Henry's "Appeal to Arms," spoken by Maurice Cass; "Ko-Ko Celebrates the Fourth," a Fleischer "Inkwell" novelty. At the Rialto.

A light, frothy farce-comedy entitled, "Grounds for Divorce," obviously appealed to Rialto spectators yesterday afternoon as they did not restrain their mirth at the sight of some of the well-directed humorous situations. The story is based on Guy Bolton's adaptation of Ernest Vajda's play, and although the players chosen for the film are not particularly well cast, they are capable. This coupled with many engaging twists in the picture results in its being an agreeable diversion.

The settings and the scenery in this production are wonderfully convincing. In several sequences Paul Bern, the director, has made use of the gyroscope camera, which enhances the interest, as the photgrapher is enabled with this apparatus to follow the players or let them come toward him. This camera was used to its full advantages in the German production, "The Last Laugh."

The producers have also initiated another idea in this film, and that is having the night effects in sepia instead of the usual exaggerated blue.

The fault in the story is that the scenario writer has failed to emphasize certain necessary points. The idea of the narrative is quite a clever one, as it tells of the charming young wife of a brilliant divorce lawyer, who discovers that the only way she can gain the attention of her husband is by becoming one of his clients. This procedure necessitates her obtaining a divorce, then marrying another man and finally soliciting her husband's professional advice to free herself from her second husband.

Florence Vidor plays the part of Alice Sorbier, the rôle acted on the stage by Ina Claire. Matt Moore officiates as Maurice Sorbier, the lawyer, and while one can imagine Mr. Moore as a day-dreamer, a poet, a writer or an artist, he has not exactly that decisive mouth affected by the legal fraternity. Then, too, Mr. Moore, in cast of countenance, is essentially an Anglo-Saxon, and at is difficult to think of him as Maitre Sorbier. But, after all, Mr. Moore is ingratiating and most amusing in this part. He has the ability to express a thought so well that it does not need explaining with a subtitle.

Harry Meyers figures as Count Zapata, a radio enthusiast who is so intent on getting Russia on the air that he neglects the fair Alice on the very day they are wed. A laughable sequence is where Guido, an amorous flying ace, believing that if he frees the Countess from Zapata she will wed him, takes Zapata up in his airplane. Guido in mid-air asks the Count to sign a paper freeing his bride. The Count refuses. Guido therefore does a dozen loops, spirals, twists and other stunts to intimidate the Count, but the latter is obdurate for forty seals so that his father's spirit will rest in peace. The courageous Aguvaluk goes forth to bring back what is needed so that he may wed Kivalina, and through his adventures one has an insight into the colorless existence of the Eskimos. They are seen protecting themselves from a wicked wind by building a wall of great slabs of ice. The thousands of reindeer are driven into this Arctic camp and the unperturbed denizens of the North proceed to construct the comfortless igloos of blocks of snow and ice. The dogs are seen blinking as they squat, obviously eager for protection against the blizzard. Never have they known the comfort of a hearthrug before an open fire.

Eventually Zapata espies a parachute on the airplane, and he informs Guido that he is going to drop down to earth.

"I'll scoop you up if you try it," declares Guido.

Thereupon one perceives Zapata descending to the ground with the parachute and the indomitable Guido trying to cut him off.

Guido ultimately succeeds in catching the parachuting Count, and forcing him to sign the paper.

Mr. Myers is very funny in this scene, which is unusually well produced, with the scenes at a distance, in the airplane and then of the swirling earth and sky. Miss Vidor may not be especially well suited to the rôle of the French wife, but being an efficient screen player she soon makes one forget all about foreign gesticulations and expressions.

13 ARE INJURED AS BUS HITS TREE

Patrolman Kunz said he interviewed several persons who had witnessed the wreck and none, he said, recalled seeing a car such as the driver of the wrecked bus said cut in front of him so that he had to veer to one side to avoid striking it. The three other drivers of the Department of Plant and Structures buses, however, he said, insisted to him that they had seen such a car.

The drivers would not explain how the buses came to be on an excursion in Rockland County.

William Wirt Mills, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, under the supervision of which department municipal buses are operated, said over the telephone from his home in Staten Island last night that he would order an investigation into the use of the buses for the picnic. Mr. Mills said:

"The buses are not owned by the city, but only operated under its supervision. Each bus has one day off a week and the owning company has the right to use the buses on their free days for any work it sees fit, but I will certainly investigate to find out what was the status of those in the accident.

Father Ostermann of St. Joseph's Church, which is at 403 East Eighty-seventh Street, said last night the outing was an annual event given for the Young Ladies' Sodality of the church and that a member of the church had rented the four buses from a person whose name he did not recall. He said the cars were operated on week-days on the Eighty-sixth Street crosstown line and were privately owned.

Father Ostermann accompanied the party and said the statement of the driver regarding the cause of the accident was correct. He said a long line of pleasure cars were coming up the hill while the buses were going down and that one of the pleasure cars cut from the procession to get ahead and ran in the path of the bus, whereupon the driver left the road to avoid striking it.

25 HURT ON CITY TROLLEY.

Twenty-five persons were injured, three seriously enough to remain in hospitals, when a municipal trolley car of the one-man type jumped the track yesterday at Mier's Corners, Staten Island. Thirty passengers were in the car, chiefly women and children enroute to visit relatives at the Sea View Hospital, New Springville, Staten Island.

According to the motorman, William Harris of Port Richmond, the brakes of the city trolley failed to work. Witnesses, however, declared that Harris was going at a speed which caused the car to leave the rails when the curve at Victory Boulevard and Jewett Avenue was reached. Policemen and officials of the Department of Plant and Structures, which operates the trolley system for the city, refused to discuss the accident. They gave as their reason the fact that the city was a party to the accident.

The most seriously injured were:

Mucola, John, 64, inmate of New York City Farm Colony, New Springville, fractured right leg; St. Vincent's Hospital.

Four others were taken to the hospitals, but after treatment left for their homes. They were Patrick Doran, 30, of 400 Ocean Avenue, Port Richmond; Charles Lyons, 16, of 364 Grand Street, Manhattan; Anthony Vicaris, 22, of 427 Montgomery Street, Jersey City, and Mildred Jackson, 18, of 227 Clark Street, Jersey City.

The trolley car, built of steel, left the St. George ferryhouse on Staten Island at 3:50 o'clock and was bound for Port Richmond. When several stops were made the brakes seemed to work all right, but when the curve at Victory Boulevard was reached the car jumped from the rails and crossed the northbound track.

Harris remained at his post and the trolley sped for sixty feet to the curb and crashed into a telephone pole, snapping it off a few inches from the ground. The impact smashed in a section of the front vestibule and all of the passengers were pitched about. Calls were sent to the Staten Island Hospital and to St. Vincent's at West New Brighton. Drs. Carswell and Cortman responded.

They found that Mrs. Raci, her son and Mucola were the most severely hurt. The ambulances hurried them and the four others to the hospitals, the surgeons returning to give treatment on the scene to the eighteen others.

William Brennan, General Superintendent of the Plant and Structures repair shops at Concord, said that city regulations forbade the giving out of information about the accident. A wrecking crew from the Concord shops put the car back on the rails after an hour's work. It was then run back to St. George.

Showers Keep Sunday Crowds From Beaches; Child Rescued at Coney, Woman at Rockaway

Intermittent showers and threatening skies kept down the crowds at the beaches in the city and its environs yesterday so they were the smallest of the present season. Fewer than 100,000 visited Coney Island. One of the number was a 7-year-old girl, who was rescued from the surf by Zip, the circus freak. There was another rescue at Rockaway Beach.

The weather provoked some one at the Eden Musee on Surf Avenue to verse, which was addrssed to "J. Pluvius," and hung up over the sidewalk. It read:

Rain, rain, not today;
Why not rain some other day?
Please don't rain on Sunday.

Although the elements paid no attention to the request, some hardy souls dared the waters. It was noticed that there was an unusual amount of exercising, ball playing and racing on the sands, however.

Irene Reynolds, 7 years old, of 422 Thirty-fifth Street, Brooklyn, was in the water at the Atlantic Baths at the foot of Eighth Street, in the morning. So was Zip, who has been spending the Summer exhibiting himself at the Dreamland sideshow." The girl went out a little too far in the rough water. She fell and screamed. Zip ran out, picked her up and brought her to the beach. She was revived and went home with her parents.

The other person rescued was Miss Mildred Harrison, a negress, of 440 Lenox Avenue, who was carried out by the undertow while swimming at Rockaway Beach. William Albrecht, a lifeguard, plunged in and brought her ashore. She was treated by an ambulance doctor and went home.

The showers did not prevent Luna Park from presenting two attractions. The first was a corn-eating contest, with the monkeys in the evolution exhibit as the participants. A monkey named "Scopes" won.

The first concert of sacred music by Arthur Pryor's Band was the other attraction. It was held at night and a fair-sized crowd gathered to listen to "Nearer My God to Thee," "Onward, Christian Soldiers" and "Rock of Ages," while the regular Coney Island revel went on. In the distance could be heard the strains of "Red Hot Mamma" and "Alabamy Bound."

At Spring Lake, N. J., the first fine for violation of the bathing ordinances there was imposed. John Serin, a musician at the Hotel Monmouth, was the culprit. He was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Fred Winters for walking along Atlantic Avenue with no outer garment over his bathing suit. Sorin pleaded guilty and paid $5.

MISSHAPEN BEGGAR IS A CONTORTIONIST

Darkness had fallen on the Boardwalk at West Eighth Street, Coney Island, last night and the doles to two beggars seated there had begun to decrease. Suddenly a woman stopped in front of them and exclaimed pity.

"I'll take the poor men home in my car," she said, "if some one will help me."

Several men picked up the two beggars, one with crutches and the other strangely misshapen, and carried them to a small machine carrying a Minnesota license. The woman sat at the wheel. Some of the crowd who watched them depart were surprised to see the misshapen man straighten up in the tonneau, step out and climb into the driver's seat, while the woman moved over to make room.

Following in another machine, they overtook the beggars and the woman and turned them over to Patrolman Joseph B. Hennessy. In the Coney Island Station House the man who had been misshapen stood as straight as the policeman. He said he was Oscar Lungren, 34 years old, of 274 West Nineteenth Street. The other man said he was Charles Jolly, 34, of the same address. Dr. Morris Bonfield of the Coney Island Hospital, said Lungren was a contortionist, while Jolly had only a slight case of tuberculosis of the bone. The woman said she was Mrs. Lungren and that they had come to New York from Minnesota to see a bone specialist for Jolly, and that they stopped at Coney Island to "make a little money for expenses." The police found nearly $200 in the pockets of the two men, who were held for examination today on the charge of vagrancy.

IRISH REPUBLICANS MEET.

Convention of State Association Elects Officers.

One hundred and sixty-two delegates, representing thirty councils in New York State, met at the fifth annual convention of the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic, Inc., at the Park Avenue Hotel yesterday afternoon. A majority of the delegates were women.

Peter J. Brady, President of the Federation Bank, pointing out the good results obtained through the exercise of effort and sincerity in the banking business, and said the same qualities applied to the movement to free Ireland would have a similar effect. Thomas F. Ryan, former Congressman from New York, said there would be no peace or prosperity in Ireland until it was free.

Resolutions were adopted denouncing the British Government for its objection to the limitation of the growing of opium, and commending the stand of the United States and of Congressman Stephen S. Porter in withdrawing from the recent conference; appointing a committee of three to cooperate with Governor Smith and Mayor Hylan in the celebration of the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, and calling on Senators and Congressmen from New York State to use all influence in opposition to the World Court, on the ground that it was "a mere creature of the League of Nations."

These were elected: President, Major Michael A. Kelly of the 69th Regiment, to succeed himself; Vice Presidents, Miss Marcella A. Tenyson, William F. Dwyer, Robert F. Mahoney, Mrs. Thomas Walsh and Eugene O'Sullivan; Treasurer, James Sammon.

MAN BITES A DOG, SO GETS INTO THE NEWS

Dog Retaliates in Kind, and Police Decide It Acted in Self-Defense.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, June 28.—Eager to break into the news, Frank Kigger, 55, adopted the way immortalized by the late Charles A. Dana, who said:

"If a dog bites a man, that's not news. But if a man bites a dog, that's news."

Kigger bit his dog.

Having, the police say, indulged rather freely in moonshine, Kigger got down on all fours and began to emit barks and growls that elicited the mild interest of Buzz, his brindle bulldog. But when his master seized him by the back with his teeth and began to shake him, Buzz thought the joke had gone too far and retaliated by biting Kigger on the head and hands.

Kigger was taken to the Allegheny General Hospital, where fifteen stitches were required to close the wound in his scalp and ten those on his hands. The police decided that Buzz had acted in self-defense and placed no restrictions on his freedom.

His body was discovered by his wife Julia. She summoned Dr. Lescourt of Fordham Hospital, but the man was dead.

DEVINE LETS IN TWO RUNS

GRAHAM PROVES A PUZZLE

However, McGraw's Men Solve Him in Seventh and He Retires From the Scene.

By HARRY CROSS.

Pep Young and Irish Meusel collaborated in a batting duet at the Polo Grounds yesterday and played a merry tune which gave the Giants a 6-to-5 victory over the Braves. Young's tenor was a home run inside the right field meadow which knocked Kyle Graham out of the box and made the score rhyme, 5 to 5. Meusel's bass blow spun a sweet three-base refrain which put Bill Terry over with the winning run.

This Graham has been giving the Giants a lot of trouble. That first name of his suggests a screen player rather than a pitcher, but, make no mistake, Kyle can stick the ball over the plate at most annoying angles.

As it rained everywhere but at the Polo Grounds, the eyewitnesses were limited to 15,000, which is small for a Harlem Sunday. Well, they were assembled north, south, east and west of Harlem, so most of the baseball populace stayed home to protect the straw hats and ice cream suits.

Thus many of our townspeople missed witnessing the unpleasing ceremony. Mickey Devine, one of the Giants' catchers, comes from Albany. Thus far he has been able to keep out of the Legislature. Mickey's fellow-members of the Knights of Columbus in the State capital came down en masse before the game, took complete possession of the Polo Grounds.

Mayor Hackett of Albany doffed his skimmer, and his silver hair tossed in the breeze. Mickey was presented with a gold-back ring, mounted with sapphires and diamonds. It is a fine piece of jewelry, and the only thing that worries Mr. Devine is that he may have to engage a Hawkshaw to watch it for him. Nothing's safe around this town, even if it does look like a ring.

As the Albany delegation swept down on the field and gathered around while Devine blushed it looked like a political convention with Mickey accepting the nomination for Sheriff.

Devine Lets In Two Runs.

Devine delighted his old Albany chums by making a single his first time up. But in the seventh inning he had that diamond ring on his mind instead of on his finger and in trying to break up a double steal he heaved the ball into left field and two runs dropped over. Still, you can't expect a guy to be showered with jewelry and not get a bit nervous about it.

Weyland Dean pitched a pretty good game but was hampered at critical times once by an error by George Kelly and the other time by Devine's rabid toss. The jury exonorated both of them when the Giants won.

Boston irritated Dean for the first time in the second. With one out, Burrus tapped a double to right and scored on Bernie Neis's triple over Meusel's roof in left. Jackson was under Padgett's pop-up, and when Kelly fumbled O'Neil's roller Neis scored. No one can remember when Kelly ever made a fumble before or since.

The Giants didn't do much with Graham in the early innings and it looked as if Kyle was about to carry out his nefarious purpose of toying with the New York batsmen again. Bill Terry gave the first inkling that there was a hole in Graham's pitching somewhere and that he was human like all other pitchers.

Terry was the first Manhattan resident up in the fourth and he feathered a singling home run high into the upper right-field stands.

Then came the seventh when Devine showed the Albany delegation the worst way in the world to break up a double play. Neis singled to right and went to second on Padgett's one-bounder to centre. O'Neil walked and the bases were as loaded as the guests at a bachelor dinner.

Graham struck out. Kyle may know how to pitch but you can't hand him a silver cup as a batter. As Bancroft was

CINCINNATI, June 28 (AP).—Three Cincinnati pitchers failed to stop Pittsburgh today, the Pirates winning, 5 to 2. Yde kept the Reds's hits well scattered, except in one inning, when the home team scored two runs.

HIT BY BALL A WEEK AGO

By JAMES R. HARRISON.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 28.—Life for George Herman Ruth is just one ailment after another. Today it was announced by Miller Huggins that the Babe will undergo an X-ray examination on his right ankle when the Yanks return to New York Thursday.

Ruth entertains a suspicion, and so d'e Huggins, that a bone has been chipped in his right ankle. In batting practice a week ago the ball glanced off Ruth's bat and struck him a solid blow on the protruding ankle bone. This caused some pain and a swelling of the joint, but, inasmuch as his other ankle and both legs were already swollen, Ruth gave no thought to the accident at the time.

In the last few days the swelling in the left leg disappeared but the right ankle still gave him trouble, and Ruth now fears the worst. He is convinced that something is wrong in his ankle, and if it isn't a chipped bone it may be a sprain or wrench.

At any rate, when the famous sick man of baseball returns to New York later this week, he will flee back to the hospital and the X-ray room and have a picture taken of the offending member.

May Necessitate a Cast.

He is wearing a strap and brace, but if it should turn out that the bone is broken, he will probably have to put on a cast and keep off his feet while the ankle is being rested. The Bambino would return to New York immediately were it not for the fact that he is now negotiating for the sale of his farm, at Sudbury, Mass., not far from Boston. He expects to close the deal tomorrow and has hopes of getting $50,000 for the property, which has been improved by Ruth in more than two years of occupancy.

Ruth denies that he is selling the family estate because he needs the money or because he is broke, as was alleged in a story which came out of St. Petersburg in March.

"The farm has become a burden and a nuisance," said the big fellow this afternoon during a trip to Bristol, R. I., where the Yanks went to play an exhibition game that was rained out. "I am there only in the Winter and for a few days in the Summer. Mrs. Ruth is in New York with me at the same time, and there is nobody to look after the farm. I have tried to find some reliable caretaker to go out and handle it, but I can't find anybody to do the job right. So I'm going to quit worrying about the matter and sell the property."

The Babe was in a gloomy and reminiscent mood as he journeyed to Bristol. He agrees with Huggins that he, the Babe, won't do much ball playing this season.

Knocked Out for Season.

"I guess I've about been knocked out for the season," said George, darkly. "It's just one thing after another. The way my legs feel now, I won't play much ball this year.

"When I think back to March and April, I feel blue. When I left St. Petersburg and started North, I felt great. I thought sure I would break all home-run records. I was smacking the ball harder than I ever did before, making two and three hits every game, and not feeling a bit sick. Now, look at me. I might as well be 50 years old."

The Babe is right in what he says. There is pathos in his case, for no player ever started with brighter prospects and ended with darker ones than the big fellow.

It was rather rending when the Yanks, under Charley O'Leary, reached Bristol, and the team did not go on the field. Tomorrow the Hugmen will attempt to win three straight for the first time this season at the expense of the Red Sox.

The New York A. C. nine had a field day at the expense of the Crescent A. C. team at Travers Island yesterday before one of the largest crowds of the season at the Winged Foot Club Summer home. The New York A. C. players captured the battle by a score of 16-2, one of the outstanding features of the game being a home run by Schaefer in the fourth inning with the bases full. The Winged Foot players made sixteen hits off the combined deliveries of Hagen and Plumbo while Tierney limited the New Alooners to five safeties.

Two big innings were enough for the New York A. C. nine to clinch the game. The first of these was the fourth, when Schaefer crashed out his homer. The New York A. C. collected five tallies in that session and five more in the following when Gleason and Tierney inserted doubles and Miller, Coombs and Tierney slashed singles. It was in this inning that Hagen left the Crescent A. C. mound in favor of Plumbo, but the latter's advent did not stop the Winged Foot attack. In the opening inning the New York A. C. got two runs, added one in the second and in the seventh sent over one and wound up with two in the eighth. The Crescents scored in the second and in the eighth, but never threatened at any other time.

Pickups and Putouts

Dave Bancroft was both useful and skillful at short. He had thirteen chances and handled them as smoothly as he ever did in his life. And he's entertaining a sore thumb, at that.

The Giants have taken up the double-play business again. They ripped off three yesterday. With Kelly as the pivot the infield combination was as smooth as satin.

The Giants are holding their own. As Pittsburgh beat the Reds, New York is at the top of the heap, but the footing there is slippery.

With Young hitting again, New York's chances of keeping a step ahead of the Pirates are much brighter. Pep's confidence, which has been taking a nap, is back on the job.

Mickey O'Neil and Umpire Pete McLaughlin amused each other frequently with casual remarks. Mickey's tongue was glib but he couldn't talk himself into a base hit.

Huntzinger took up the pitching in the eighth and the Braves folded up under his spins. His relief work this season has been of unusual merit.

The Braves and Giants will go at it again today. If Pittsburgh expects to keep up in the parade it might be advisable for them to beat the Reds.

Glendon Says He Will Coach Navy Crews If Not Forced to Be Physical Instructor

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 28.—The question of Richard E. Glendon's continuance as rowing coach at the Naval Academy depends, according to Lieut. Commander William G. Greenman, representative of the Navy Athletic Association for rowing, on whether that body is willing to allow him to coach the crews and not be an instructor in the physical training department.

A matter of athletic policy at the Academy is involved, the officials desiring to have all athletic coaches in a definite relation with the Academy as instructors in physical training. Glendon, however, wishes to give up all work but that of coaching the oarsmen.

While most of the coaches are also instructors in the physical training department, there are some exceptions, but it is doubtful if the Academy officials are willing to increase the number. The Executive Committee of the Navy Athletic Association is still considering the proposition of Glendon, but the latter reiterated this afternoon that he did not expect to continue as coach at the Academy.

BROWNS WIN, 8-2, END TIGERS' STREAK

DETROIT, June 28.—The Browns brought the nine-game winning streak of the Detroit Tigers to an end by capturing this afternoon's contest by a score of 8 to 2. A home run in the eighth by Hargrave, with two men on base, gave the Browns a safe margin. Manager Ty Cobb started Owen Carroll, former Holy Cross pitching ace, and Carroll was hit hard in the eight innings he worked. It was his second assignment as a big leaguer and marked his second defeat. Cobb, however, kept him in the game despite his ineffectiveness until it was necessary to relieve him for a pinch-hitter.

ROBINS IDLE BUT GAIN.

Will Meet Phillies Today and Return Wednesday to Play Braves.

Though rain kept the Robins from playing the Phillies at Ebbets Field yesterday afternoon, the Flatbush team did not suffer as complete loss as a result. As a matter of fact, Uncle Wilbert Robinson's boys gained half a game in the struggle for the National League pennant and today are tied with the Cincinnati Reds for third place.

This afternoon the Robins will resume their warfare with the Phillies, but in enemy territory. The Robins have a two-game series to run off with the Phillies in the Quaker City and will return here on Wednesday to engage the Boston Braves in the first contest of a two-game series before girding themselves for another interborough clash with the Giants, which will open on Friday.

MACFARLANE SCORES ON THE 19TH GREEN

VICTORS 2 UP AT THE 16TH

But Farrell Squares Match With Two Birdies—Champion Then Holes Out for the Victory.

By WILLIAM D. RICHARDSON.

Special to The New York Times.

TUCKAHOE, N. Y., June 28.—A melodrama of the links, with Willie Macfarlane, the national open champion, playing the rôle of the hero who rushes in at the last minute to foil the villainous villian, was enacted at the Oak Ridge Golf Club today. Johnny Farrell of Quaker Ridge interpreted the villain's part, and did a nice job of it, too, but righteousness triumphed in the end and all the Oak Ridge members in the audience went home happy when Macfarlane and Tommy Armour defeated Farrell and Leo Diegel by 1 up in nineteen holes.

A synopsis of events leading up to the "great crisis" were these: Macfarlane and Armour were paired against Farrell and Diegel for an exhibition match arranged as a sort of third welcome home for the champion. It was played on his home course, with two or three hundred of the members gazing on, and never for a moment dreaming that the two strangers within the gates would deviate from the written lines.

For sixteen holes the play went along smoothly. Macfarlane and Armour were leading by two holes when suddenly and without warning Farrell jumped out of the lamb's skin and into the tiger's. With two birdies, one on the seventeenth and one on the eighteenth, Johnny squared the match. A finale was necessitated. It was decided to play another hole. It was here that Macfarlane, who had been a rather weak hero, stepped in and did his stuff. Pitching a long iron shot up to within four feet of the hole and waiting until all the others had putted, the champion holed out for a birdie 3, giving himself and Armour the victory by 1 up in nineteen holes.

Farrell's nefarious work started at the sixteenth, where he ran down a ten-foot putt for a birdie. This time, however, Armour, who was six or seven feet from the hole after playing his second shot, checkmated the Quaker Ridge professional by dropping his putt for a half, so that the match was dormie 2 for the two Scots. The dropping of that putt had a magic effect on Johnny's putter, which is like the small boy: when it's bad it's bad, but when it's good it's terribly good. Previously it had been bad. Several times he had missed the hole on putts that would have put a different complexion on the match. But now he was off, and down went a four-footer for a birdie 3 at the seventeenth, making it 1 and 1.

Coming to the home hole he was the only member of the sterling quartet to locate the middle of the fairway, left with a little pitch to the green. Macfarlane, Armour and Diegel were in the rough to the left of the fairway, the home club professional's way to the pin blocked off by a large tree. The only thing left for him was to play for the green, but his ball ran along the ground into a trap. Armour's ball was lying well in the rough, but he misjudged the shot and was several yards short of the green. Afte Diegel had pitched on short, Farrell's ball dropped near the hole and ran ten feet beyond, leaving him a twenty-foot downhill putt to make.

After Macfarlane had missed his 4 and Diegel had left himself four feet short, Farrell tapped his ball and in it went for another 3 and another birdie, the third in succession. The match was all square, and rather than leave it hanging in the air of a no-decision contest the contestants decided to play an extra hole or as many extra holes as necessary to reach a decision.

Farrell Gets in Bunker.

Macfarlane and Diegel both drove far to the right and on top of a hill, while Diegel's tee shot left him a side-hill lie. Farrell again was down the middle and in a fine spot, for he was in front and would be the last to play, thus enabling him to take advantage of the experience of the others. It was at this point that the hero stepped in. With a beautiful pitch of one-hundred and fifty yards he stopped his ball five feet from the pin. Armour followed and his ball dropped twenty feet past the hole. Diegel just got onto the green and then Farrell played a bad shot which ended up in a bunker on the left. After that no one figured him in the hole at all, but he almost holed out of the sand, his ball stopping only a few inches from the hole. Both Diegel and Armour putted and missed. Then Macfarlane putted and didn't miss, so that the day was a success.

Each team had a best ball of 67, three under par. Allowing for the putts that are here and there conceded in four-ball matches, Farrell was 67, 35 out and 32 home, while Armour was 68, 34 out and 35 back. Macfarlane had the best outgoing round with a 34, but needed a 38 back for a total of 72, two over par, while Diegel was 33 each way for a 70. Armour played beautiful golf going out, but had two bad holes coming in, the 502-yard twelfth, where he was twice in the rough, and then over the green, and the home hole. A fine second shot to within less than a yard of the hole gave him a birdie 3 at the first, and a great second shot and a chip to within four feet gave him a birdie 4 at the third. Those two holes put him and Macfarlane into a lead which Farrell and Diegel could not overcome until the Quaker Ridge star's putter got into action on the last two holes.

SPA, Belgium, June 28 (AP).—Antonio Ascari, piloting an Italian car, today won the automobile Grand Prix of Europe. He covered the 800 kilometers (477.11 miles) in 6 hours 42 minutes. His average time was 120 kilometers (74.57 miles) an hour.

The British and Belgian competitors previously having withdrawn, the race resolved itself into a struggle between four French and three Italian cars. The famous French driver, Thomas, was eliminated early in the race, his machine catching fire. Thomas was burned about the hands in vainly trying to extinguish the blaze. Three other Frenchmen and one of the Italians abandoned the contest at various stages.

The race was limited to machines not exceeding two litres cylindrical capacity and weighing not less than 650 kilos (1,430 pounds).

E. Katz and M. Katz, brothers, yesterday led the track team of the Anchor A. C. to victory over three rival New Jersey organizations in the quadrangular track and field meet conducted under the direction of Coach Harry Coates as part of the Metropolitan A. A. U.'s athletes' development campaign at Pershing Field, Jersey City. The Anchor lads, overwhelming their rivals in a program of ten events, emerged triumphant with a score of 53 points.

Athletes of the Greenwood Track Club finished second with 36 tallies and the representatives of the Concord A. C. were third with 17 points. The Jersey Harriers' A. A., one of the oldest of New Jersey's athletic clubs, finished fourth and last with only 9 markers:

The Katz brothers accounted for more than sixteen of the Anchor Club's points, E. Katz outshining his brother in point of individual achievement with a victory in the 100-yard dash in 10 2-5 seconds, second place in the running broad jump, in which he cleared 20 feet 9¼ inches, and runner-up position also in the 12-pound shot-put, in which he heaved the weight 36 feet 10⅜ inches. M. Katz shared victory honors in the running high jump, which ended when four representatives of the Anchor Club were the only survivors at 5 feet 3 inches, and came home second in the 220-yard sprint.

The events furnished interesting and close competition for a large crowd of athletic enthusiasts. The track events were particularly close with the exception of the mile. In the mile, however, F. Taylor, scoring the only individual triumph recorded by a Jersey Harriers' runner, raced to a hollow triumph over his rivals in 4:42.

COSMOPOLITANS GET 87, WIN BY 9 RUNS

OLLIVIERE BATTING STAR

Obtaining the necessary runs to win in the last "over" allowed by the umpires before the call of time, the team which represented the Cosmopolitan Cricket League in the two-days' match with the New York Cricket League asserted its ascendancy by a margin of nine runs, with six wickets to spare, before a record cricket attendance of nearly 1,500 at New York Oval yesterday.

The Cosmopolitans completed their first innings, begun on Saturday, running the total up to 151, or 55 better than the 96 made by the New York League. The latter then took a second turn, getting 133, or a grand total of 229. This left the Cosmopolitans 78 to tie and they had forty minutes in which to do it. In the very last "over" they gathered nine more runs and had 87, for the loss of only five wickets, when stumps were drawn.

The batting of Olliviere, a son of the noted county cricketer of that name, was largely responsible for the fast scoring in the second innings, when every minute counted. Holder played two, not out, innings and was most successful with the ball. Weirwood twice contributed double figures to the totals of the winning side, as did Richardson, Danielson and Emmanuel for the losers. The fine fielding of Harding of the Cosmopolitans was an outstanding feature of the play.

FRANKLIN

The experienced hand of de Causse is evident in the roominess, as well as in the beauty, of the New Franklin Coupé. Whether you watch it glide past on the road, or share with two others its broad leather-covered seat, it impresses you with its size. Entrance space, driver vision and luggage capacity are also extra generous.

It takes skilful custom designing to do that. And skilful manufacture to produce it on a quality basis for only $50 more than the Touring. Both together have made the New Franklin Coupé one of the most popular personal cars ever produced. It has set a new standard for the world.

TILDEN AGAIN PUTS RICHARDS TO ROUT

IS EXTENDED AT THE START

By ALLISON DANZIG.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., June 28.—William Tilden and Vincent Richards crossed paths for the sixth time this season today and for the fifth time the champion was the winner. Richards made his best showing since he defeated the Philadelphian at the Orange Lawn Tennis Club on May 30, but that was not good enough to earn victory or even a set for him, though he was within a point of taking the first chapter and also stood within a stroke of leading at 5—3 in the second set. The score was 8—6, 6—4, 6—2. Tilden thus became the Eastern New York State champion. He also won the doubles title. With Donald Strachan of Philadelphia he defeated A. H. Chapin Jr. of Springfield, Mass., and Horace Greer of New York in five sets in the final at 6—0, 6—8, 6—4, 2—6, 6—4.

The champion and his young New York rival have decided to close their two-man show, which has played to capacity galleries at Jacksonville, Fla., at Orange, at Boston in the Church Cup matches, at Forest Hills in the Cathedral Fund exhibitions, at the New York Tennis Club in the metropolitan clay court championship and on the New York A. C. courts at Travers Island, where the curtain was rung down today. Richards has had more than enough tennis to satisfy him for a spell, and will not play again until either the metropolitan grass court championship at the Crescent A. C. in Brooklyn or the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club invitation tournament starts. He declared that his muscles 'ache from playing so much, and undoubtedly a lay-off after his intensive campaign will do him good.

Tilden hasn't begun to have his fill. Tomorrow he will start play in the invitation tournament at the Nassau Country Club, Glen Cove. From there he will go to the Agawam Hunt Club, Providence, to play in the Rhode Island State championship. Thence he will hop to St. Louis to play for the national clay court championship the week of July 13 and the following week will compete for the Illinois State championship at the Skokie Country Club, just outside of Chicago. Where he will go afterward is a little hard to define, but it can be said that he will go some place where he can play tennis. The champion loves his game too well to desert it for a moment and will start a tournament of his own if necessary.

May Meet in National Play.

Today's meeting did not necessarily mark the permanent abandonment of the Tilden-Richards show. If they don't meet anywhere else, they are likely to get together again at the West Side Tennis Club in September, where the national championship will be played. As the two ranking players of the country they will be seeded in opposite halves of the all-comers, and the expectations are that they will meet in the final. Johnston or James Anderson of Australia may succeed in breaking up the show if they are in Richards's half, but that will be left for the future.

Wherever Tilden and Richards have played they have "packed 'em in," and today was no exception. In spite of the fact that it rained almost throughout the afternoon, 2,000 fans thronged to the New York courts, prepared with rain coats and umbrellas. It was raining when the match started and early in the second set the downpour was so heavy that players and spectators were compelled to rush for cover. But they stuck it out and saw the business through to the end.

It was a match well worth seeing. Richards played like his old self in the first and second sets, and had his service not failed him so badly he might have won both of them. His work at net was clearly superior to Tilden's, both on the volley and overhead, and he stood up in the back court exchanges in a fashion to comfort his admirers who have been worried by his inability to get length on his shots when opposed to Tilden. His service, however, continued to give them anguish, for only occasionally did he get his first ball in and his second always put him in the hole.

He made eight double faults in the three sets. These were costly, but did not count so heavily against him as did his inability to control his first fast ball, which was his only hope of getting to the net. Whenever he tried to advance behind his second ball he was always too late. Again and again Tilden whipped the ball back across court or down the line for a placement. It's a miracle that Richards hasn't got a stiff neck looking back at Tilden's passing shots. He's been doing that all season. Going to the net against the champion is about as dangerous as waving a red flag at a bull.

Richards First to Score.

On the occasions when he reached the net Richards did himself justice and delighted the gallery with his spanking volleys and crushing overhead shots. He missed only a few of either, and most of the few failures were forced by Tilden's ability to place the ball out of his reach. The New York youth started off by taking the two first games, playing hard, clean-cut tennis from the start. After losing his service game in the second, Tilden broke through in the third when Richards double faulted and evened the score at 2—all on service. Richards won the fifth at love on the champion's errors, and Tilden won the sixth by playing constantly to Richards's backhand, which he did throughout the match.

Tilden played beautiful tennis in the seventh and broke through with three placements in succession after Richards had led at 40—30. Richards then broke through Tilden only to lose on his own service in the ninth when Tilden shot his court full of holes with his passing shots. Once again Richards broke through Tilden and evened the score at 5—all. He won the eleventh game and was leading at advantage on a double fault in the twelfth. Within a point of losing the set Tilden put over a service ace, his only one in the match, took the game and the next two, overcoming a lead of 15—40 in the fourteenth.

Richards continued to play good tennis in the second set and led at 4—3 and 40—30 in the eighth game, Tilden scored on three placements to take the game and won the next two also. Richards had little in reserve in the final set and submitted easily.

Review--THE WEEK IN SPORTS--Outlook

GOLF

A queer game—golf. Here we have "Long Jim" Barnes, who has done comparatively little, competitively speaking, since 1921, and of whom many had begun to talk pityingly, again riding on the crest of the wave through his victory in the British open. In golf, as in life, according to the helpful slogan of the Salvation Army, it doesn't necessarily follow that a man temporarily down is always out.

Barnes was supposed to be down. A national figure in 1921, acclaimed by thousands and personally congratulated on his victory in the American open by the President of the United States, "Long Jim" had done almost nothing since. Once or twice during intervening years, tities, the Metropolitan open for one, and the P. G. A. for another, had been in his grasp, but he was not quite able to close his fist over either. Many said, uncharitably to be sure, that Barnes, one of golf's great figures and the winner of more tities than any one else except Hagen, had reached the end of his career. The only one who didn't subscribe to that belief was Barnes himself.

Last year he was made the scapegoat of a farcical adherence to a newly passed rule in regard to late entries and was barred from playing in the open at Oakland Hills. He went abroad to finish ninth in the British open. Later he had a beautiful opportunity to win the P. G. A. title, but failed. This year, at Worcester, he was a pathetic figure as he strode in scornful majesty over the Bay State course. The once worshipped hero was shabbily treated in the allotment of starting times and he was forced to be off among the first pairs, while others, more favored, were granted greater consideration. The one-time giant, therefore, trooped the links alone almost and his shots, more than once heard round the golf world, went unwatched except by his caddie, his partner's caddie and himself. He was a fallen idol with clay feet. Today Jim Barnes is the successor to Hagen's laurels won last year at Troon.

A queer game—golf. Here we have Macdonald Smith, next to Willie Macfarlane, the year's outstanding golfer and the man generally expected to win at Prestwick, starting his final eighteen holes with a five-stroke lead, needing only a 78 to win, and taking an 82!

How is it explained? It isn't. It's just golf. What happened, no doubt, was that Smith, knowing he could do a 78 and win, proceeded to play for that notch instead of for a 70. A great, bold golfer was transformed into a mediocre, cautious one. He tried to crawl toward the title when he should have leaped for it. That he could leap he showed by his finishing holes when there was no further need of caution.

TENNIS

The Far West has always played a prominent part in American tennis, but it is only in recent years that the Pacific Coast has had success in intercollegiate competition. For the third time in the last five years the national intercollegiate title has been won by a player from California, the neighboring States. Edward Chandler of the University of California succeeds Wallace Scott of the University of Washington as the champion and Philip Neer of Stanford broke through the ranks of the East for the first time in 1921. Also, for the fourth year in succession, the doubles championship has escaped the East. Neer and James Davies of Stanford were the first successful contenders for the crown from the West, winning in 1922.

In 1923 and 1924 the Southwest, looked upon as a negligible factor in tennis, came into its own when Lewis N. White and Louis Thalheimer of the University of Texas were crowned the champions of the Pacific Coast has won a double triumph, for in addition to taking the singles title, the University of California has also won the doubles championship. Gerald Stratford and G. Hillis succeed White and Thalheimer as holders of their final-round victory over Arnold Jones and Charles Watson of Yale.

The rise of the West in collegiate tennis will be appreciated fully when it was realized that the titles have been played for since 1912. For the nine first years Yale and Harvard held a monopoly on the honors in the singles except in 1886 when Trinity College captured the title, and also in the doubles, except in 1888 and 1889, when Columbia broke through. In 1902 Cornell won the singles, represented by W. A. Larned, who was to become one of the greatest of our national champions. Brown, Princeton, Pennsylvania and Columbia were added to the list of the singles winners, but Yale and Harvard, the latter particularly, continued to dominate the tournaments until recent years, when a new menace to the prestige of the East appeared in the persons of the Western invaders.

Two years ago a member of the faculty of the University of Texas came north with White and Thalheimer and at a dinner at the Merion Cricket Club, where the championships are held, warned the East to look out for the Southwest. All Texas was aroused and bent on winning a championship. When the 1923 tournament was over Texas had fulfilled its ambition, at least in part, for White and Thalheimer took the doubles crown. This year Thalheimer made a plucky fight to give Texas a singles champion also, defeating Arnold Jones, one of the favorites in the championship, and reaching the semi-finals. With three of the four semi-finalists in the tournament just concluded representing the West and Southwest, it is evident that a new period in intercollegiate tennis has been firmly established.

YACHTING

An interesting example of the maintenance of yacht values over a score of years may be had in the case of the famous New York Yacht Club thirty-foot class, which this year is celebrating its twentieth anniversary. There were eighteen of these remarkable sloops launched at the old Herreshoff yard on Narragansett Bay in May, 1905, and it is a matter of record that, instead of decreasing in value, they have in some cases increased. These vessels, which have furnished brilliant sport season after season for so many years, are much in demand among racing yachtsmen, and when one of the thirties changed hands recently the selling price was above $5,000, as against the original cost in 1905 of $4,500.

It is, of course, a fact that during the war years, which were naturally poor seasons from a yacht-racing standpoint, some of the thirties changed ownership at much below their original cost. With conditions assuming a normal aspect again, the value of the thirties began to climb until it reached new high records. It would be next to impossible to buy one at this stage of the season at any price.

What a wonderful class they have been! Other classes have sprung into being, have enjoyed a few years of racing favor and have disintegrated, to be all but forgotten by the racing clans. The thirties have sailed serenely on through a double decade of racing seasons, and now, in their twentieth year, the class seems actually to be keener than ever. Of the eighteen launched at Old Bristol in 1905 there are sixteen in commission in local waters, and fourteen of these will race. The only thirties lost irrevocably to local racing are the Linnet, which cruises in the rocky bays of Maine during the Summer, and Dahinda, which unfortunately has been changed to a yawl and named Playmate.

Rich in the salty lore of a score of racing seasons, the rest seem scheduled for an indefinite period of competition in the sailing fleet. Alera, Phantom, Oriole, Banzai, Phryne, Nautilus, Narcissus, Blue Moon, Lena, Amorita, Minx, Alida, Silhouette, Cecelita—each name has innumerable memories of keen sail water combat attaching to it. In some cases the names of the thirties have been changed several times, but others, including Phryne, Alera, Banzai and Oriole, have remained the same. They have always retained their original racing numbers, and it was interesting to come upon the Linnet in a secluded anchorage of the Penobscot during the cruise last Summer and find the number "10" sewn into her mainsail.

Naturally, in their anniversary year the thirties are racing for special prizes put up by different yacht clubs. One of these was the handsome plate given by Commodore Cowperthwait for that fine race staged recently by the Manhasset Bay Yacht Club, which held the original race for the class in May, 1905. And one of the proudest of men that night was Skipper Sam Pirie, owner of the winning yacht, Oriole, when he received the silver plate engraved with all the names of these great sloops.

POLO

Organization, concentration and a splendid leader earned a victory for the United States last week that would have appeared impossible before the war. Had the American Army attempted to meet Great Britain's officers on the polo field at that time there is little doubt that it would have suffered defeat, but last week the officers from the United States conquered the British Military four in the second successive match and remained international army champions it won on the field at Meadow Brook two years ago, when the series was started.

The organization, concentration and leadership behind the American victory stand out above everything else. A few years ago the Army was not even considered as a source for internationalists, but it would not be surprising to find the defenders of the International Challenge Cup largely drawn from the military ranks in the future. It has taken the powers that be a long time to realize the possibilities of the Army in polo, but gradually they are being forced into the conclusion that the officers are underrated.

In 1922 the Army team went to Narragansett Pier and won the national junior championship, much to the surprise of civilian polo circles. The team's handicap was raised. In 1923 the Army again won the junior title and then proceeded to triumph over the British Army four, which was rated three goals better. Again the Americans' handicaps were raised. Last season was a season of experiment in preparation for the international military matches of 1925 and the Army did nothing exceptional, but when the team was fully organized at Miami Beach last Winter, and once more the handicaps went up. Now another increase seems inevitable in view of the fact that the Americans, rated at twenty-two goals, twice conquered the British team to which was rated at an aggregate of thirty-two.

The American triumph was made possible through the determination to win that is typically American. When it became evident that a new team must be formed if the military championship was to be successfully defended, a search for material was started. Every army post in the United States where polo is played was visited and the players and ponies were carefully inspected. What seemed to be the best available material was gathered together on Long Island last Summer and the little squad concentrated its efforts on improvement and coordination. When it was seen that the material assembled would not do, another search was made and replacements were brought in to the machine when it moved to Florida for the Winter season and more practice. Finally the greatest possible power was brought together and under the leadership of Major L. S. Beard the team was schooled intensively until it functioned as a unit.

None of these things could have been accomplished without the guiding hand of Major Beard. He made changes without favoritism. When a player failed to produce the quality of polo expected he was immediately rejected. The purpose of it all was accomplished when the American Army won the second match at Hurlingham last Wednesday. A year of preparation, organization and concentration was necessary for the work of two hours. Therein lies the secret of the Army's advance in polo.

TURF

With a new and modern racing plant opening in the Middle West next week for a meeting of fifty-eight days, which will carry it well toward the middle of September, Eastern racing authorities may well ponder its effect on thoroughbred sport in New York State in view of the conditions prevailing hereabouts at present. The racing at Coney Island, just outside of Cincinnati, will conflict with the meetings at Empire City and Saratoga, and that the opposition will be real is indicated by the number of first class horses that have been nominated for the dozen stakes to be contested, not to mention that the overnight purses have been fixed at a minimum of $1,500, with the majority running from $1,400 to $1,900. Sentiment has little part in the make-up of the average horseman in the matter of finances and he will go where the money is.

In these days of racing on the New York tracks, where the horsemen are failing to cooperate with the racing associations, it is difficult to fill overnight handicaps with a respectable number of horses, and races are continually being split to fill out the card—this despite stables overflowing with available racing material. There is much dissatisfaction with the conduct of racing in New York State. The public deplores the practice of added starters and of wholesale scratches. Not a day passes but that from one-quarter to one-third of the overnight entries are withdrawn. After a list of entries is published such mutilation is certainly most unfair to the public, which has the right to expect that horses actually entered will start. A code of rules that permits such practices is fundamentally wrong and should be changed. The racing associations are finding it increasingly difficult to keep faith with the public.

The horsemen are discontented over the claiming rule. It was rumored last week that owners and trainers were about to screw up their courage to the point of presenting a petition to the Jockey Club for a change in the regulations, but no document has yet reached the governing organization, nor are there any signs that this body will overcome immediately its own inertia. The point of the horsemen is well taken and the wholesale claiming of horses, especially of two-year-olds, bids fair to wreak havoc on sport. Only by the test of the race course can the worth of a colt or filly be determined and, unfortunately, all do not develop into stake horses at the first asking. Owners and breeders are refusing to risk the loss of their potential stars to the haltermen, "hoss traders" and undesirables that are gathering at the New York tracks from all over the country in the expectation of reaping a thoroughbred harvest.

ROWING

One of the most spectacular rowing seasons of the decade came to an end last week with the Navy's triumph in the intercollegiate regatta on the Hudson, and it never will be decided which is the best college eight in the country this year. The Navy and Yale both went through strenuous campaigns without a defeat, yet there are many who still argue that the Huskies from the University of Washington are the best crew of the year, despite their disaster below the railroad bridge at Poughkeepsie a week ago.

When the 1924 rowing season came to an end there was a wide desire to see Yale and Washington meet in a four-mile duel. There is just as great if not a greater desire this year to see Yale, the Navy and Washington in a triangular struggle, and as far as the contest itself is concerned it is a pity that such an encounter is impossible. Had Yale rowed in the intercollegiate regatta there would have been a basis for comparison of the three best crews of the season, but after all it matters little which is termed the "champion"—all three were great.

Washington lost the race on the Hudson through poor generalship—such has been the consensus of opinion among those who saw the struggle over the last mile of the course. There is no denying that the huskies from the Pacific Coast were overhauling the Navy with every stroke during the last frenzied drive with the finish line a quarter of a mile away, but there is no proof that the Navy could not have called on its reserve force and maintained its lead if the danger had been more serious. After all the Midshipmen won by a margin of three-quarters of a length and that is a safe margin after the finish line has been crossed.

The Navy was the fresher of the two crews when the race was over and there is no evidence that the Middies wouldn't have stayed in front if the two eights had rowed all the way to the Statue of Liberty. However, there are some who think otherwise and the question probably will be argued in rowing circles until another season comes around and new problems present themselves.

BASEBALL

As the baseball season approaches the half way mark, fans face enough excitement to please even the belligerent species which inhabit other centres outside of the metropolis. In both leagues the scrap has settled down to a sprightly hammer-and-tongs exposition of the gentle art of give and take.

The Giants in the National League are in for a torrid July and August, and the heat will not be confined to the weather either. From now on Pittsburgh, egged on by its irrepressible populace, intends to keep New York in hot water. The intensity of feeling in Smokestown this season concerning its baseball club has just about reached the quintessence of frenzy.

From now on there should be an improvement in the playing of the Giants. They have had a troublesome month and plenty of bad breaks in the way of injuries. A change is due. Improved strength on the part of the Giants in the next few weeks will be necessary to offset the self-satisfaction the Pirates have developed since they took four straight from New York recently at Forbes Field.

And while New York and Pittsburgh are scheming and planning about how they will get possession of the bunting, Cincinnati and Brooklyn will be hovering in the immediate vicinity and will not hesitate to grab anything in the way of ball games which are not nailed down.

The American League is in the throes of a new and thrilling experience. It finds Connie Mack's Athletics back to demand their old place in the baseball world which was reluctantly relinquished in 1914. Some one was a bit too previous in singing the swan song of Connie Mack. His old-fashioned ideas and old-fashioned methods do not seem to be so ancient, after all. The taciturn McGillicuddy has already performed enough feats with his new Athletics for the lessee son to be re-established on the pedestal from which he was removed after several seasons of association with tailenders.

The fun the American League fans are enjoying is the spectacle of the world's champions fighting for life with the Athletics, when they were all set to battle with the Yanks and Tigers this Summer. The Yanks and Tigers are not going to bother the Senators much. The Athletics will, and often. Washington's experience and the presence of so many cool-headed veterans may help them in the end. These assets are not aiding them very considerably at the present time, however.

SWIMMING

There has been concern in American aquatic circles over the threatened withdrawal of Great Britain from the International Swimming Federation (Federation Internationale de Natation Amateur), but the danger of a split in the organization is believed remote by well-informed watermen at home and abroad.

The fact that the two delegates of the British A. S. A. retired from the recent congress of the F. I. N. A. at Prague, announcing that they would use every effort to induce the A. S. A. to resign from the federation and form a new body among the English-speaking nations, is not particularly significant. It is well known that there are dissensions within the ranks of the A. S. A., and English sport critics have not been backward in declaring the action at Prague hasty and ill-advised. Moreover, the British authorities can take no step until the next annual meeting of the A. S. A., in 1926, so there will be ample time for hotheads to cool off before the die is cast.

To make clear the cause of the trouble it needs to be explained that at the congress of the F. I. N. A. in Paris last Summer it was decided to form a committee of five to function as an executive board between general sessions and allow no nation to have more than one representative on this board. Though the proposal could not be put in effect until ratified at Prague, according to the constitution, tentative elections for the board were held at Paris, and the British endeavored to have two men in office by obtaining for one of them, an Englishman, a proxy as a South African delegate. The latter was defeated, however, while G. W. Hearn, also English and Secretary of the F. I. N. A., was elected by an overwhelming majority. Apparently that rankled, as it is understood that Hearn is not in sympathy with the powers ruling the A. S. A. at present.

Be that as it may, a controversy arose in regard to the make-up of the board at Prague, the British delegates claiming that Hearn was not the choice of the A. S. A., and his election, despite the fact, entitled Great Britain to another member of the board. It was when the question was put to the vote and went against them that the A. S. A. spokesmen made their declaration and left the meeting.

Despite a defeat yesterday, the first setback he experienced in the series of four races, Robert Casey of Battery E, captured the prize offered by Colonel Elmore S. Austin, 258th Field Artillery, for members of the outfit, in a series of two-mile races to develop athletic material in the 258th. Winner of three previous runs, Casey had to be content with third position yesterday, when starting from scratch in a handicap race, he trailed Lloyd Bennett, Battery D, and A. Billis, Headquarters Battery. On the point score for the four races, however, Casey led his nearest rival, T. Ferrara, First Combat Train, by four points. Casey had 45½ points and Ferrara 41½.

Pos.	Name and Company.	Hdp.	Actual Time.
1.	L. Bennett, D. Battery	0:30	11:17
2.	A. Billis, Hdqrs. Battery	0:50	11:20
3.	R. Casey, E Battery	Scratch	10:52
4.	T. Ferrara, 1st C'mbat Train	0:15	11:07
5.	S. Bennett, F Battery	0:05	11:35
6.	J. Chiode, 1st C'mbat Train	1:30	12:45
7.	M. La Perchie, 1st C'mbat Tr.	1:20	13:37

FINAL POINT SCORE.

BEHR HAS TROUBLE IN BEATING KUHN

Cawse, Phillips and Nannes Also Win Their Matches—Rain Holds Up the Play.

Allen Behr, runner-up for the Brooklyn championship, made his first appearance in the Kings County tennis title play yesterday on the courts of the Ridge Club in Brooklyn. Ernest Kuhn, who showed to such good advantage in the North Side and Queensboro championships, forced the metropolitan star to work his hardest before submitting at 7—5, 7—5. This match was one of the two features of the day. In the other William Einsmann eliminated J. M. Greer in the first round at 5—7, 7—5, 6—3.

Rain held up the play until late in the afternoon and some of the players who appeared early left under the belief that there would be no match, so heavy was the downpour. Among those was Percy L. Kynaston of Rockville Center, who has won the tournament both years that it has been played. He will meet Morton Blake this afternoon and if he wins will play a second round match.

Among the other players to advance yesterday were Anton F. Von Bernuth of the Montclair A. C., A. J. Cawse of Staten Island, Russell Phillips and Casper Nannes. Von Bernuth and Nannes advanced two rounds. Von Bernuth eliminated J. A. Hene at 6—1, 6—1 and C. T. Miller at 6—3, 6—1. Nannes, who extended Willard Crocker of the Canadian Davis Cup team in the Brooklyn championship, advanced at the expense of J. M. Pope and O. E. Edwards. In neither match was he forced to show his best tennis, winning by decisive scores.

The match between Behr and Kuhn was hard fought at the way. Neither player ever was able to gain a commanding lead in either set and many of the games went to deuce several times. Behr's untiring court covering and ability to come through at the critical stages brought him through in both sets. Einsmann and Greer were closely matched for the two first sets. Greer began to tire in the third chapter and yielded before the hard hitting of his younger opponent.

The summaries:

First Round—A. J. Cawse defeated L. T. Smith, 6—2, 6—1; Frank Danielson won from S. Stein by default; L. W. Shaw defeated H. A. Saake, 6—2, 6—3; Henry Wiseltier defeated J. Wilz, 6—1, 6—3; Russell Phillips defeated Dr. H. G. Hartwitt, 6—2, 6—0; Anton F. Von Bernuth defeated J. A. Hene, 6—1, 6—1; C. T. Miller defeated H. Battels, 6—3, 6—3; Casper H. Nannes defeated J. M. Pope 6—1, 6—0; O. E. Edwards won from H. L. Duren by default; William Einsmann defeated J. M. Greer, 5—7, 9—7, 6—3; J. Silverman defeated L. F. Belves, 6—3, 6—4; R. M. Feingarten won from William A. Dwyer by default; Allen Behr defeated Ernest H. Kuhn, 7—5, 7—5.

Second Round—Von Bernuth defeated Miller, 6—3, 6—1; Nannes defeated Edwards, 6—3, 6—1.

PREMATURE OBSEQUIES.

Several political doctors at Washington, called in to consider the case of the Radical Party, have gravely pronounced the patient dead. They add that the political movement represented by it will soon disappear from our public life. What hope can there be for it when two out of its four champions in the Senate were smitten with death in a single week? The prophets might have waited to see who are to be the successors of the dead Senators. In Wisconsin we shall not know this until the Autumn, as Governor BLAINE has decided to put off the special Senatorial elections until then. In the result we may get a son whose little finger will be thicker than his father's loins.

It must not be forgotten that Senator LA FOLLETTE'S radicalism was largely of an old-fashioned kind. He still spoke the language of revolt thirty years ago. Only by stern discipline could he repress last year some of his followers who desired to venture further into the political wilds than he had ever cared to go. Whether any man will arise able to bind together again, as LA FOLLETTE did temporarily, the discordant elements of discontent and agitation no one can yet say. But that the radical impulse will continue in our politics and that it would be heightened and inflamed by any one of a number of accidents that might occur is the safest belief for sober-minded people to go upon. No millennial period for Conservatives was ushered in by the death of Senator LA FOLLETTE and Senator LADD.

SIGNOR HYLAN AND SIGNOR ROCCO.

Controller CRAIG'S little pleasantries, addressed to District Attorney BANTON and Governor SMITH, urging the prosecution of Mayor HYLAN for violation of the Civil Service law by his summoning of the heads of departments to support him for re-election, have been received by the public with the tolerant silence, and doubtless with the private amusement, deserved by a clever and favorite public entertainer. To the student of comparative political theory, however, Mr. HYLAN'S conception of the duties of a public civil servant has a value and an interest that should not be lost sight of in the long, swift procession of Craigisms. Mr. HYLAN has thought out for himself substantially that view of the relation of officials and the State which Signor Rocco, the Italian Minister of Justice, put forth in his report accompanying the bill giving the Government the right of dismissing permanent officials.

The functions of a civil servant, Signor Rocco says, in effect, are by no means confined to the faithful discharge of his administrative functions. He should, he must, follow devotedly "whatever tendency the State may "assume at any given moment in its "development." Every action of his must reflect this devotion. Here the City is the State. Mr. HYLAN has made it his own, not by Fascist arbitrary methods, but by the gentle suasiveness of his Ciceronian letters and speeches, by his triumphant energy as a constructor of subways, by his effective administration, by his heroic resistance to the traction interests and a traction-controlled press. He is the City. He is the tendency which the City assumes at this moment in its development.

The duty of head, middle and feet of departments, of the whole administrative machine, is to him the tendency, the overflowing "stream of tendency" of the City. ate. The primary allegiance of every placeman is to him. The cardinal function of every placeman is to work for his renomination and re-election, although the Mayor is as sure of both these victories of civic virtue as he is of the civic virtue and the magic power of the Shepherd of St. Simeon, the Prophet of the Enchanted Hills. It is a pleasure to pay to Mr. HYLAN the respect due to him as an original thinker. In his own way and on his own hook he has made the discovery so pompously proclaimed at Rome. We can only regret that "the Italian vote" is so largely Republican and that the hard-boiled political philosophers of East Fourteenth Street are so infatuated with the traditions and so given to the interests of the "organization"—the permanent entity which outlives and laughs at the Mayors it makes or consents to—as to be indifferent to "tendency" and skeptical of Hylanhearstian mythology and political theory. Tammany is realist. The Mayor, even in his moments of practical politics, is an idealist. He has a romantic veneration for himself.

THE TRUTH FROM ADMIRAL PALMER.

Admiral LEIGH C. PALMER, President of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, addressed the National Foreign Trade Convention at Seattle last Friday very frankly. His subject was ships engaged in foreign trade. Admiral PALMER must have made his hearers gasp when he said:

> After I became President of the Fleet Corporation I spent some time in looking over the entire situation and shortly came to the conclusion that the main trouble with our newest infant industry, the Government-owned merchant marine, was that it was suffering from too much easy money. Instead of its getting down to real business and trying to come somewhere near living within its income, it was depending unduly upon the National Treasury.

So Admiral PALMER entered upon a policy of getting down to real business. He cut out some of the waste. The average loss on 320 cargo vessels per voyage was reduced from $25,000 to $17,000. This was brought about by consolidating lines that were in competition with one another and by dropping ships from the active list. The result was that as many voyages were made as before, "with a substantial increase of cargo and revenue and a reduction of operating "expenses." Unnecessary personnel in the Fleet Corporation was eliminated and the payroll reduced in eighteen months by $2,000,000. And here the Admiral made his hearers gasp again: "We regard the improvement "already made as merely a beginning." He hoped to get the loss per voyage of the Government-owned cargo fleet down to $8,500 per ship.

So far the prospect was rosier. But if the fleet could not be transferred to private ownership, replacement with new and improved ships would have to be faced. What would the cost of that be? Three hundred cargo ships are now being operated. Perhaps fifty could be sold. "If our replacement program," said Admiral PALMER, "calls for twenty vessels a "year, the cost would average about "$20,000,000 per year for the new "construction of the cargo fleet "alone." To this would have to be added replacement of passenger liners and combination passenger and cargo vessels, at a cost of $10,000,000 a year. "Thus," he went on, "unless the Government can find a way to transfer "its fleet to private ownership, as "contemplated by the Merchant Marine act, we face the definite prospect of having to spend about "$30,000,000 a year continuously for "replacement alone." With improved administration the entire cost to the Government of maintenance would then be $40,000,000.

That figure of $40,000,000 was bedrock. The Government could not do the job of operating its ships for less. But the "average American private owner" could reduce the $13,500 loss per voyage to $4,500, said Admiral PALMER, and "the same fleet, on "similar services, if operated under "British conditions, would break "about even." So this was the conclusion:

> This last figure, $4,500, may be taken as an approximate measure of the amount of Government aid that would be required to place American vessels on a competitive footing with British vessels.

He was speaking of cargo ships only. Passenger services constituted "a more or less special problem so "far as Government encouragement "or aid is concerned." Mail subventions and naval defense requirements might take care of them. The cost of that to the Government he put at $7,500,000 a year. Add the same amount of "Government aid" given to American cargo vessels in foreign trade and the bill would be $15,000,000. The "differential" of $4,500 between the operating costs of private American and British ships might be largely offset, the Admiral intimated, by "the extremely favorable terms "on which American operators can "purchase vessels today." This seemed to brighten the prospect a good deal, but really only for a few years, because the time would come when lower British costs of operation would tell again. The President of the Emergency Fleet Corporation could not get round those lower British costs and finally declared: "I "want to emphasize the necessity of "adopting an adequate and workable "scheme of Government aid without "much further delay." He declined to suggest the form. He put that up to Congress, but we may be sure that Congress will balk when anybody cries subsidy.

NO POOR MAN'S JOB.

From Washington comes the report that a man of moderate means now United States Minister to one of the Eastern European countries has been transferred to a capital where the cost of living is lower, and has been replaced by a man with a large income, who can better afford to keep up the necessary appearances in the expensive country. No question of personal fitness appears to be involved. The shift has been determined by financial considerations alone, and was made necessary because the Government does not yet pay its diplomatic representatives a living wage. That such a condition imposes unwarranted handicaps on men of small means desirous of representing their country abroad is obvious. At the same time it deprives the Government of the services of men who may be particularly able representatives in special countries. As it is, only men of independent means can now aspire to posts in the foreign service.

In recent years the Government has done something to remedy this injustice. In various capitals permanent quarters have been bought in which to have the residence as well as the office of the Minister or Ambassador. But many chances to obtain suitable buildings have been allowed to slip by. Neither in Berlin nor Vienna, nor in many of the smaller countries, have we provided quarters. Even in London the Ambassador rents an expensive house, despite the fact that an embassy building was presented to the Government by Mr. MORGAN. This has not yet been put in shape.

In due time our Government will have to follow the examples of the older nations, and not only house its representatives but provide suitable allowances for upkeep. It is not unusual, at present, for an Ambassador or a Minister to spend the equivalent of his entire salary on rent alone and a like sum in keeping with his position as representative of the United States. When to this is added the inevitable expense of large-scale entertaining, it is easy to see why the cost of serving the Government abroad can be met only by persons of wealth.

One of our Ambassadors was asked recently by a visiting Congressman why he could not dispense with most of the entertaining. He answered that hardly a day passed without at least a dozen Americans coming to his office bearing warm recommendations from some member of Congress or other person high in authority in the United States. Ten out of each twelve expected the Ambassador to entertain them, and inhospitality on his part would surely be met by ire. When to this incessant number of Americans is added the number of foreigners whom an Ambassador must entertain in the ordinary line of duty, it is clear that his butcher's and grocer's bills must be higher than they were at home. In due time the Government will have to be prepared to make good this difference.

GERMANY AND RUSSIA.

In London it is the prevailing opinion that Germany will accept the plan of frontier guarantees outlined in M. BRIAND'S note and defended by Mr. CHAMBERLAIN in the House of Commons. Basic to the security agreement is Germany's entry into the League of Nations. That event, though regarded as inevitable, may be delayed by two factors. M. BRIAND'S communication is expected to lead to an exchange of notes of inquiry, elucidation and amplification, which may not be completed before the next meeting of the Assembly of the League in September. In the second place, inside of Germany there still asserts itself the doubt whether her entrance into the League will not be too dearly bought by the sacrifice of her amicable understanding with Russia.

The value of Russia to Germany is admittedly not in the present. The results of the Treaty of Rapallo are not strikingly tangible. German industrial concessions in the Soviet Republic have turned out about as illusory as Soviet concessions to other nations. German trade with Russia would in all probability have attained its present dimensions without the proclamation of friendship at Rapallo. The extent of that trade has been a profound disappointment to German manufacturers and business men. All this is discounted, however, by the supposedly long-distance view. When Russia finally settles down, Germany will be first on the ground in the matter of exploiting the natural resources of the Slav republic. To not a few Germans the commercial argument is not the only one. They foresee an armed Germany and Russia in alliance for another day.

Longer views may often be extended so far into the future as to offer very little compensation for the immediate sacrifices involved. And it is a very long view indeed which would commit Germany to a policy of hostile isolation from Western Europe while waiting for the settling down and recovery and exploitation of Russia. The progress toward recovery made by Germany from the Treaty of Rapallo to the eve of the Dawes plan was not discernible to the naked eye. German progress since the Dawes plan has been substantial. For a great many years to come Germany will need the nations of Western Europe more than she needs Russia, even if it were conceivable that a Germany isolated from the Western world can ever be in a position to exploit the hypothetical resources of Russia. If and when Russia does settle down, Germany will get her due advantage. Her historic connection with Russia and her geographical proximity constitute an opportunity which cannot be taken away from her, and which therefore she is under no need of purchasing by heavy sacrifices in other directions.

Until Russia finds herself, Germany's relations with the Soviets can be regarded only as cemented by a common animosity for certain third parties. It is an uneasy alliance in which Berlin and Moscow find themselves compelled to keep a very sharp eye on each other. The Treaty of Rapallo did not prevent attempts from Moscow to bring about a political and social overturn in Germany. Understandings with the Soviet Government are not the best of rest cures. Great Britain has recognized the Soviet Government and is now engaged in expelling Communist agitators from her own borders. France recognized the Soviet Government and is now expelling Communist agents from France and stigmatizing Communist activity in Morocco. The recent Russo-Japanese treaty has been followed, among other things, by Soviet activity in China now expressing itself in a demand for war with Japan. For Germany, too, there would seem to be very little ground for hesitation between facing east to Moscow or west to a reconciliation with the Allies.

A WORD FOR THE PASS MAN.

The "new plan of study" at Princeton having been under fire from the student body, the alumni "and even the Faculty," President HIBBEN cites statistics of the first graduating class as its vindication. During their last two years undergraduates are permitted to take only four regular lecture courses instead of five, spending the time thus saved on independent work and taking the degree on an examination covering the entire subject. As the preceptors instituted by President WILSON are an adaptation of the tutorial system of Oxford, so this is an adaptation of the Oxford "honors schools" and "honors examination." The idea is to make one and all "think for themselves" and "do original work." Students and alumni see in the new plan an effort to discriminate against the much prized if unintellectual athlete. The satiric "beer suits" of the graduating class were this year emblazoned with the Princeton tiger crushed to earth by four huge tomes, symbolical of the new plan. But, said Dr. HIBBEN, the tiger is not crushed. In 1923 fifty-two seniors were flunked; in 1924, forty. In this first year of the new plan only sixteen were flunked. "The new plan," Dr. HIBBEN concludes, "is not a bit harder "on students than the old, it is simply different."

Is it possible to make an entire college class think for themselves and do original work? If so, all men are created not only equal but remarkably superior. The new plan may be defended as tending to discourage all but students of exceptional ability or it may be held ill-advised as applied to the general run of undergraduates. At Swarthmore students "volunteer" for the honors course and examination and are accepted only if during the first two years they have proved themselves "capable of doing more independent work." In other words, the upper classes are divided into "honors men" and "pass men."

On purely academic grounds the pass man may be condemned. But the English point of view is more human. Few are born to do independent work and fewer to do it in the field of pure scholarship. An excellent future executive and administrator may be wholly indifferent to original research and original thinking, but he may profit notably by four years of comradeship with young men of high traditions and keen minds. It is said of the Oxford pass men that they have "manned the British Empire." Is this frank recognition of human differences un-American? In our common schools we have learned to separate "retarded" from "advanced" pupils, to the advantage of both.

UNRULY CROWDS.

Not the least sensational feature of the Shepherd trial in Chicago was its close amid a sort of riot in the court room. Even the semblance of order was not kept. In particular did the noble band of camera men present leap over desks and stand on chairs to ply their art. The smoke and odor of "flashlights" filled the place. Neither Judge nor jury could be heard above the hubbub. If there were any majesty of justice present, it was lost sight of in the outbreak of an unrestrained mob.

The growing frequency of this kind of judicial procedure has attracted the attention of the American Bar Association. Apparently the readiest if not the sole remedy for the evil is to call upon judges to assert their authority in the matter of compelling public decency in the court room. There is much question today about the limits of judicial power, but no one denies the right of a judge to make and enforce rules of propriety in the presence of the Court. Such behavior as was permitted in Chicago should be impossible before a vigilant and self-respecting judge. He could warn in advance against disorder and severely punish those guilty of it.

To turn to a less serious instance of an unruly crowd, consider the finish of the golf open championship at Prestwick last week. A mass of sight-seeing people swarmed over the links, defying the efforts of the police and the stewards to make them keep their place, and greatly interfering with the players themselves. One of them was bitten by a dog just as he was about to shoot. Golf balls were stepped upon or kicked about, the putting greens were seriously obstructed and the playing of the game under the best conditions made utterly impossible. The golfing correspondents agreed that such an uncontrollable mob had never been seen on the links before, and that Prestwick would be taboo for championship contests for many years to come.

Such boorish conduct on the links will the more humiliate British golfers, since they have been in the habit of complaining about the behavior of American spectators when Englishmen were competing over here. At the time when HILTON won our amateur championship there were finely exaggerated reports in the English press of the hostility and interference of the gallery. Punch gayly pictured the scene where spectators were shouting through megaphones, crowding up to the line of play and doing everything possible to disconcert the British champion. That was in uncouth America, still new to the amenities of golf. But what shall be said when worse things are done in Scotland, fount and origin of the game, and its most reverent devotee? If things go on from bad to worse, it will be necessary to surround the links with a cordon of troops, or else to build "bleachers" near the first and last holes, to which the spectators shall be confined under a strong military guard.

"BUT THEY HEAR NOT."

HENRY FAIRFIELD OSBORN, President of the American Museum of Natural History, in a book just published, says that the earth speaks clearly, distinctly, and in many realms of nature loudly, but that Mr. BRYAN "fails to hear a single sound." Though he has ears to hear, like the idols of silver and gold described by the Psalmist, he hears not. (In one respect, however, he differs from them, for though they had mouths to speak they spoke not.) To be sure, one has to learn the earth's language in order to be able to understand what the earth says, even if one have one's ears to the ground. But to such as are not scientifically illiterate there is no speech or language of man's making in which its voice is not heard.

At first its voice is as a whisper across millions of centuries. It speaks first in the "few tissues of its primitive plants"; then in the life of moving creatures. As the millions of years roll by, it speaks with increasing clearness. There can be no mistaking its meaning. What it says is that there has been not a succession of distinct creations but a "continuous ascent"; from a water-breathing fish to an air-breathing amphibian; from the land-living amphibian to the air-breathing reptile; from the reptile to the bird by one line of ascent and to the mammal by another. It is only lately, incidentally, that the mammalian ascendant has learned to do artificially what the other reptilian heir came to do by nature, despite his long aspiring, at least since the days of Icarus.

This ancient autobiographer, earth, had a moment—an eon or two, perhaps—of forgetfulness, but the evolutionary chronicle was taken up again and has been continued in "clarion tones" which all but the stone deaf should be able to hear. Muscles, nerves, glands and bones, especially the bones of the skull and jaws and of the foot and hand, are as living words carrying on this marvelous story to its climax. Just who our immediate ancestors were is not revealed as yet; but they were, we are assured, lowly, lowlier than the lowliest of known human kind and not dissimilar from those Primates whom we may call our "poor relations."

The earth has, however, had nothing to say so far, even when it lisped in words that were passed between the teeth of the Hesperopithecus that perished out in a valley of Nebraska, as to just how it all began, and as to what destiny it is carrying the creature who has crowned creation. All it can say is that the evolutionary process has been going forward for some tens or hundreds of millions of years and is still going on. If it were to choose a phrase out of the Scriptures for its legend, it might well be the two words from the Magnificat: "Exaltavit Humiles"; for the Creator has indeed "exalted them of low degree." He that hath ears to hear let him hear.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Case of Justice Long Denied.

Mention has been made several times in this column of the case of GEORGE E. TAYLOR as illustrating the fact that though the law, as it claims, may have a remedy for every wrong it occasionally refuses to apply the remedy which it may have.

TAYLOR, thirteen years ago, was an employe in the postoffice at Richmond, Va., where he had given long, faithful and efficient service. Then, through a combination of unlucky circumstances, he was suspected of embezzling funds in his charge, was accused of the crime, arrested, indicted and brought to trial. He was able, promptly and conclusively, to prove his innocence, and he was acquitted, the Judge taking occasion to say that he went out of court with his integrity stainless. When he went back to the postoffice, however, he found that he had been discharged while under indictment.

Several citizens of Richmond interested themselves in righting what they considered injustice and succeeded in getting him taken back, but almost at once it was discovered that he had passed the age limit for being taken on as a new member of the force, and again he was put out. The only recourse was to Congress; but though bill after bill was introduced for TAYLOR'S relief, the case seemed too unimportant to get Congressional attention. Once, indeed, the Senate did pass a bill giving him $4,000, a big reduction from the $13,000 he had claimed as reasonably due him, but the lower house allowed it to die in the hurried hours of a closing session.

Yet the Taylor case now has been settled, for TAYLOR died last week, an old, broken man. The Richmond Times-Dispatch, after telling the sorry story ever again, says that "he went to his grave a martyr to injustice and governmental unconcern."

Both Plans Better Be Forgotten.

President COOLIDGE seems to view with coldness the proposal of some of his friends to give him a house, and the alternative suggestion that a Summer home for Presidents, as such, be bought by the Government, has aroused, it is reported, no enthusiasm among the few statesmen now in Washington.

Neither of these facts, if they are facts, is hard to understand. The President is not a man of the sort to see in his occupancy of his present or any other office good reason for giving him a house. It probably would be a house more expensive to maintain than either his tastes or his resources would warrant.

The other proposal—that of a Government-owned "Summer White House," to be occupied by one President after another as they come along and ex officio—is more attractive, but already in Washington they are asking, "Why in Massachusetts?" A similar question would arise whatever State were under consideration.

In England the case is different, for that is a small country—in area—and Chequers does very well as a place of occasional retirement and rest for any Premier. Several of them have utilized and enjoyed it since the acquisition of the property.

Here, a President naturally would have strong opinions of his own as to where he most pleasantly could pass the Summer months, especially as more than mere personal preferences would have to be considered. Politics would play a part in determining the selection.

The Mayflower serves our Presidents well enough as a substitute for a Chequers, and it is just as well, or even better, that our ex-Presidents should look after their own housing when they are able to do it.

A Case of Judges Disagreeing.

Justice BOYLE, sitting in the Children's Court, Jamaica, L. I., expressed last week opinions entirely, and very commendably, different from those of Magistrate GRESSER of the Police Court, same place, as to the beating which little HAZEL LARSEN had received from her stepmother in punishment for some petty misdemeanors.

Magistrate GRESSER, as his proceedings were reported, refused to examine the child's wounds, preferring to assume that their infliction was well within parental discretion. He was quoted as saying that he beat his own children and thought it well that other parents should do the same.

Of course, he is not alone in entertaining such views as those ascribed to him, but Justice BOYLE is of another and more modern mind. That parents never should punish their children he did not go so far as to declare, but he held it true that such a beating as HAZEL had received for stealing pennies and eating forbidden crackers was not in the nature of "correction"—was, in short, mere brutality. HAZEL'S parents he held to be unfit guardians and announced his intention to find another home for her. It is hoped that it will not be in an "institution."

It is particularly to be regretted that this case will tend to confirm the old belief that stepmothers always are cruel. Some of them doubtless have been, and perhaps enough of them to give some slight basis for the old charge, but as a class they probably average up fairly well with all except the best and wisest of mothers, and now and then one does not need the benefit of that exception.

No Defense Really Was Needed.

Now the Department of Agriculture has rushed to the rescue of the bean from jokers and the inappreciative in general, and has prepared an educational movie film in which not only the importance of this legume as a food is impressively demonstrated, but the growers of it are informed as to the nature of its worst enemy, the Mexican bean beetle, and told how to slay that highly undesirable immigrant and stop his now frightful ravages of the bean fields.

More than 300,000 tons of beans are raised in this country yearly, it seems, and enough of them are canned to make, if properly piled up, nine monuments as tall and large as the Washington obelisk. Of bean soup, these authorities declare, but probably they're just guessing at it, as governmental authorities—and others—sometimes do, enough is made and swallowed every year to take for more than three hours the place of all the water that runs over Niagara Falls. It is to be hoped that the truth of this last statement never will be tested. It would be a terrible waste of nutriment which everybody respects, however it may be as to liking, and besides, how the Falls would look!

For Ivy Poisoning.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

From inquiries I have received about the use of the lotion made by putting "twenty drops of bromine in one ounce of olive oil," I fear there has been some misunderstanding.

The above is the correct prescription, and you apply it externally, as you would any salve or lotion, to the affected parts, repeating the application as the parts become dry, and continuing its use until the sores and blisters dry up. FRANK B. NILES.

TENEMENT REGULATION.

Mr. Purdy's Attitude Before Municipal Committee Hearing.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Possibly due to the somewhat technical nature of the subject, your report of the hearing before the Committee on Municipal Administration is liable to give rise to some incorrect impressions.

I appeared as Chairman of the Tenement House Committee of the Charity Organization Society to protest against certain proposals which had been made to consolidate the inspection force of the Tenement House Department with the inspection forces of other city departments. I pointed out that the problem of regulating more than 100,000 tenement houses containing more than 1,000,000 suites of apartments was too big a job to be made a subordinate function of any city department, and that it was in the interest of uniformity that it should be directed from a common centre.

Commissioner Hirshfield asked if the same argument did not apply to the Bureau of Buildings, to which I replied that I did not think so, that I was opposed to centralization wherever it could be avoided, and that there were local conditions in each borough which might justify variations in the application of the building code to buildings not tenement houses. I did not and do not favor decentralization in the enforcement of the tenement house law.

In regard to the suggestion made by my associate, former Tenement House Commissioner Murphy, it would be more accurate to say that what he advocated was, not a new city department, but the extension of the powers of the Tenement House Department to include the regulation of all buildings used for residence purposes, so as to do away with the present situation, under which several hundreds of thousands of citizens live in buildings quite unregulated so far as fire hazards and sanitary conditions are concerned. Such a department might properly be known as the Housing Department, and need not necessarily conflict with the functions of any existing department, because the duties which it would perform are not now performed by any authority.

We were favorably impressed with the committee's intelligent apprehension of the suggestions submitted and its desire to improve conditions.

FLEAS AND LIBERALS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Having read your corruscating editorial on "Fleas and Politics," I am constrained to write a few words.

Fleas, sir, as Shakespeare says, are valiant, since they dare eat their breakfasts on a lion's hip. A few decades ago none of the genus homo was without his pet parasite; but since the modern bathing movement came into full force they have in numerous cases been deprived of a legitimate food. In the war countless millions of them fought as man's closest friend in the trenches of Flanders, on the Somme, at Chateau-Thierry, in Gallipoli, Macedonia, Mesopotamia and elsewhere. Countless millions were decimated by exploding shells, many were ruthlessly bayoneted.

At gymnastics their prowess is proverbial. No animal, let alone insect, can compete with them in a cross-country race. At hurdles their skill is truly remarkable. But at riding they are unique. Fond of following the hunt on hounds, they take as readily to horses, bears, goats, tigers and chows. And at amateur theatricals their genius is universally known.

In view of their close attachment to mankind and their physical and intellectual attainment, it is nothing short of irritating to see British politicians legislating against them. It is not to be forgotten that at one time they were members of both houses of Parliament; but for some years now they have been completely, or at least relatively, disenfranchised.

The Liberals, as General Cockerill was at pains to point out, have lost numerous votes by this invidious political discrimination. But there is hope. Let all Liberals take a friendly interest in fleas and they may obtain a majority at the next election. And if they are dubious they should remember that at the end of the eighteenth century a Tory said all the Whigs could have driven home from Parliament in a single coach. "That," said a Whig, "is a calumny; we should have filled two." Since then the Liberal Party has been at the apogee of its greatness. The Liberal cause is no less hopeless today than it was in 1799, and we yet may see a Liberal flea sitting on the Woolsack.

But perhaps the emancipation of fleas is a world problem. If so, let all good Democrats come out for a League of Nations Conference for the Self-Determination of Fleas. Let them make peace with the flea in mankind's name, upon a broad basis of social and political freedom, with a free trade economic policy and its concomitant of no taxation on food. There must be no further delay; for we cannot afford to have their bite made worse than their bark; and it will be a thousand pities to have them nationalized by the Socialists or subjected to further cruel persecution by the forces of reaction. Lightning Was Impartial.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In drawing Mr. Bryan's attention to the fact that a bolt of lightning recently hit the American Museum of Natural History, where is housed an exhibit calculated to lend support to the theory of evolution, the writer of your Topics of The Times failed to add that during the same storm St. Patrick's Cathedral was similarly "favored" from on high. So it seems the honors are even. H. T. S.

GAFFER JONES.

Said Gaffer Jones, who's lean and tall,
"When May comes round I like to sprawl
Out lazy in the sun, and see
The white clouds drifting over me.
I know, as sure as you were born,
I ought to be down hoeing corn,
But there are fish—the trout that squirms—
That wait my crop of angleworms!"

Said Gaffer Jones, "In mid-July
I should be busy cutting rye,
Or filling up the old haymow
With juicy fodder for the cow;
But there's a shady swimming-pool
In yonder stream that's clear and cool,
And when the sun is high and hot

Said Gaffer Jones, "When crickets croon
In greeting to the harvest moon,
And there are happy husking-bees
Before the ruts begin to freeze,
I should be joining in the fun,
And yet instead I take my gun
And hie me where the partridge whirs,
Or the gray squirrel cheeps and chirrs."

Said Gaffer Jones, "When from the cold
The flocks are safely in the fold,
And there's no calling from the frogs,
I should be out a-hauling logs
Or cutting ice, but (oh, the buts!)
I shall be cracking butternuts,
And while the evening hours expire
Be drinking cider by the fire."

Somehow I feel, deep in my bones,
That I am much like Gaffer Jones.

CHILDREN'S SOCIETY CARES FOR 158 DAILY

KEEPS IN TOUCH WITH HOMES

Wards Sent to Shelters Only as Last Resort—Court's Decision of Efficiency Also Issued.

One of the most successful years of its history was reported for 1924 yesterday by the New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, in the annual reports of M. Linn Bruce as President and Ernest K. Coulter as General Manager. With each copy of the reports the Society sent out a copy of Supreme Court Justice Guy's recent decision finding that the conduct of the Society had been efficient.

The reports disclosed that the Society had obtained convictions in more than 76 per cent. of the cases prosecuted in the courts of General Sessions and Special Sessions. The necessity for continued work was emphasized in the reports, which declared that owing to congestion and the tension of modern life "there is greater need of societies for the prevention of cruelty to children today than half a century ago," the time when the Society was organized.

"The usual endeavors to break down the safeguards thrown about children by laws were made in the Legislature of 1924, all of which, however, were defeated," Mr. Bruce reported. "Conspicuous among these efforts was the attempt to remove the restraint imposed by law upon the attendance of children at moving picture theatres. The experience of this Society has been that many of these theatres afford unusual opportunities for the vicious to prey upon children, and some of the most horrible cases that have come to the Society's attention have had their origin in such resorts.

"The law now provides that children under 16 years of age shall not attend moving picture theatres except when accompanied by a parent, guardians or some adult person authorized by parent or guardian. This is a wise and salutary regulation. Attempts have been made, however, at each session of the Legislature to break it down, all of which have been thus far defeated."

In his résumé of the activities of the Society, Mr. Coulter said that every effort was made to keep the children in touch with homes. He pointed out the danger of removing them to shelters, and said that this was done only when it appeared to be absolutely necessary. In support of this statement he said that complaints to the Society last year involved more than 11,000 children, but that only 1,609 children were removed to institutions pending disposition of the cases in the courts.

In cases, however, where charges were made concerning delinquency, he said the Society believed in the method of isolating children. Last year 2,492 such cases were sent on to shelters, and another also was provided for 541 children sent to the Society by the Department of Public Welfare and other organizations. Runaway boys and girls and lost children also were taken. During the year the average number of children in the society's care each day was 158.

"The Society," continued Mr. Coulter's report, "has reason to be deeply grateful for the continued and increasing support from the public during the past year. It is a significant fact that the number of members and contributors, not including life members, has shown an increase in the past year of 704 over the previous year. In other words, there has been a gain in the number of members and contributors of more than 44 per cent. in the past year. This in itself speaks volumes as to the position of the Society in the public mind."

VIENNA, June 28 (AP).—The extent of the economic and financial depression in Austria, which the committee of experts of the League of Nations is coming here on Tuesday to investigate, is revealed in company promotion figures covering the last six months. HEARSE AT CLUBHOUSE STIRS PT. WASHINGTON

But Residents Learn It Is There to Take Away Chairs From Knickerbocker Dance.

The arrival of an undertaker's combination automobile delivery truck and hearse at the doors of the Knickerbocker Yacht Club, in Port Washington, L. I., yesterday morning gave rise to wide speculation among residents of Port Washington. While the hearse was at the door the Port Washingtonites swamped the Knickerbocker Yacht Club with telephone calls.

"Who's dead?" was the constant inquiry as long as the grim, gray hearse was parked in front of the yacht club.

The inquiring ones knew that there had been much merry-making at the Knickerbocker Yacht Club on Saturday night. The members of the club and their friends had a dinner and a dance. They danced well into the morning.

The presence of the hearse at the yacht club was explained by R. G. Waller, a member of the entertainment committee that had arranged a dinner-dance held on Saturday night.

Austin Knowles, one of the members of the Knickerbocker Yacht Club, generously lent his automobile undertaker's wagon to haul 143 chairs to the club to be used at the dinner," he said, "the wagon was sent back this morning to get the chairs."

PLEADS FOR REALITY.

Dr. Reiland Says It Is the Fundamental Need in Religion.

"The heretics of today are those who put formulae above fruits," said the Rev. Dr. Karl Reiland yesterday in his weekly message on the calendar of St. George's Episcopal Church, Stuyvesant Square and East Sixteenth Street, of which he is rector. His subject was "Religion and Reality."

"To bandy the name of Jesus in theological phrases, in creed or out of it, is mere nonsense compared with a humble imitation of His nature," continued Dr. Reiland. "Questions of His birth are worse than useless and utterly non-essential compared with the fact of our spiritual birth into His way of living. Reality in religion is the fundamental need of our day, and much of the wrong and speaking on the Christian religion has neither relevancy nor reality. It is far easier to be a churchman in belief than to be a Christian in behavior. Some do not see the difference but it is there. A man may stumble in statement but follow Christ and one may be orthodox on examination in formulae but a hardened heretic when measured by the stature and the standard of the Master. There has always been 'spiritual wickedness in high places,' preachments, pulpits, papers and people."

ENGINEERS SEEK INCREASE.

City and State Employes Organize and Ask 25 Per Cent. Rise.

Three thousand technical engineers employed by the city and the State have organized and are seeking a 25 per cent. increase in salaries, the Association of Engineers of New York announced yesterday. The organization has petitioned the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for "salary adjustments commensurate with the service rendered by its members and comparable with the dignity, training and responsibility of engineering positions."

A statement made by the association at the same time asserts that in the past ten years engineers in the public service have not been adequately paid. "Compared with the salaries paid a decade ago," it says, "the engineer today is receiving proportionately less than the non-engineering employes whom he supervises."

LAUDS SPANISH WAR MEN

"The Spanish-American War changed the history of the United States," said Hamilton Fish, Congressman from Putnam, Orange and Dutchess Counties yesterday in an address to Spanish War veterans at Garrison, N. Y. It changed it in that it made citizenship of the United States respected by the rest of the world. You soldiers went to war in the name of humanity, and for the Monroe Doctrine. What we of these United States should do at this time is to buy all the islands owned by European nations in the Caribbean Sea. It is very easy to do, requiring only the cancellation of portions of the war debts due us from other nations. It is necessary to puruade European powers to leave us the whole hemisphere; otherwise there will always be the dagger at our throat in the exposed position of the Panama Canal.

"I do not ask that we rule these islands. Rather, let us have paternal protection over them. The whole thing is that in their present condition they are a source of danger to us. You veterans of the Spanish War fought for the ideal of humanity, and for the cornerstone of American diplomacy; it is up to us at this time to make the fruits of your hardships and sacrifices permanent and lasting."

Congressman Fish then took up the question of the awarding of decorations for service. He said that many officers of the Spanish War had been decorated, but few enlisted men. He then advised the veterans to make a concentrated effort to prevent further unintentional discrimination.

Congressman Fish was the principal speaker at the annual pilgrimage of the Sergeant Hamilton Fish Camp, United Spanish War Veterans, to the grave of the namesake of their camp. More than 100 Veterans of the Spanish War and their families attended. They traveled to West Point by boat, meeting there the delegation from the Newburgh camp; then crossed the Hudson River to Garrison, where Sergeant Fish is buried. Luncheon was served by Congressman Fish, after which the delegation marched to the cemetery accompanied by a guard of the 104th Field Artillery, Fishkill Station, New York State Police.

Other speakers at the memorial service were the Rev. E. C. Charley, pastor of St. Phillip's in the Highlands Garrison, N. Y., who delivered the benediction; Joseph H. Sheehan of Brooklyn, Commander of the Camp; Frederick Myers of New York, Past Commander of the Camp; William A. Dawkins, Past Department Commander of the War Veterans' Association of New York and Mrs. Mary Lewis, President of the Ladies' Auxiliary of New York State.

Sergeant Fish was the standard bearer of Troop L of Capron's Rough Riders. He was the first American killed in the Spanish-American War.

Assisting the delegation from New York were Veterans of the Spanish-American War from Newburgh and Poughkeepsie, Veterans of Foreign Wars and of the World War from both places, and a delegation from the West Point Military Academy under the command of John F. Brennen, Senior Vice Commander.

VETERANS WANT RECRUITS.

Foreign War Organization Seeks to Double Its Membership.

Plans for an intensive recruiting campaign which it is hoped will double the membership of the organization, were outlined yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the State officers and the council of administration of the New York Department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The newly elected State Commander, Joseph C. Thomson, announced that the drive would begin immediately after the national encampment at Tulsa, Okla., in early September. The drive will be under the supervision of Chief of Staff P. E. Foster and to assist him deputy chiefs of staff for each county will be appointed.

The organization also voted appropriations to carry on hospitalization work and relief liaison work throughout the State. A report was made to the council showing that in the last year many ex-service men were needlessly relieved of theirs affiliation with any veterans' organization.

Preparations were made for active work, on the part of the Legislative Committee, both in the field of national and of State legislation, and many bills of interest to service men were submitted for consideration by the council. The publication of an official newspaper to be known as The Department Bulletin was also authorized and the department adjutant was designated as editor, with the department quartermaster in charge of the business end of the enterprise.

More than twenty men from all parts of the State were present and held an informal luncheon before the meeting.

The ninth annual commencement exercises of the high school of the Rabbi Elchanan Theological Seminary (The Yeshiva) were held yesterday afternoon at the Central Jewish Institute, 125 East Eighty-fifth Street. Diplomas were given to twenty-nine graduates by Dr. Bernard Revel, President of the seminary.

Dr. Revel, in addressing the students, announced that the success of the Yeshiva High School, at 301 East Broadway, makes possible the opening of another branch at the Torah Vaadath Yeshiva of Williamsburg. He emphasized the broad scope of the Yeshiva curricula, stating that it not only afforded excellent facilities for secular learning, for which it receives recognition from the University of the State of New York and the Board of Regents, but provided intensive instruction in the Bible, Talmud, Jewish history and literature.

Dr. S. R. Safir, Principal of the high school, also addressed the graduates and awarded scholarship prizes to Solomon Wind, Benjamin Boxer and Nathan Karp.

The seminary is to be enlarged into the Yeshiva of America, for which a building fund of $5,000,000 is now being raised, to erect five buildings on a site of three city blocks on Amsterdam Avenue, between 186th and 188th Streets.

BLAST TO START WORK ON TEMPLE TOMORROW

Ground-Breaking Exercises for Dr. Reisner's Skyscraper Church to Be Held in the Evening.

The contract for the Broadway Methodist Temple to be built on Broadway, between 173d and 174th Streets, at a cost of $4,000,000, under the direction of the Rev. Dr. Christian F. Reisner, has been allotted to the William Kennedy Construction Company of Brooklyn. Ground will be broken tomorrow evening at 7:45 o'clock for the building, which is to include a skyscraper apartment house.

General Samuel McRoberts, Chairman of the Chatham-Phenix National Bank and Trust Company and the Treasurer of the church corporation, will touch the electric button which will set off several dynamite charges uprooting the rocks where the foundation will be laid. The Police Band will play and the contractor, William Kennedy, will be introduced. A brief address will be made by United States District Attorney Emory R. Buckner.

Rabbi Nathan Kraus of Temple Emanu-El will read the Scripture. Ellis L. Phillips, President of the Long Island and Kings County Lighting Company and the President of the Broadway Temple Building Corporation, will preside.

The work will be pushed rapidly for the construction of the building in the hope that it can be occupied by a year from this Fall, it was announced. Following the ground-breaking exercises, the police band will march to Chelsea Methodist Episcopal Church at 178th Street and Fort Washington Avenue, the temporary quarters of the Broadway Temple. The band will give a concert until 12 o'clock. A daylight screen has been installed on the roof of this temporary structure and motion pictures will be shown. A large platform has been erected in the street, from which the band will play. Vaudeville sketches will be put on through the courtesy of the E. F. Albee circuit.

The two men next to Dr. Reisner who were the most responsible for starting the Temple have recently died—Donn Barber, the architect, and M. G. Collins, President of the Interstate Gasoline Sales Company, who was the first business man to heartily back the plan of Dr. Reisner.

GREAT CHURCH RALLY IS HELD AT CARDIFF

CARDIFF, Wales, June 28 (AP).—A babel of European tongues joined in common prayer at the opening of the united service of praise, held under the auspices of the Presbyterian Alliance Council tonight. It was the largest church gathering ever assembled in the Welsh metropolis. The service was part of the program of the alliance conference, but all the Protestant churches in the city joined in the ceremony.

Hours before the service began, long lines waited outside the theatre where the service was held, but although the building seats 5,000, hundreds were turned away. Short sermons were delivered by ministers of many denominations and hymns were rendered by a Welsh choir.

The pulpits of many of the city churches were filled by the visiting delegates. The address of the Rev. J. R. P. Sclater of Toronto was broadcast.

Important questions relating to American churches will come up before the American delegates the coming week. These include the question of the amalgamation of the Western Committee Alliance and the Council of the Reformed Churches of America, which, it is asserted, serve identical purposes and would prove to be of increased service to the church if amalgamated.

APPEALS TO AMERICAN IRISH

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 28.—"I wish to tell the Irishmen of America that there could be no action more stupid and mischievous than trying to keep up the feud between England and Ireland and America; it would be injuring all hopes of the restoration of good relations in the world," declared T. P. O'Connor, father of the British Commons and a lifelong home ruler, in an appeal today to the men of his race in the United States to accept the Irish treaty as a settlement of the differences which have so long divided the people of English and Irish descent.

His exhortation was delivered in the course of an address here on the future relations of England and America. He declared that there would no real security for peace in Europe or the world until the full strength and the might of America was exerted in favor of peace.

After referring to the mutual failure of England and America to understand each other he stated that Englishmen should get out of their minds the idea that Americans are all the children of England, Scotland, Wales and Ireland. An appeal to the spirit of the Pilgrim Fathers, he said, is not an appeal to the majority of the people.

MRS. FELTON IS SUED.

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., June 28.—Mrs. William H. Felton, for one day a Senator from Georgia, has been made defendant in a suit for $10,000 by T. A. Jenkins, formerly a tenant on one of her farms. At a recent session of the Bartow Superior Court Mrs. Felton obtained an indictment against Jenkins, charging him with simple larceny of forty bushels of ear corn, 800 bundles of fodder and one ton of hay, valued at $60.

Jenkins was acquitted and as a result he files his suit, alleging that Mrs. Felton acted maliciously in testifying against him before the Grand Jury and in the trial court, and that in so doing she was actuated by malice and a desire to ruin him.

Mr. Jenkins says in his suit that he is 60 years old and has never been charged with any crime before. He has lived in Bartow County all his life and served for two years as a County Commissioner.

Brooklyn Regiment Goes Into Training—Police Riot Battalion Leaves.

PEEKSKILL, June 28.—About 3,800 troops figured in the shifting of various units at the State Military Camp in Peekskill today, as the 102d Engineers and 102d Medical Regiment, N. Y. N. G., and 600 New York City policemen departed, and the fifty-third Infantry Brigade, N. Y. N. G., arrived.

The incoming brigade, commanded by Brig. Gen. Franklin W. Ward of Albany, numbered 2,000 troops. It includes the 106th Infantry of Brooklyn, commanded by Colonel Thomas Fairservis, and the 105th Infantry from upstate, commanded by Colonel Ransom Gillette of Troy.

The incoming troops found the tents and camp equipment in perfect order when they arrived in four special trains. The officers were met by Major Gen. Charles W. Berry, Commander-in-Chief of the Guard; Colonel Edward McLeer, chief of division staff; Colonel William R. Wright, post executive officer, and Colonel Allen Reagan, inspector.

The two departing guard units and the riot battalion of the Police Department, led by Major Walsh, returned to New York City in five special trains.

The movement was the heaviest at the camp so far this season. The newly arrived troops, those that left, will spend two weeks in camp undergoing military training under direction of United States army officers, headed by Colonel Adolphe Huguet, senior instructor.

SOLDIER'S WISHES SACRED.

Disposal of Property as Designated Recognized Since Caesar's Day.

A soldier of the late war who was later killed in battle in the line of duty wrote a letter to his mother expressing the wish that in the event of his mother's death his insurance be paid to his niece. This has been held by the United States District Court of the Western District of Washington to be a sufficient designation of the niece as beneficiary, although it was not presented to the Bureau of War Risk Insurance by the mother during her lifetime.

GREEN URGES CHURCH TO AID LABOR'S CAUSE

BUFFALO, June 28 (AP).—The happiness of the American people can be "best promoted" through an understanding and co-operation between the religious forces of the nation and its organized labor groups, declared William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, today.

Addressing the New York State Christian Endeavor Union, Mr. Green urged "co-operation on all subjects of common interest embodying the essence of morality, justice and fair dealing," and said that "regarding those subjects upon which we may not be in accord we can, at least, maintain a charitable and sympathetic attitude toward each other."

Mr. Green charged that misrepresentation had caused defeat of the proposed constitutional child labor amendment, and added that "it is the unswerving purpose" of the Federation to carry on the campaign of education in behalf of its adoption.

The Federation, he said, also will continue its fight for compulsory education, for "if men and women are to exercise the power of self-government, above all they must understand our form of government, its institutions, its ideals and its structure."

A furious uproar, which started when the lions and tigers were thrown about their cages, held up inspection of the wreck by railroad men until circus attendants appeared and found the cages intact. The circus, in three sections, was enroute from Auburn to Montreal.

10 WINNERS IN ORATORY GO ABROAD TOMORROW

Pupils of Public and Parochial Schools Here Will Sail for France on the Suffren.

The ten students from the public and parochial schools of Greater New York, who won scholarships in oratorical contests on "The French Pioneers of America," conducted under the auspices of the France-American branch of the American Good Will Association, will sail on the Suffren tomorrow for six weeks' educational travel in France.

Their itinerary will take them through Lillebonne, Caudebec, St. Martin de Boscherville, Rouen, Lisieux, Caen, Granville, Avranches, Dinan, Rennes, Chateaubriant, Angers, Saumur, Chinon, Azay de Rideau, Langeais, Tours, Loches, Chenonceaux, Amboise, Chaumont, Blois, Chambord, Cheverny, Orleans, the Forest of Fontainebleau, Paris, Versailles, Meaux, Chateau Thierry, Reims, Laon, Noyon, Blerancourt, Peronne, Arras, Amiens, Montdidier and other places of historic interest.

The students are Miss Hortense Basquin, Richmond Hill High School; John K. Carroll, De La Salle High School; Miss Ellen Gavin, Washington Irving High School; Richard Lee Henderson, Evander Childs High School; Miss Loretta Hensel, Bay Ridge High School; Archibald MacPhail Jr., Evander Childs; Max Newmark, Brooklyn Technical High School; Miss Eleanor Powers, Newtown High School; Miss Irene Roth, St. Angela's Hall, and Frank D. Smith, Curtis High School.

Miss Jennie Carson of the staff of the New York Public Library and Professor Melvin E. Bassett of the Department of French of Princeton University will accompany the party as directors.

A program for their stay in Paris has been prepared by the Comite Francaise de Good Will American, the French organization corresponding to the Franco-American branch of the American Good Will Association in the United States.

TO TESTIFY IN HOSPITAL.

Girl, Suing Radium Company, Says Her Work Caused Disease.

Attorneys for Miss Margaret Carlough of Orange, N. J., who is suing the United States Radium Corporation at Orange for $75,000, have arranged to take her testimony in the case today at St. Mary's Hospital, Orange, where she is said to be in a serious condition, according to The Associated Press. Harry Kallach of the law firm maid yesterday he would make every effort to hasten a hearing of the case.

Miss Carlough contends that she incurred the disease as a result of her work as a "radium watch" operator with the Radium Corporation.

Match Apparel and Jewelry.

Jewelry manufacturers, in keeping with the latest vogue, have put on the market new lines of jewelry for men. These are set with stones that harmonize with the color of Spring and Summer clothes. Amethysts are used when the suiting is mauvel, sapphires when the cloth is of a lavender shade and topaz for the pallish rough suiting. Opals and rubies appear in the scarf pins and rings to emphasize the more subdued color known as heliotrope. The blue shades in clothing fabrics are contrasted with emeralds, zircons, tourmalines and agate. For tans and browns the peridot, alexandrynst, sapphire and emerald, in contrasting shades, blend with the heather striping and plaids.

ARON BLAMES HYLAN IN HOSPITAL CHARGE

NECESSARY FUNDS REFUSED

The charge that there had been seven years of neglect of the Children's Pavilion of Bellevue Hospital during the Administration of Mayor Hylan was made yesterday by Harold G. Aron, Chairman of the Publicity Committee of the Republican Advisory Committee of 130. Approximately 4,000 children from one day to 12 years old are received annually in the Pavilion for treatment.

Mr. Aron quoted unnamed "attending physician" as the authority for most of his charges. On this authority he cited a number of cases in which children were alleged to have been improperly cared for, to have been exposed to infection and to have received insufficient nourishment and improper treatment. This physician also was quoted as asserting that conditions in the Pavilion were frequently filthy.

"The Hylan Tammany administration has spent in seven years more than $2,000,000 taken in taxes from the people," Mr. Aron said, referring to the total of appropriations for city hospitals. "In this sum it has not found funds to buy medical and surgical equipment, drugs, clothing and food fit for the tiny patients in the Children's Pavilion.

"Complete information of the neglect of the children by Mr. Hylan and his Tammany associates have been given to this committee by Bellevue physicians and by private persons knowing conditions, and who have contributed to a fund to meet the shortcomings of the city toward its child patients.

Aided by Private Subscriptions.

"Medical supplies and surgical instruments for the pavilion have been bought by private subscription. Clothing and food for the child patients have been paid for from private sources. Salaries of needed workers, refused by the city, have been met, with many other expenses, in the same way.

"Up to June 1 $49,979 had been privately raised and expended to cover imperative needs for the Children's Pavilion. More money now is being spent. The call for this money was made by Bellevue physicians and the amount contributed, following continued refusal of the Hylan-Tammany administration to appropriate the comparatively small yearly sum necessary to give the child patients proper care and treatment.

"The Children's Pavilion is made up of three wards, with a total of 120 beds. Frequently the Pavilion is so overcrowded that three children are placed in one bed. The usual allotment is two children in one bed. During the seven years of John F. Hylan the number of child patients has run from 200 to 250 and over a day. Continued requests for relief to the children from this overcrowding have been persistently ignored by Mr. Hylan and his Tammany associates on the Board of Estimate.

"The history of the children's pavilion for the full seven years reveals that from the time the little patients are admitted until they die or survive and are returned to their homes, frightful conditions of neglect prevail. 'Frightful' is the word Bellevue physicians use in describing the conditions in the pavilion, and the responsibility for which they attribute directly to the Hylan-Tammany Administration.

"Child patients being brought to the pavilion are not placed according to their ills. The children are admitted without restraint, and placed in any bed, or part of a bed, that happens to be vacant. As an example of what takes place, this committee has authentic information that a little girl who sustained an injury when riding a bicycle was admitted to one of the wards for venereal treatment. A few days later an injured boy was placed with infected children.

"Babies born prematurely are taken care of in the children's pavilion. The Hylan-Tammany Administration appropriated $40 a month for breast milk for these babies. The Hylan-Tammany Administration refused to appropriate more than $40 a month. Physicians inform this committee that without breast milk the death rate of these premature babies inevitably must be 100 per cent. To prevent this, Bellevue physicians and their friends in the twelve months ended June 1 raised and expended $931.

More Nurses Needed.

"There has been expended in the last twelve months from private funds $870 for special nursing of the sick children. But not enough private funds have been found to provide enough nurses.

"The Hylan-Tammany Administration allows one nurse for twelve children, whereas physicians inform this committee there ought to be one nurse to every four of the little patients. In addition there is a shortage of ward maids, so that the children in the three wards receive only intermittent and partial nursing.

"In order to continue internes in the pavilion payments have been made from private funds. A fluroscope X-ray machine has been bought for the pavilion at $1,000 by private subscription. Request to the city administration for this machine was denied, with order to use the regular X-ray laboratory in Bellevue. But physicians in the pavilion stood out against taking ailing children to this laboratory four blocks away, and the needed machine was bought by private persons.

"The city administration refused an appropriation for sets of scales, to weigh the babies and larger children. One pair of scales was bought privately two months ago from private funds.

"The physicians in the pavilion asked the Hylan-Tammany Administration for an ultra-violet ray machine, to give the children artificial sunlight. The request was denied. Three of these machines have been bought from private funds for $300 apiece, and the city failing again, private persons are paying $100 a month for an operator to run the machines.

"Due to the city's seven years of neglect, outlays have been necessary from private sources to give the children clothing when in bed, and when about the wards. It has been necessary to buy flannel for the children in winter, and to pay a sewing woman to fit this flannel to the little patients.

"These are a few instances of the neglect of the children by John F. Hylan and his Tammany associates."

Persons connected with the Bellevue and Allied Hospitals Board declined last night to reply directly to Mr. Aron's charges. It was said that Bellevue Hospital was always open to inspection and that, while there had been overcrowding, there had been no criticism of treatment of patients. So far as the purchase of equipment by private individuals was concerned, it was said that it always had been the custom of persons interested in hospital work to make occasional gifts voluntarily and as a matter of philanthropy.

NAVY FLIERS TO MAP OIL SHALE RESERVES

MEN WORK AT 13,000 FEET

HAVE DONE SIMILAR TASKS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Planes have been detailed from the Naval Air Station at San Diego to start about Wednesday on one of the most difficult aerial mapping projects ever undertaken by the navy—the making of an aerial photographic map of oil shale reserves 1 and 3 in Western Colorado.

The area to be mapped is a rugged, mountainous region, 8,000 to 9,000 feet above sea level. Reserve 1 is located on top of a plateau, approachable only by faint trails winding up almost sheer sides, and will present the hardest problem for the fliers but at the same time bring out in striking contrast the advantages in speed and accuracy of aerial mapping over the older ground methods in surveying mountain country. Reserve 3 is on adjacent lower but not unbroken country. The total region to be covered from the air in one map is nearly 60,000 acres, or over ninety-two square miles.

Lieut. Commander W. H. Osgood of the office of Secretary Wilbur will be in charge of the survey and under him will be three planes in charge of Lieutenant B. H. Wyatt, who has had some experience in mapping of the California oil reserves. Both men visited the scene early this month and made preliminary arrangements for use of landing fields and photographic laboratories. The photographic negatives will be developed and prints made in Rifle and Grand Junction, Colo., and the photographs turned over to the Interior Department for construction into a finished map.

Mapping the oil shale reserves will, in the opinion of Navy Department officials, tax the ingenuity and resourcefulness of the pilots and photographers to the limit. Over half the area is at least 8,000 feet above sea level. It will be consequently necessary for the planes to fly at over 9,000 feet. The navy's photographers have demonstrated their ability in aerial mapping in the Caribbean during the past few years, and in California, but this is the first time a project of this kind has been undertaken for a territory at such altitude and over a region so inaccessible.

The nearest landing field is at Rifle, Col., twenty-nine miles east of the oil shale reserves. All of this twenty-nine-mile stretch is mountainous country. The planes to be used are of the DH-4 B type, which has given faithful service under adverse conditions to the naval air mail, the Marine Corps and the army for the last few years.

The maximum altitude of the DH-4 B plane with full load, including two men and full supply of fuel and oil, is about 15,000 feet. The landing field at Rifle is at present a cow pasture, but its owner has permitted the clearing off his stock during the period the field is used by the fliers. After mapping the reserves the planes will make an aerial survey of territory adjacent, about 100 square miles, for the Geological Survey. The survey of this latter territory will enable the Geological Survey to fill in one more section of ordinarily inaccessible country in their rapidly growing geographic map of the United States.

MANY SEEK PAROLE JOB.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., June 28.—There are numerous applicants for the office of Parole Commissioner to be made vacant on July 1 by the resignation of Dr. Elmer Larkin, it was said at Sing Sing Prison today. More than thirty men have already applied.

The impression prevailed here that Governor Smith will select either a Judge or a former Judge for the place.

Former Supreme Court Justice Isaac N. Mills of Mount Vernon, who at one time was in the Appellate Division in Brooklyn, is looked upon as a probability.

James J. Long, Superintendent of Prisons, and a member of the Parole Board, denied that Dr. Larkin had resigned because of criticism. He said: "Dr. Larkin did not get cold feet over either the Brindell case or the Anderson case. There was nothing about either case to give anybody on the Parole Board cold feet."

Estranged from her husband, the police say, and unable to see her baby, who is in his custody in Philadelphia, a woman who said she was Frances Goldman, 26 years old, attempted suicide yesterday in her furnished room at 107 Clinton Street, by turning on two gas jets. She was unconscious when found and revived after half an hour's work with a pulmotor by Dr. Davis and removed to Gouverneur Hospital.

Mrs. Jacob Schulman, proprietress of the rooming house, told the police that the woman had rented the room a week ago, and that she believed her to be a graduate nurse.

All Postmasters Are Told To Clean Up Their Offices

WASHINGTON, June 28.—"Clean up your postoffices," is the gist of instructions sent by the Postoffice Department to all postmasters.

"The public likes to see a postoffice lobby look as well as the lobby of a bank," says John H. Bartlett, First Assistant Postmaster General in a circular letter to postmasters. "It is where they transact their very important business. If the postmaster makes it his personal business to attend to this we can expect a great improvement. Let us see if we can not keep our places of business in a little better shape, as well as doing our business a little better than formerly."

Suggestions for the cleaning up process are included in the circular letter, such as replacing obsolete posters with clean ones ad repairing bad floors.

MRS. P. G. GERRY WEDS DIPLOMAT

CEREMONY IN THIS CITY

ERIE, Pa., June 28.—Mrs. Mathilde Townsend Gerry, divorced wife of Senator Peter Goelet Gerry of Rhode Island, was married on Saturday to Benjamin Sumner Welles of Boston, who has been in the United States Diplomatic Service since 1917. The announcement was made by Mrs. Charles H. Strong, Mrs. Gerry's aunt, who said that the marriage took place in New York City or a near by town.

Mrs. Gerry, who was Miss Mathilde Townsend of Washington, was married to Senator Gerry in 1910. She obtained her divorce in Paris recently, the papers having been filed last November. In January of last year Mrs. Gerry bought for a price reported at $400,000 a necklace of forty-two black pearls which belonged to Prince Youssoupoff and were said to have belonged once to Catherine the Great.

Last month Mrs. Gerry characterized as ridiculous a report that she was to marry Welles and denied that she had received word that her divorce decree had been granted.

Benjamin Sumner Welles is a graduate of Harvard, class of 1914. In 1917 he became Secretary of the American Embassy at Tokio. In 1920 he was appointed Acting Chief of the Division of Latin-American Affairs in the State Department. In 1917 he married Esther Slater, daughter of Horatio Nelson Slater, who obtained a Paris divorce in 1923.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Benjamin Sumner Welles and Mrs. Gerry are both well known in Washington official, social and diplomatic circles. Mr. Welles was former chief of the Latin-American affairs of the Department of State but resigned in the Spring of 1922. After that he was sent to the Dominican Republic in connection with the plans of the American Government for evacuation of United States marines from that country, and in the latter part of 1922 he was utilized by the State Department in connection with the work of the Central American conference in Washington.

Mrs. Esther Slater Welles, his former wife, obtained a divorce from Mr. Welles in France on the latter's grounds of abandonment and refusal to live with his wife. She and Mr. Welles were married in April, 1915, at Webster, Mass. Welles was born in New York City, Oct. 14, 1892, and formerly made his home at Islip, L. I.

Mrs. Gerry is as well known in Paris, Philadelphia and Newport as she is in Washington where in her younger days she was one of the noted belles in the exclusive social set as well as a much-sought-after heiress. As Miss Mathilde Townsend, the daughter of Mrs. Mary Scott Townsend, whose mansion at 2,121 Massachusetts Avenue has for years been one of the show places of Washington, she was a noted international beauty, which reputation she still maintains.

The Townsend home on Massachusetts Avenue, sometimes called "the Ghost Palace," is one of the most palatial in America and the most admired example of purely French Renaissance architecture in Washington. On the site of this house originally stood a large brick mansion, which was the home of one of the silver kings of the West. Owing to a superstition that the old house should not be torn down to make room for a new one Mrs. Townsend had her mansion erected around the old house, theoretically not destroying it.

HERRIN NOW PRAYS; FORGETS OLD FEUDS

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 28 (AP).—The City of Herrin, long storm centre of Williamson County's bloody community strife and angry feuds, has abandoned old ways for new and is building peace on the foundation of the Golden Rule.

Members of a legislative committee which visited Herrin this week during a tour of the area devastated by the tornado which swept Southern Illinois last March, found the population happy and peaceable, the old grudges forgotten and the old hatreds buried in a spirit of recognition engendered in daily noon-day prayer meetings in the city's largest downtown theatre.

The committee arrived in Herrin shortly before noon and found every store closed. Many store windows displayed the sign:

"This place closes daily for the men's noon-day prayer meeting, Annex Theatre, 11:30 to 12 noon."

Few persons were seen on the streets and business was at a standstill while proprietors, clerks and salespeople attended the services.

At the meeting the legislators found men who could pray only in a foreign tongue standing shoulder to shoulder with the townsfolk who once were armed against them. The legislators are convinced the city has returned to the ways of peace; that the Golden Rule has replaced the blue steel pistol as the arbiter of honor.

Much credit for the success of the reconciliation enterprise is given to the Rev. Elmer Williams, a layman-evangelist, who inaugurated the daily meetings in May. Every pastor in the community is cooperating and as many as 1,000 persons have been brought into the daily services.

SYNAGOGUE'S GEMS LOOT OF CRACKSMEN

SAFE IS BLOWN BY NITRO

Congregation Had Gathered Collection Piece by Piece—Dismayed by the Loss.

For fourteen years, piece by piece, the 200 members of the congregation of the Synagogue Chevra Linas Azedek Anshi Ilenevey, now quartered on the top floor rear of the four-story synagogue building at 162 Madison Street, have collected their gold and silver religious service. Only last year was the final piece purchased. Every night it was locked in the small safe in the front of the synagogue room and Henry Linde, aged and deaf, watchman for the synagogue during all those fourteen years, stood guard over it.

Early yesterday morning, as Linde sat asleep on one of the synagogue benches, he was set upon in the dark, choked into insensibility, bound and gagged and the precious gold and silver religious service, which cost $1,000, was stolen from the safe.

The gaping empty safe told the story yesterday morning of how the bandits had drilled a small hole near the combination, put in nitroglycerine and had "blown" it.

It was shortly before 4 o'clock that Solomon Mananevich of 238 Clinton Street, rabbi of another synagogue on the second floor, came in to pray. With him was Samuel Sager of 209 South Third Street, Brooklyn. The rabbi heard faint cries, and the two investigated. They found Linde, still bound hand and foot but with the gag worked loose, lying on the floor in the rear of the top-floor synagogue.

Hyman Shivelansky of 248 South Second Street, Brooklyn, President of the synagogue, was notified and called the police of the Clinton Street Station. Detective Schneider was assigned to the case.

Linde said two men overpowered him before he could utter a sound. He was unconscious for some time, he said, but awoke to see the robbers bending over the safe, which they had wheeled from the synagogue room into a hall room just outside the door. They were working by the dim light of prayer candles. Then he heard the muffled sound of the explosion, and the bandits grabbed up the contents of the safe and fled.

The men apparently had entered a window in the rear of the top floor, after coming across roofs, and they escaped the same way. One of the small golden bells from the rabbi's crown was found on this roof, the police said.

The building is exclusively a synagogue building. Every other synagogue in the house has a complete gold and silver service, it was said, but nothing was touched in any of the others, the robbers concentrating on the little synagogue on the top floor.

The members of the congregation were dismayed yesterday morning. They lament the loss of their religious service [illegible] especially the silver mantle, the scifer torah, or Ten Commandmenss scroll, which were taken along with the other articles.

KEEP CONVICT FROM MATES.

Guards Fear Harm to Lifer for Testimony Against Accomplice.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., June 28.—The failure of William McNamara, a life prisoner, to return to Sing Sing after testifying against his accomplice at a trial in White Plains which resulted in the sentencing of the accomplice to the electric chair was explained today by prison attachés. McNamara has been held in the White Plains jail for "safe keeping," the Sing Sing prisoners being so bitter against him for "swearing his partner's life away" that reprisals are feared. The attachés said that McNamara's life would be at stake if fellow-prisoners got hold of him in the absence of guards.

McNamara was convicted of the murder of Gregory George in Dobbs Ferry in 1916 and was sentenced to die. The sentence was commuted, and after spending nine years in jail he was taken to White Plains recently to testify against Emil Klatt, captured in Minneapolis after a long search. It has been reported that Westchester authorities were seeking a pardon for McNamara.

SHOTS FOLLOW SERENADE.

Police Say Singer Wounded Man Who Laughed—Victim May Die.

A serenade at Mermaid Avenue and West Fifteenth Street, Coney Island, early yesterday, according to the police, led to the shooting of Marcuso Herraro, 31 years old, of 2,009 Mermaid Avenue. Herraro probably will die. Joseph Volpo of Railroad Avenue and West Nineteenth Street, said by the police to have been the serenader, was arrested and charged with the shooting.

Herraro and a group of men were walking along Mermaid Avenue, the police said, when they heard Volpo singing at the top of his voice to some one in a house on the block. They laughed. According to the police, Volpo grew angry, drew a pistol and fired five shots, one of which hit Herraro in the abdomen. Patrolman McAntee captured Volpo. The wounded man was taken to Coney Island Hospital. Although Herraro failed to identify Volpo as his assailant, the latter was held without bail in the Coney Island Court on a charge of felonious assault.

SAYS FURS WERE POTATOES.

Newark Dealer Has Man Arrested on Charge Trunks Were Switched.

"I paid him $4,500 for furs, and all I got was two bags of potatoes," said Jacob Rothman of 678 Springfield Avenue, Newark, when Coney Island detectives arrested Alfred Scharfman, a fur salesman, yesterday at his home at 64 West 108th Street and locked him up on a charge of grand larceny.

Rothman said that a little over a week ago in a restaurant on Surf Avenue, Coney Island, Scharfman showed him two trunks of furs and offered to sell them for $6,500. Hurrying to Newark, Rothman declared, he obtained $4,500 from a cousin, came back and made the purchase. He took the trunks away and when he opened one on reaching home found only potatoes.

Scharfman said that he had received only $1,100, for which he still expected to make a delivery. He denied turning over the potatoes for furs. He will be arraigned in the Coney Island Court this morning.

OSSINING, June 28.—Ousted from Sing Sing Prison as an undesirable, Charles Muller, blackmailer, who murdered Thomas L. Leeming, manufacturer of Brooklyn, three weeks ago, was transferred today to Clinton Prison at Dannemora, N. Y., where he will not enjoy as many privileges or as much recreation as prisoners at Sing Sing. He was transferred handcuffed and leg-ironed to another long-term criminal.

Hungry Thieves at Work in Pie Shop

Three hungry thieves were sought by Yonkers police yesterday after Max Kaufman reported that early in the morning his bakery shop at 136 Riverdale Avenue, Yonkers, was entered by young men who pucked up three large bags of pies and cakes, but were scared off in such a hurry they failed to take the pastry. Police searched the neighborhood, but found no suspicious characters with hungry looks.

Wife Says Detective, Transferred, Won't Go; Politics Behind Shift, Mrs. Faust Charges

George N. Faust, first grade detective sergeant, formerly attached to Commissioner Enright in a confidential capacity, will not go to the Kingsbridge Precinct in the Bronx to which he was transferred Saturday, his wife said yesterday at the Faust home in Far Rockaway. Faust, as soon as he learned of his transfer from a position of importance in the Detective Bureau at Headquarters to a comparatively insignificant post in the Bronx, applied for his twenty days' vacation, which was granted at once.

He was not at his home yesterday when Mrs. Faust said that he "positively will not go to the Kingsbridge Station." According to departmental procedure a transfer goes into effect at midnight of the day on which the order is issued. By obtaining his vacation Faust was able to postpone his obedience to the order to report for duty at the Bronx precinct. What his plans are Mrs. Faust would not say yesterday beyond stating emphatically that Sergeant Faust would never go to the Kingsbridge Station.

Asked if she knew the reason for his transfer, his wife said that it was "political" and referred inquirers to her husband for further information.

CRACKSMEN WORK ON THE SIDEWALK

SCARED BY BURGLAR ALARM

Safe robbers who operated on the theory that the safest place to "blow" open a safe was the sidewalk made a tour in Corona, Queens, during the early hours of yesterday morning. They tried three places. Twice they moved safes to the sidewalk, finally opening one and obtaining $300. The police of the Nwtown station would supply no details of the crimes.

The first stop on the yeggs' tour was Blatt's department store at 20 East Kingsland Avenue. In endeavoring to gain entrance through a side window the robbers touched off an electric burglar alarm. When two policemen from the Newtown station arrived, however, the thieves had departed in fright, empty-handed.

They next appeared at the Thomas Roulston grocery store at 11 East Kingsland Avenue, just down the street. They began operations there about an hour after the alarm at the dry goods store. They jimmied the front door and picked up the small safe. They carried it a block and then tried to open it. Apparently they were disturbed and fled. The policeman on post found the safe and with the aid of passers-by carried it back to the store.

At 6 o'clock, a man living across from the Roulston store at 60 West Polk Avenue, about a mile from the other store, heard a report which he attributed to the backfire of an automobile. When the police arrived in response to the summons of Patrick Sheehan, manager of the store, several hours later, however, they found that the report had been the explosion which ripped open the door of the safe. The robbers had carried it down the street and worked on the sidewalk.

ELECTRIC CAR KILLS TWO.

SCOTIA, N. Y., June 28 (AP).—Two persons were killed and three others injured here today when a Fonda, Johnstown & Gloversville electric railway car struck an automobile on the Saratoga Highway near here. The dead are Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Berning of Scotia, both of whom suffered fractured skulls, and the injured are their two young children and Miss Florence M. Buhrmaster of Scotia, who suffered lacerations. All were occupants of the Berning automobile.

The motorman and the conductor of the electric car were detained for examination after it was said they had failed to halt at the highway, as is customary. The tracks cross the highway near the overhead bridge of the Boston & Maine Railroad and the abutments obstruct the view from the highway. The automobile was crushed against one of the abutments.

JUNK IS OFF TO BERMUDA.

Craft, Owned by Stratford Man, Takes Message From Council.

STRATFORD, Conn., June 28 (AP).—Bearing a message of good-will from the Town Council of Stratford to the Colonial Secretary of Bermuda, the Chinese junk Amoy, said to be the first craft of its kind ever to appear on the Atlantic seaboard, sailed from Stratford today for the British West Indies.

Leroy Lewis of Stratford was at the tiller. He purchased the craft last Fall from Captain George Ward, the man who sailed the junk here from China.

The Amoy is sixty-eight feet long and draws but four feet of water. Fashioned throughout of camphor wood logs, cut in the interior of China and floated down stream to the City of Amoy, it was put together entirely by hand, bamboo pins being used in place of wire nails.

HELD AS MUSIC THIEF.

John DeVito, 24 years old, 111 Astor Place, Jersey City, loves music. Perhaps, said the police of the West Thirtieth Street Station, that is why eVito is accused by Patrolman Jazwick of carrying two mandolins, a violin and a banjo out of the Hellenic Music Company's store at 532 Eighth Avenue early yesterday.

Jazwik was patrolling his post at 4:30 o'clock when he saw a man come hurrying out of the music store, a bag in hand. He followed and as he would quicken his pace the man would speed up. When Jazwik wearied of this he put on full speed and arrested DeVito. At the station the man denied entering the Hellenic premises.

PISTOL PERMIT A SECRET.

Judge Grants One to an Artist and Asks Him Not to Tell.

Among four applicants who appeared in Yonkers City Court yesterday for a license to carry a revolver was Gaetano T. Conti, artist and designer of New York City, who received a permit after Judge Charles W. Boote had told him not to boast about it. The Judge told Mr. Conti, who lives at 36 Highland Avenue, Yonkers, that he did not wish to have too many persons running to him for permits to carry a pistol. Mr. Conti said he would not discuss the matter with his friends at all.

All four applicants, properly vouched for, received permits.

HEALTH MEN DEFEND MILK AS A FOOD

ANSWER DR. SUTHERLAND

The excellence of milk as a food was affirmed yesterday by many health experts in answer to statements made by Dr. John P. Sutherland, former Dean of the Boston Medical University School of Medicine, who, in an address last week before the American Institute of Homeopathy, raised doubt whether milk should be generally used for human consumption.

Announcement of their opinions was made by the Producers' and Consumers' Organizing Committee which aims at consolidation of the food distributers' agencies in the metropolitan area.

Three of the principal statements by Professor Sutherland in his address were:

Milk was intended to serve as a food only during infancy.

Milk of one species was not intended to be used by other species except when closely related.

Milk was not intended to serve as food for the adult of the species.

Among the experts from whom opinions on Professor Sutherland's address were obtained by the committee were:

Dr. Charles E. North, Secretary of the National Commission on Milk Standards, who organized and directed the study of pasteurization carried on under the auspices of the United States Public Health Service; Dr. William H. Park, Director of the Research Laboratories of the New York Health Department; Graham Lusk, Professor of Food and Chemistry at the Cornell University Medical College; Dr. S. Josephine Baker, former Chief of the Division of Child Hygiene of the New Health Department, and Dr. Walter Lester Carr, Secretary of the Milk Commission of the New York County Medical Society.

"The consumers of New York City," said Wilbur C. Phillips, Chairman of the committee, "have a deep and vital interest in milk and a right to know what is the truth about it. It is extremely unfortunate, from the standpoint of sound public education, that the single opinions of isolated individuals should chance to secure broad public attention for an attack on the food value of milk when the weight of scientific opinion not only favors the use of milk in the dietary of old and young, but strongly approves a material increase in the amount of milk now used, as a public health measure.

Dr. North's statement said: "After twenty-five years of intimate study of the milk supplies of American cities and an extensive practice in the supervision of sanitary milk production and numerous surveys of the relation of milk to public health and infant mortality, I am convinced that milk is the most important and valuable of human foods."

Dr. Park said: "The statement by Dr Sutherland that milk is only suitable for the species that produce it and is not suitable for the human adult is against the evidence that has been accumulated. It is recognized that children who cannot receive human milk do perfectly well on cow's milk and parent's milk when these are properly prepared and it is universal experience that adult human beings do extremely well on a cow's milk diet when that is necessary."

Dr. Carr declared: "Milk is the most valuable food we have and the increases in its consumption and especially in the consumption of certified milk which we have witnessed in New York during the last decade spells definite advances in the public health, especially in the health of infants and children."

According to Professor Lusk "No family of five should buy meat until they have bought at least three quarts of milk. Milk contains not only protein of animal origin but also a very valuable fat which has specific properties for growth."

Dr. Baker said: "From years of experience in dealing with children I can say unhesitatingly that clean cow's milk, properly modified, is the only satisfactory substitute for mother's milk when the latter is unobtainable."

SCIENTISTS CONCLUDE PASTEURIZING TESTS

Use More Than 5,000 Rabbits and Guinea Pigs and 162,153 Pounds of Milk.

More than 5,000 rabbits and guinea pigs, together with 162,153 pounds of milk, were used in tests extending over a period of two and a half years in connection with research work in the pasteurizing of milk by leading scientists of the country, who, according to announcement yesterday by the Borden Farm Products Company, will present their report on Wednesday afternoon at a meeting at the Museum of Hygiene of New York University and Bellevue Hospital.

A report of the United States Public Health Service, the Borden announcement said, declares that the results provide a notable contribution to the study of pasteurization on a large scale. The tests, numbering more than 3,000, were conducted at a country pasteurization plant placed at the disposal of the scientists by the Borden Farm Products Company.

Among those who cooperated in the research work Were Dr. Hugh S. Cumming, Surgeon General of the Public Health Service; Dr. W. A. Moore, Dean of the New York State Veterinary College at Cornell University, an authority on bovine tuberculosis; Dr. William H. Park, Director of the Bureau of Laboratories, New York City Department of Health and Professor of Bacteriology and Hygiene, New York University and Bellevue Medical College; Dr. Milton J. Rosenau, Professor of Preventive Medicine and Hygiene, Harvard University Medical School; Dr. Augustus P. Wadsworth, Director of Division of Laboratories and Research, State of New York, and Dr. Charles E. North, Director of the North Public Health Bureau, who organized the research staff. They were assisted by twenty-five bacteriologists and engineers.

A complete pasteurization outfit used in the experiments will be presented to the museum by the Borden Company. Health Commissioner Dr. Monaghan and representatives of Federal and State health departments will attend the meeting.

SURTAX CUT ASSURED AS SURPLUS MOUNTS

Even Advocates of High Rates Agree Maximum Will Go as Low as 25 Per Cent.

REVENUE IS RISING FAST

Surplus Will Be About $255,000,000 for Present Year—May Reach $400,000,000 Next Year.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—The unexpectedly heavy tax payments to the Treasury in the first six months of this year, which make it appear that a surplus of at least $400,000,000 will be accumulated during the next fiscal year under existing income and profits tax rates, have, in the opinion of political leaders and tax experts here, virtually put to rout those who still seek to keep the maximum surtax rate above 25 per cent. Whether a maximum rate of less than 25 per cent., as advocated by some leaders in both political parties, will be written into the law by the next Congress is the real question now at issue.

The high surtax advocates do not admit openly that the maximum rate in the revenue law to be written by the next Congress will not be kept at the present level of 40 per cent., plus a normal tax of 6 per cent. for which they fought successfully in the last Congress, but they are, nevertheless, making their plans now on the basis of a 25 per cent. surtax rate, plus a 4 or 6 per cent. normal rate.

There seems to be a pretty general agreement, in which both the high and low surtax elements are included, that the governmental expenditures and receipts have now been so balanced that a maximum surtax of not more than 25 per cent. is feasible and should be established. It also is agreed that this can be done and the tax rates on small incomes revised downward again and still leave a margin of safety between receipts and expenditures. The important relation of income and profits tax payments made during the first six months of the present calendar year to the tax reduction program is that these payments represent the first returns made under the new tax rates which went into effect on Jan. 1, 1925. The actual payments made show that a much larger revenue was received than had been anticipated in the early estimates, the excess over estimates for the six months being perhaps $150,000,000.

Test Shows Big Cut Can Be Made.

Thus the rates adopted in the last Congress have had a pretty thorough tryout and the forebodings of some who had held that the result would be disappointing from the viewpoint of revenue received have been completely disproved.

The Administration has contended that forecasts of what might be done in the way of further tax reductions would have to await this demonstration, and the result has been to bring suggestions at this time that an even sharper reduction can safely be made by the next Congress than had been thought possible.

The manner in which the returns under the present rates have exceeded expectations is shown best by the fact that before there was a chance to determine how the new rates would work out the prospective Treasury surplus for the fiscal year ending June 30 was put at $65,000,000. Taxes for the first six months of the current fiscal year were calculated under the old rates with the 25 per cent. horizontal reduction and for the second six months under the new tax rates now in effect.

Official estimates of the surplus for the current fiscal year were boosted from $68,000,000 to about $100,000,000 soon after the first quarterly instalment of taxes based on the present rates was paid in March and showed beyond doubt that the present tax rates would give a much heavier return in revenue to the Government than had been anticipated.

Since then officials from time to time have intimated that the surplus would even exceed $100,000,000 by a considerable amount, and when the returns for the second quarterly payment, due on June 15, began to pour into the Treasury it was suddenly realized that the surplus would go over $200,000,000. This information was obtained by the experts just in time to insert it into the budget speech made by President Coolidge on June 22 when he forecast a surplus at the end of the present fiscal year of about $200,000,000.

During the last few days the payments have been continuing in such volume that other millions have been added to the prospective surplus by the Government experts. It is understood that the $250,000,000 mark has been passed with the receipts on hand up to today, and there are two days of the fiscal year remaining. The best calculations now are that the surplus will be $255,000,000 or better.

Before this inrush of revenue in excess of estimates, the surplus for the next fiscal year, which ends on June 30, 1926, had been estimated at $290,000,000. This estimate was based upon the supposition that the present rates would remain in effect. But if the actual results obtained under these rates for the present year are now to be used as a basis for calculations, it is obvious that the actual surplus at the close of the next fiscal year would be much greater than the estimate of $290,000,000 and probably would pass $400,000,000.

It is this surplus for 1926 that Congress is "shooting at" in working out how much less revenue will be needed to run the Government next year than would be returned if the present tax rates were left undisturbed. There is also to be taken into account possible reductions in Government expenditures below the estimates which may have been made for the coming year.

The Treasury has advocated reduction in rates which would cut not more than $300,000,000 from the Government revenues during 1925-26, but some of the leaders are talking of $400,000,000 or more. With such a margin it is the belief that there is now room for a considerable reduction in the surtax rates as well as in rates on the smaller incomes.

Up to the present time the Treasury has been giving its advice when consulted by Chairman Green or other Congressional leaders, but has put forward no "plan" as it did during the last tax reduction fight. It is understood here that Secretary Mellon will keep in the background as much as possible.

The dispatch from Swampscott in THE TIMES today stating that President Coolidge would personally take the Administration leadership in making suggestions so far as the executive branches of the Government are concerned, instead of appearing as he did in the last fight as merely backing up the recommendations of Secretary Mellon, was read with great interest here and is accepted as representing just about the way the situation shapes up. President Coolidge, as the leader in the economy campaign which he has carried on almost since entering upon his office, is in a much stronger position with the people to obtain support for tax reduction proposals he believes wisest than any other executive officer of the Government.

SUCCESS IN BUILDING IS ST. JOHN'S PRAYER

$5,000,000 STILL NEEDED

Manning, on the Eve of His Vacation, Announces Fund Total of More Than $10,000,000.

Bishop William T. Manning in an address at the 4 o'clock service in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine yesterday afternoon announced that more than $10,000,000 had been subscribed to complete the cathedral, and that $5,000,000 remained to be raised. At the end of his remarks, the congregation rose and repeated with him a special prayer for the cathedral.

The address was Bishop Manning's last public utterance before leaving on his vacation. He said:

"Before leaving the city for a little time I want again to express my appreciation of the truly wonderful response made to the appeal for the building of this metropolitan cathedral and of the interest shown in it by people of every sort as a glorious work of architecture, a great civic and religious institution, the greatest church ever erected in America and one of the two or three greatest in the world. It is widely recognized that the erection of this cathedral is a religious event of importance not only to this city but to our whole land.

"At least 300,000 people have visited the cathedral during the past year, a far greater number than have been received at some of our best known public institutions of art and education. The response to the appeal for the cathedral has shown the power with which a distinctly idealistic and religious appeal speaks to the hearts of our people. I doubt if any university or hospital or other good cause ever received such a vast number of gifts small and large from people of all kinds as have been received for the cathedral.

"Of the $15,000,000 needed to complete the building a little over $10,000,000 is now assured leaving about $5,000,000 still to be raised.

"The interest in the undertaking continues, and will continue until the completion of the magnificent edifice is assured. The gifts continue to come in each week. Among those recently received was one of $500 from the Greek American Florists Association, one of $7.32 from a little Sunday School in Riceville, Mont., for the Children's Arch, and one of $200 from the Art Glass Workers' Union. The funds to build the west front and the north transept are being raised respectively by the Business Men's Division and the Women's Division.

"The doctors, the lawyers, the representatives of the army and navy, the representatives of labor and other important groups are continuing their work to complete their quotas. The polo and tennis matches and other benefits arranged by the Division of Sports and Recreations have been participated in by the most noted players of the world and have added substantially to the fund which is being raised by that division. Work on the nave and on the foundation of the west front is actively going forward.

"The Peekskill golden granite of which the great structure is to be built is being quarried in our own State. Stone for various parts of the building is being quarried, or cut, in Indiana, in Connecticut and in Maine. The granite for some of the great columns is coming from Somes Sound, a Northeast Harbor. The walls of the nave are already rising. By next Autumn we expect they will have risen to a height of thirty feet.

"On Nov. 9, at 4 P. M., with due ceremony we shall lay the foundation stone of the nave, an event of high importance in the history of the cathedral and in the religious history of New York. I ask the continued interest and the prayers of all of you for this great undertaking, which will give strength to the whole cause of religion in our city. And I ask you now to stand and join with me in the prayer which I have issued for public and private use for the building of the cathedral and for the workmen engaged in it. The prayer is now being printed and can be obtained by all who wish to appy for it."

The prayer follows:

"Almighty and Everlasting God, Who didst put it into the hearts of Thy servants to build in this diocese a cathedral for Thy praise and worship, a house of prayer for all people, let Thy blessing be upon the work now begun and upon our labors for its completion. Preserve the workmen from danger and accident, and give to each one a sense of his responsibility for this great undertaking. Stir in all of us the desire to have part in this work according to our means. And grant that the cathedral now to be built may stand through the ages for the honor of Thy Holy Name and for the spread of righteousness, truth and love among all men, through Jesus Christ, Thy Son, our Lord. Amen."

BATTLING MOTORISTS FINED.

Special to The New York Times.

PEEKSKILL, June 28.—Charged with coming to blows in a crowded street here as a sequel to a five-mile automobile race for the right of way upon the Albany Post Road, Paul and Arthur Lundgren, brothers, and Henry and Christopher Ebbrecht, father and son, were fined $10 each today in police court.

According to Sergeant Oliver Lee, the Ebbrechts, who live at 1,206 Elm Street, Brooklyn, said they were driving ahead of the Lundgren brothers, who kept trying to pass them. When they reached a traffic congestion at Division and South Streets, in the heart of Peekskill's business section, the occupants of both cars got out and a lively mill in which fists flew freely ensued. Patrolman Paul Gaines arrested all four. Paul Lundgren lives at 458 Third Avenue, Manhattan, and Arthur at 211 Lexington Avenue, Manhattan.

Menagerie in Brooklyn Store.

A menagerie composed of many varieties of birds and beasts will open today on the roof of the Namm Store at 452 Fulton Street, Brooklyn. Among the animals exhibited will be Jenny, a chimpanzee, and a seventeen-foot anaconda from South America. There is also a white monkey from Brazil, Mona monkeys from Africa, an aigrette, an agatui, a peccary, a coati-mundi, and an eagle, a wild hawk, two red macawe, a bittern, two crown owls, two rail birds, and a boat-billed heron, all from Brazil.

WORLD PEACE AGENT IS WOMAN, HE SAYS

300 HERE FOR CONVENTION

Three hundred members of the Women's Overseas Service League, which is holding its annual convention at the Waldorf this week, attended a memorial service at St. Thomas's Church yesterday morning, and heard a plea for world peace delivered by the Rev. Dr. Duncan H. Browne, rector of St. James's Church, Chicago, and chaplain during the war of the 305th Regiment of the Seventy-seventh Division.

"The great purpose of the World War was to gain peace," Dr. Browne declared, "and those who attack peace haven't the broad vision of the great spiritual purpose of the world today. I think people want a clearer understanding with each other and desire to break down the barriers that have separated the peoples of the world. Much of the task in securing peace rests on women. You women get everything in time; why can't you get peace? Go forward organized to this task."

Dr. Browne referred to the work done by the women of the Overseas Service League during the war. "The most remarkable phenomenon during the great war was woman," he said. "The conflict seemed to sum up what woman has stood for for centuries. It illustrated her organizing ability and her care for the sick and needy—her strength and her gentleness." Florence Nightingale, he went on to say, emerged as the greatest single figure of the Crimean War, but "in the case of the World War it is impossible to name a single woman. Countless women from this country, as from other nations, rendered a service of which Florence Nightingale in her service was but the symbol."

Science as Peace Agent.

Dr. Browne spoke also of the influence of science in bringing about world peace. "Science spells peace rather than war, if it is interpreted correctly. The great spiritual message of modern science, bound up in radio, telegraphy and other things, is for a closer union of the peoples of the world. It is the talk of the men and women of America to see the broad vision of a new age and do their utmost to promote peace among nations."

The delegates to the convention, who come from almost every State in the Union, saw service during the war as members of welfare organizations and also as nurses in hospitals in France. Most of those at the service yesterday wore their wartime uniforms, and after the benediction paid tribute to the 241 American women who died in the overseas service.

Yesterday afternoon the delegates attended a service in St. Paul's Chapel, Broadway and Vesey Street, by special invitation of the Rev. Joseph P. McComas, the vicar. In the evening a buffet supper took place at the Town Hall Club, under the auspices of the New York Y. M. C. A. unit. Mrs. Francis Rogers was hostess and was assisted by Mrs. Frank Ransom, Mrs. Arthur Dwight, Miss Marion Swift, Miss Marietta Atwood, Miss Agnes Morrow, and Mrs. Willard Nellis. After the supper there was a musical program by Mabel Beddoe, contralto; Roszi Verady, violoncellist, and William Clark, tenor, and a series of original monologues by Mrs. Rogers.

The convention will continue through Wednesday. Today's program includes business sessions in the morning and the early afternoon. Later in the day Mrs. Henry P. Davison will entertain the delegates at a garden party at her home at Locust Valley, L. I. Preceding the reception a delegation from the league, consisting of Miss Mary A. Bogart, National President; Miss Ethel Boyd Bowers, National Treasurer; Miss Anne Hoyt, convention Chairman, and a group of other officers and delegates will place a wreath on the grave of the late Henry P. Davison, under whom many members of the league served while he was head of the American Red Cross in Europe during the war.

Gen. and Mrs. Summerall to Entertain.

Maj. Gen. Charles P. Summerall, Commanding General at Governors Island, and Mrs. Summerall will entertain the delegates at a garden party on the island tomorrow afternoon. In the evening the women of the league will attend the performance of "What Price Glory" at the Plymouth Theatre.

Following the final business session of the convention on Wednesday a dinner will be held at the Waldorf-Astoria, at which General Summerall and Brig. Gen. Johnson Hagood, U. S. A., are expected to be the principal speakers.

Speeches also will be made by Miss Ida Tarbell, Mrs. Ballington Booth, Miss Elsie Janis and Robert G. Patterson, representing the American Legion of New York County. Among the other guests who are expected to be present are Brig. Gen. William S. Graves, U. S. A.; Mrs. Henry P. Davison, Mrs. William S. Graves, Mrs. Charles P. Summerall, Mrs. W. K. Draper, Chairman of the New York County Chapter of the American Red Cross, and M. A. Cougnenc, President of the Federation of French World War Veterans.

The dinner will be open to the public, according to announcement from the league's headquarters. Boxes in the Waldorf's ballroom will be occupied by representatives of various veterans' organizations, including the Veterans' Bureau, the American Red Cross, the Soldiers and Sailors Club, the Dugout, the Old Canteen, Lafayette Post, 140, the Grand Army of the Republic; the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Veterans of Belleau Wood, the "Lest We Forget" Committee and the Stage Women's War Relief.

LAUDS RIGHTEOUS WRATH.

Men Ought to Be Angry Sometimes, Says Dr. Brown of Yale.

"There are times when it is necessary to become righteously indignant," declared the Rev. Dr. Charles R. Brown, Dean of the Divinity School of Yale University, in his sermon on "John, the Man of Temper," in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street, yesterday morning.

"The real John was not the quiet, modest, placid, passive man as he is represented in stained glass windows and art galleries, but a man of violent temper, strong, resolute and ambitious, who even wanted in his earlier days to 'get in on the ground floor of Heaven,'" Dean Brown said. "In many respects Theodore Roosevelt's character was a modern prototype of that of John the Baptist.

"There is capacity in strong, intense natures, especially when they are brought into the service of Jesus Christ. The men who go the furthest are frequently those who do not know just where their activities will lead them, especially when they are pursuing the flying goal of service. They are frequently narrow and bigoted and sometimes go to extremes, but they generally accomplish something.

"The man who never gets angry does not amount to much. Mechanical devotion is a chilly thing. The lukewarm person who is neither fish, flesh nor fowl is the hardest one for the Church to reach. If a ship is heading in the wrong direction, it can be righted, but it is difficult to do anything with one that is drifting. So it is with the spineless, weak, jellyfish type of human derelict."

DR. COFFIN SEES US AS A WORLD MENACE

In Sermon on Responsibility, He Calls a Straying Nation a Danger to Peace.

A proper understanding of the scope and significance of the word neighbor, as illustrated in the Deuteronomic code of the Old Testament and in Christ's parable of the good samaritan, is needed if democracy is to be justified, the Rev. Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin, pastor of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, Madison Avenue and Seventy-third Street, said yesterday morning in a sermon on Responsibility. He quoted Viscount Bryce as having said that the democratic form of government has brought us no nearer the friendly feeling and the sense of human brotherhood among the peoples of the world toward one another.

Eleven years ago this month, Dr. Coffin said, a local quarrel between Austria and Serbia resulted in a war which eventually took two million American youths overseas and left there the bodies of thousands of them. In the Deuteronomic code, the Israelite was commanded to return a straying ox or ass even to his enemy. Christ himself hardly went further than that. The reason for the injunction is obvious. A straying animal is not merely a loss to its owner; it is a menace to the community. It may trample down a garden, browse on fruit-bushes or injure a child.

"When will this complacent land of ours learn that a straying nation endangers the peace of mankind, and that the world, like ancient Israel, must organize to make it somebody's business to see to it that a roving nation is put back where it belongs? This is not the time to stop talking about devising a system to maintain our world in peace, however wearied with such talk we may have grown. It is a day in which the successors of Israel's prophetic teachers in every land, and especially in this self-centred, blindly optimistic country, should do their utmost to quicken the national conscience with a sense of obligation to the whole world, with which, whether we like it or not, we are tied up in one community."

Labeling as "cheap" the patriotism that consists in echoing the popular shibboleths of the hour and in howling down persons equally devoted to the nation who happen to think differently, Dr. Coffin said that the United States has dire need of the patriotism which thinks for itself, which seeks to keep posted on public questions, and which is ready, in school, church, political party and civic organization, to do the steady, hard chores by which our public life is kept vigorous.

"New York City is poor in civic servants," he said, "because a large number of its best educated men and women regard it only as a useful centre in which to transact their business and a convenient place to find their pleasures for a certain number of months in the year. Their consciences never drive them to enlist personally in the task of making its civic institutions more effective, of leading up its children to righteous life and of befriending one another in its population in the friendliness of Christ. Public service goes back to conscience every time."

ASKS FEDERAL LAWS TO PROHIBIT PISTOLS

The Rev. C. E. Wagner Says Guns Are More Common in Homes Than Rolling Pins.

Urging Federal legislation for "a pistol-less America," the Rev. C. Everett Wagner in his sermon yesterday in the West Side Methodist Episcopal Church, 461 West Forty-fourth Street, said:

"The right arm of the bandit would be amputated if the measures for a prohibitive tax upon pistols and the closing of the mails to firearms should be passed by the next Congress. The pistol is almost the universal weapon used by thieves. The ease with which this instrument of stealing and murder is obtained can be held as the major cause for the enormous number of crimes in the United States.

"When the facts are known that 110,000,000 people in this country have as many pistols as all the other people in the world, which is fourteen times as many as any other similar number of people, the citizens will wake up to the existing alarming situation. The revolver is more common in this country than the rolling pin. Hundreds of families can't comprehend what home might be without a pistol.

"This is the greatest cause for the greater number of hold-ups and murders in the United States than in the British Isles, France and other nations. Another possible major reason would be the character conditions. None of us believes that the moral and religious standards of our people as an entire group are worse than those of other countries. The only fair and adequate explanation for the increased number of crimes and deadly shooting here is the prevalency of the American people to have pistols in their homes, for that makes it dead easy for the bandits to secure their partners, the revolvers. There is no question but the criminal wave would be broken if we could eliminate the right arm of the robber by initiating a pistol-less America."

MORE TEETH IN SUNDAY LAW

The Rev. John Ferguson, General Secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance of New York, announced yesterday in an address in the First Methodist Episcopal Church, Los Angeles, that new efforts to enact Sabbath legislation will be made at the next session of the Legislature at Albany, according to a digest of his remarks made public here. He said, in part:

"When the Jenks bill was introduced in the New York Assembly last Winter some people consider it a 'joker.' It is anything but a joke. The Lord's Day Alliance of New York State means business on this matter, and that bill, revised, with more teeth in it, will go back to the Assembly at the next meeting, but it goes there this time with more prestige and with a far greater number of churches back of it and with more strength on the part of the constituency of all churches advocating its passage.

"I want to announce here and now that the Lord's Day Alliance of New York, with its Board of Directors solidly back of us as one man, is out to accomplish the goal—the passage of an adequate but just civil Sabbath law in New York State which will put teeth into it—so the Sabbath lawbreaker who is bent on destruction for commercial reasons will be afraid to break the law because of its penalty."

PASTOR HITS JUSTICE FORD.

Dr. Reisner Attacks Remarks on Cocktail Parties.

The Rev. Dr. Christian F. Reisner, pastor of the Chelsea Methodist Church, 178th Street, west of Broadway, in his sermon last night criticised Supreme Court Justice John Ford for his recent remarks on cocktail parties. He said:

"While one Judge severely condemns and sentences a girl who discharged a revolver in the midst of a drunken brawl and wrestling match which caused a death, another Judge assures us from the bench that we ought not be shocked over women's drinking cocktails and highballs since he found that his own relatives do so, and still another Judge publicly announces that the sale of liquor by a bootlegger 'is not wrongful or immoral.' Such statements are at least dangerous, for we must highly respect our Judges, who dispense law and most of them carefully guard their influence."

RELIGION TOO EASY, DR. DAVIS ASSERTS

FOR A FIRMER DISCIPLINE

A "high tariff" in religion resulting in the exclusion of the cheap substitutes devised by those who would make worship "easy" was advocated yesterday morning by the Rev. Dr. John L. Davis in the Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, at 131 West 104th Street. In Dr. Davis's opinion many church organizations are cheapening religion by attempting to make worship easy and popular. This has resulted, he said, in many of the best and most intellectual members leaving churches in disgust.

"We will never reach a wholesome, intellectual person by a cheap, easy religion," continued Dr. Davis. "The churches are not strict enough. Recently three men were expelled from the Stock Exchange for dishonest practices. Now all of these men were members of Christian churches, but in no case did their churches take any action to discipline them.

"We are making it too easy. I believe in a high tariff in religion, so high that those who are able to climb the bars and get in will be finer and better than they are now. Much religion nowadays is nothing but moral cologne water. The cry is always to make everything 'easy,' to attract congregations.

"The theory is that more people will 'get' religion if it is made easy and convenient. It was for this reason that the golden calf was made in Biblical days.

"Many people use the church too, in these days, for social and business purposes. They say that they are 'broad-minded' and that one religion is as good as another. What they mean is that they have no religion at all but will join any church which will bring them more business friends or more social prestige. Such people would join the Devil if they could.

"But all religions are not equal, any more than all people are equal. I believe that there is but one true religion, and that it does make a difference what you believe. We must be tolerant though. I can see that the Jews and Catholics are just as good as I am, but I couldn't be a Jew or a Catholic.

"Another alteration some make in modern religion to make it easy is the elimination of the mystery, or divinity. We believe that the Bible is divinely inspired. I can agree that many of the selections which Mr. Wells has included in his new 'Bible' are very fine, but they are all of human origin. It is the same difference that there is between the church and the Kingdom of God. The church is a human institution which you can join. The Kingdom of God is divine and you cannot 'join' in the same sense. We all believe that the Bible is the voice of God.

"Then, too, they have tried to drag religion into politics. They tried it in the recent Democratic Convention, and it was proved that it did not work. They were trying to use it for votes. It works the other way round. People united religiously will soon be united politically.

"The radio is another device for making worship easy. I do not mean to undervalue the radio. I have spoken over it myself and I feel that it can be a tremendous force for good, but it will never take the place of church services because it is too easy. Religion must not and cannot be easy. It is a hard thing to believe. Faith requires a real effort and all these efforts to popularize the churches will only work harm. Serious, intelligent people will lose all respect for an institution which resorts to tricks to keep itself before the public."

SEES JUSTICE MAN'S DUTY.

Dr. Wylie Says Ambition Is Given Men to Make Them Better.

In his last sermon for this Summer in the Central Presbyterian Church, Madison Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street, the Rev. Dr. Dwight Witherspoon Wylie said yesterday:

"To many men life is a battle, to others it is an endurance test, to others it seems as if they were born between two worlds and that this one was filled with disillusion and trial, and tribulation, and disappointment and failure.

"But life is, and life shall be, and it is the aim of every rational being to make the most of himself, to do the best for others, and to have a right relation to God. Man look for law and order in this world, but also for justice. Justice has been defined for many centuries as doing those things which belong to one's self and not to do those things which will make life more difficult or more burdensome to others.

"It is impossible for a man to be just except he is at his best, giving his best to others and living in the right relation to God. This ambition has been given to us, not to solve our doubts, but these experiences have been created to make us better men and to make life better for others. Our business is not to set others right, but to see wherein we are wrong ourselves. It is therefore necessary that our powers shall be concentrated upon our own tasks, remembering always that no man liveth to himself."

SUGGESTS RELIGIOUS RULES

Dr. Young Gives Regulations for Those on Vacations.

The following rules for religious persons were suggested by the Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young last night in his sermon in the Bedford Presbyterian Church, Nostrand Avenue, Brooklyn:

"Eschew the idea that you can lay up religion enough through the Winter to last through the Summer. Piety, like the ancient manna, will not keep sweet of itself from one day to another.

"Do not assume that it takes less grace to keep you on vacation than when you are at your regular tasks. It probably takes ten times as much.

"Never by act or word or example make it harder for some one else to be religious. You are your brother's keeper, whether you choose to be or not.

"Avoid the notion that recreation consists in giving the flesh its fling. None of us has so overdone the spiritual as to require the opposite as a respite.

"Beware lest you load your mind with trash and regale your eyes with the degrading and your ears with the vain in an effort to be gay. It is not a sprinkle of powdered sugar that your tired nature needs; but wholesome, different occupation and beneficial, different experiences.

"Join the Six Minutes Summer Club. It started only the other day. Those who belong to it mark off at least six minutes at the very beginning of the day and give the first part to reading the Scriptures and the second to prayer and the third to listening to God. Become good listeners to the Almighty, out in the open or shut in or wherever you are. The majority of us try to walk to God more than we try to hear what He is saying to us.

"Review mentally every day the main points you really believe in your heart of hearts concerning the Deity and your duty to Him and fellow-humankind and then try to practice them. We likely have already learned enough or all we will learn till we do a little more what we now know.

"Remember how many others have it worse than you and how much worse your own condition might be and thank God for your blessings."

SAYS CHURCH NEEDS TO BE OPEN-MINDED

Dr. Trexler Installs Rev. F. C. Fry as Pastor of Lutheran Church in Yonkers.

Installing the Rev. Franklin C. Fry as pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Yonkers, the Rev. Dr. Samuel Trexler, President of the Lutheran Synod of New York and New England, said in his sermon yesterday that the modern Church must have a bigger conception of its place in the world than that of merely repeating the work of the past.

"The Church must primarily be open-minded, so as to receive a new vision of her tasks and opportunities," he said. "It is along the line of least resistance that we accept the program which the Church has had in the days of our ancestors. A newer study of the plan of Christ, as well as the needs of mankind, must make the Church, if she be sincere, totally revise her program. Much of our religious effort has been self-centred, but the Church is beginning to realize that if we would save our lives we must lose them for Christ's sake.

"Much of the Church's effort has been along the line of small endeavor, calling for small sacrifices and limited service. With a world vision, however, the Church is coming to realize that the business of Christ is the greatest enterprise in the world, and, therefore, requires of a man the very finest and best that God has given him.

"It is the reception of these larger visions that gives the Church the dimensions and the spirit which should determine her life and activities. It is a striking note that prevails throughout the entire message of Christ that He constantly deals with universals. His gospel knows no limitation such as man artificially enforces. His command to His disciples is 'Go into all the world.' Such a vision must the Church be ready to receive.

"The people of our Christian congregations should find time for the reading of religious books and papers. Despite the fact that this is a moving picture age, a radio age, it is also a reading age. It is interesting to see how much people read of the Sunday newspapers. There is a great eagerness for news. What a marvelous thing it would be if Christian people would take the same interest in religious literature. I have been astonished at the growth of the trade journals. If every one is reading his own trade journal, why should not Christians read their own journals that tell of the business of Christ?"

CALLS RELIGION VITAL IN PHILOSOPHY OF LIFE

Dean Mathews Says It Helps Us by Faith Where We Cannot Always Understand.

"If I had to choose between a mechanistic interpretation of life and a strict Calvinistic doctrine of foreordination, I should choose the latter," said Dean Shailer Mathews of the Chicago University Divinity School, in a sermon yesterday in the Park Avenue Baptist Church, Sixty-fourth Street and Park Avenue.

"I would rather feel that I was in the hands of a loving and merciful God than that my life was controlled by a blind selective process," the Dean continued. "As a matter of fact, however, the choice is not strictly between these two ideas."

Dean Mathews went on to discuss various types of life philosophies—the hedonistic, the stoic, the cynical, and what he called "the myopic-optimistic."

"The philosophy of life which turns to pleasure and discards suffering is not really a brave one," he said. "It is a philosophy of surrender to our animalism. The stoic philosophy of the man with 'head bloody but unbowed' stirs our admiration, but we can never quite believe that such a man is really the 'captain of his fate.'"

"For the near-sighted pessimist or the equally near-sighted optimist we can have little admiration. To build a philosophy of life without reckoning on religion is to leave out one of the vital elements. There is a difference between those who love God and trust Him and those who attempt to explain everything by their simple philosophy.

"For those who love God, all things work together for good. Religion, faith in God, brings this thought to our philosophy of life, and helps us to understand why sometimes goodness is not immediately rewarded, why every man who is honest is not rich. Philosophy alone gives us no understanding; religion accepts the fact that we cannot always understand and gives us faith."

SEES TREND TO JUDAISM.

Rev. Mr. Potter Says Christianity Is Undergoing a Change.

Christianity is returning toward Judaism, said the Rev. Charles Francis Potter yesterday in his sermon, "Is Christianity Returning to Judaism?" in the West Side Unitarian Church, 544 Cathedral Parkway. He said in part:

"The Christian religion is undergoing a remarkable change, as is easily recognized by even the most casual observer. There is a trend which has already produced effects such as to make even the orthodox churches of today hardly recognizable as such.

"That trend is taking Christianity toward Judaism. When a noted Baptist preacher in a Presbyterian pulpit says that real Christianity is to be found in the religion of Jesus rather than in the religion about Jesus, and when that statement is hailed as true and welcomed as prophetic, you have your answer to the question of my subject.

"The present-day tendency in Christianity to go back behind the theological Christ of the Middle Ages to the human Jesus of the Gospels is bound to result in a closer approach to the ethical monotheism of Judaism.

"The trend of even evangelical Christianity is obviously toward the liberal position of following Jesus rather than worshiping Him. He is increasingly a leader rather than a deity.

"Judaism itself has changed. Liberal Jews now recognize Jesus as a great Hebrew prophet. Consequently we ought honestly to admit a distinct trend in Christianity toward Judaism. This approach of two great religions toward each other is a very hopeful sign. Perhaps it is the first step toward that great religion of the future which will minimize the differences between religions and magnify their common beliefs."

REVIEWS NOVEL IN SERMON.

Rev. J. H. Randall Hails Lewis's Attack on Standardization.

Reviewing Sinclair Lewis's "Arrowsmith" in the Community Church, Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street yesterday, the Rev. John Herman Randall called the author a great satirist and symbolist. "What makes 'Arrowsmith' an interesting book is not primarily its literary merit, neither the fact that it is a best seller. 'Arrowsmith,' like 'Main Street' and 'Babbitt,' is an illustration of the struggle of the aspiring individual and the world without. It is a picture of the conflict of the spirit aspiring to know and to be, against the forces tending to standardize life throughout the world and especially in the United States."

The present tendency of standardizing life in all its active phases, Mr. Randall ascribes mainly to the rise of machinery. "The machine has gradually become the symbol of society and men have come to be considered as mere cogs in the vast social machine," he said. "Cogs entirely subordinated to the functioning of the whole machine. We see this tendency in the talk about the '100 per cent. Americanism' which is nothing else but the belief that all Americans should be so alike as to be interchangeable."

EULOGIZES DAWES AS GREAT CHRISTIAN

KEPT TO IT WITH LOYALTY

The Rev. Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor of the First Congregational Church, Washington, D. C., which President Coolidge attends, preached yesterday morning in the First Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Eleventh Street. He praised Vice President Charles G. Dawes for the way he had conducted the Senate. Dr. Pierce declared that in spite of widely published statements to the contrary, Mr. Dawes is a church member. The President's pastor proclaimed General Dawes "a great Presbyterian." Mr. Dawes is a member of the First Presbyterian Church, Marietta, Ohio, he said.

Dr. Pierce declared the world needed such strong Christian characters as that of the Vice President. He also eulogized Mr. Coolidge for what he was doing for economy in government.

"We are having an interesting character in Washington in the person of our energetic Vice President," the preacher said. "General Dawes is in a campaign to make a majority rule in the United States Senate possible.

"The right of a Senator to speak upon any subject before that body and to present what he deems to be truth about any question is a sacred right. But what has this to do with allowing an individual Senator or a small minority to read long chapters from books and to speak for hours simply to kill time, simply to prevent the majority from acting, or simply to compel the Senate to include in its enactments what a few individuals demand? Is not General Dawes putting the larger good in place of individual privilege when he demands that the Senate be allowed to act without defeat by some irreconcilable Senator?

Dr. Pierce remarked, in lighter vein, that he wished General Dawes were a Congregationalist. "He speaks strong Presbyterian language sometimes, does he not?" he asked, with a smile. Then he spoke seriously of General Dawes joining the church.

"At the very hour of his birth," he said, "the First Presbyterian Church of Marietta, Ohio, in which town the Vice President was born, was being organized. His father and mother were charter members of it. Because of his birth his mother had to summon her uncle and their family physician out of the organization meeting.

"In grateful recognition of the Divine Providence which accorded them a son at the very time at which the First Presbyterian Church of Marietta was born, the parents of General Dawes asked and obtained the privilege of giving the pulpit furniture, including the pulpit Bible, to the newly organized church.

"It was this church which Charles Dawes joined as a lad. With a fine sentiment and strong loyalty he has kept his membership in that church ever since. The world needs such strong characters, who attest their religious faith by virile deeds."

Speaking of Mr. Coolidge's efforts at economy in Government, Dr. Pierce said: "The papers are full just now of the efforts of the President to reduce the cost of government and to lessen the burden of taxation. This may make him very popular in the City of Washington, and for very obvious reasons. When economies in the Government lessen the number of employes by 10,000, that does not popularize the President among those who lose office.

"A modest inauguration is not popular with merchants and hotel-keepers in the city who hoped to profit many thousands of dollars by a magnificent occasion.

"Is this policy of the President due to mercenary qualities? Not for a minute! It is due to a desire to safeguard to every citizen the right to have the largest possible amount of his own money to spend."

CALLS EVOLUTION DOGMA OF INFIDELS

Dr. McKoy Extols Tennessee's Grit in Putting Scopes on Trial.

The Rev. Dr. Charles F. McKoy, pastor of the Greene Avenue Baptist Church, Greene Avenue near Lewis Avenue, Brooklyn, in his sermon last night attacked the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, John T. Scopes and all evolutionists and modernists in the Church. He said:

"The Baptist denomination is in grave peril today. At the approaching national convention in Seattle, modernism and fundamentalism will come together in close grips. The handwriting is on the wall. If the Baptist denomination follows these infidel preachers who are trying to cram evolution and agnosticism down the throats of our people, then some future prophet will write over the ruins of our vanished splendors: 'Ichabod! Ichabod! Thy glory hath departed.'

"We are paying with spiritual nitroglycerine. An explosion is inevitable. Evolution battles God, degrades man, and makes human life an ugly and beastly thing. It is a lie of hell. It is the devil's dope. This doctrine was first promulgated by infidels. Its very origin is suspicious. It has the stench of the bottomless pit.

"If Mr. Scopes wishes to act as an ambassador of the devil in teaching the doctrine of evolution let him seek a position in some of our universities where atheism, pantheism, deism and agnosticism are openly taught.

"Thank God that the people of Tennessee have grit enough to fight this dogma of animalism. While I protest and detest this doctrine that man is a descendant of some animal resembling the modern ape, I am compelled to admit that though we may not be descended from monkeys yet some of the preachers of today are headed that way. These monkey preachers believe some highbrow cataclysm which knows nothing at all rather than the Almighty God who has revealed His mind in His holy word.

"If Jesus Christ were preaching in some pulpit, here in New York City today Dr. Fosdick would regard him as an ignoramus. Christ taught and declared the very things that Dr. Fosdick so vehemently denies. Christ could never get a call to the Park Avenue Baptist Church. He is not near enough to the ideas being taught by some of our modernists who have become wiser than God.

"Modernism will die. Voltaire, Paine, Hume and Ingersoll spit out their venomous poison against the Church. While their carcasses are rotting away the Church lives on, glorious in its majesty."

Lutheran Orphan Asylum Fete.

The annual festival of the Bethlehem Orphan Asylum, maintained by the Lutheran churches of Greater New York on Fingerboard Road, Fort Wadsworth, S. I., took place yesterday in the asylum gardens. About 35,000 persons from New York and New Jersey attended. Two religious services were held, one in English, in which the Rev. B. von Schenk, pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church of Hoboken, spoke, and one in German, in which the Rev. Frederick E. Tilly, pastor of St. Jacobus's Lutheran Church of Winfield, N. J., was the speaker. The boys' orphan band and a chorus of children furnished music.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Decline in Franc Feature of American Markets—Stocks and Commodities Firm but Quiet.

The markets are in the doldrums. Summer lassitude appears to have settled over them and fluctuations are not only meaningless (representing a compromise between buyer and seller), but are also without any appreciable measure of prophecy of the price movements which may be anticipated in the near future. As a result prices as a whole are little changed today from those which prevailed a week ago.

The most important and undoubtedly the outstanding financial feature last week was in foreign exchange rather than in stocks or bonds. The decision of Finance Minister Caillaux to increase the "lawful circulation" by 6,000,000,000 francs was revolutionary, to say the least. It might be said that perfect confidence prevails in this country regarding the ultimate outcome of the French situation, but that such an increase in circulation as is now proposed savors too much of the "printing press." To this development may be attributed the recent selling in the franc and the fact that no measure of public confidence is exhibited in it. On the other hand, there is very good evidence that the franc has first-class artificial support. However, a real "devaluation" of the franc must take place before world-wide confidence can be restored in it. If such a devaluation is to take place, at say 5 cents to the franc, as has been suggested, it is quite generally believed that such a procedure will be welcomed. The markets naturally look with apprehension upon a 6,000,000,000-franc increase in circulation account, having fresh in mind the debacle of the German financial system, when increases in circulation were put into effect. It is unthinkable, of course, that France would permit any such "watering" of the currency as occurred in Germany. Nevertheless, the markets of the world—as measured by the foreign exchanges—do not take kindly to the plan which has been proposed. It is disclosing no secret to say that considerable amount of French capital is in hiding, outside of that country, during the present period of financial uncertainty.

The stock markets of the past week have given little hint of their future trend. They have been small, generally meaningless and without any indication of what is to come within the next few months. Motor, oil and rubber stocks have been the leaders, but these movements may be set down as more or less seasonal, because of increased inquiry for these particular commodities. Professionals predominate. "The public" is not in the market. Such day-to-day gains or losses as occur in the stock market may be considered as merely "ripples upon the surface" of speculation, having no reference whatever to the strong and directing tides. But at any rate, what seems most evident is that such liquidation as occurs is feeble in quality and character, and that stocks "snap back" very easily when temporarily depressed.

So far the fundamentals which govern the markets show an unchanged status. Summed up it may be said that the outstanding features are a fairly active volume of trade (mostly accomplished in small quantities), extremely high bank clearings, unusually good profits for most industrial corporations for the half-year, firm commodity markets and a stock market which shows only slight signs of hesitation or indecision. Under these conditions it is the developments of the future rather than the yardstick of the past which must guide price fluctuations during the next few months. There seems to be no evidence of "a boom" on the horizon. As a matter of fact, "boom times" are not desired. What seems to be most apparent is that, having encountered and experienced the usual Summer dullness, the markets will gradually gain strength during the early Fall and Winter season as potential orders, for forward delivery of goods, materialize. All signs point to this. Nevertheless, it is quite generally agreed that we are not to have "runaway" markets and that moderation is to be the order of the day.

The stock market, which is a "law unto itself," has been more or less irregular during the past week, but at all times maintained a firm undertone and reflected the fact that sales for the decline as well as actual liquidation of long stock have been taken with very good grace. The fact that call money advanced to 5 per cent. last week, causing a degree of "chills and fever" in some sections of the financial district, was more or less of a routine occurrence, as Wall Street well understood. The end of the half year is at hand. The future course, quite naturally, will depend upon the developments of business in the next sixty or ninety days. Should future buyers exhibit the same degree of confidence which has been evident in the stock market, and in commodities as well, for some time past, it is within the range of possibility that Fall prices, for practically everything, will be higher.

FRANCE APPROVES OF CAILLAUX PLAN

MORGAN CREDIT INTACT

Government Decides to Use It Only to Repel Speculative Attacks—The Bank of France Statement.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 28.—The plans of Finance Minister Caillaux for the reconstruction of the financial system of France have been well received. The proof of this is to be found in the fact that without any intervention whatever the franc is quoted here much higher than in New York.

It can be affirmed, too, that the Morgan credit which has been extended to France to stabilize the franc is absolutely intact. It is the Government's decision to use it only to prevent speculative attacks against the exchange. Financial circles do not consider the increase in the circulation harmful inflation, because the bank notes issued will not be used to cover budget expenses, but will only redeem non-renewable bonds.

Reasons for New Note Issue.

It was necessary either to issue these bank notes or for the State to fail to meet its obligations. Hesitation was impossible. The increase by 6,000,000,000 francs in the limit of the advances by the Bank of France to the State and in the circulation is considered here as proof that the State and the bank decided to see the State's financial engagements met, thereby reassuring susceptible bondholders, who demanded redemption only because they feared the Treasury would not be able to pay unless its resources were increased.

The principle loan bearing interest is payable in paper francs, but at parity of gold. This feature of the plan has encountered some criticism, but by issuing the loan, which will be subscribed solely by holders of the Defense bonds, the Finance Minister intends to consolidate a large portion of these bonds, thus removing the danger which very short-dated debt always presents. The new securities will be exempt from all taxes, including the income tax, and, in addition, subscribers are given a guarantee against the ulterior depreciation of the franc.

The plan, when thoroughly understood, is expected to be a great success. It is pointed out in many quarters that by this operation the Government shows itself to be determined to undertake the stabilization of the franc. Exceptional authority was given to the Finance Minister to discover a means for national economy and this also has made a good impression on the country. It is felt that the plan is entirely satisfactory to the Government, which has found a majority in the Chamber to support it. This, of course, did not include the Socialists.

The Bank Statement Figures.

The Bank of France return shows an increase of 92,000,000 francs in bills discounted, which was compensated, in great measure, by the decrease of 58,000,000 francs in loans against securities. The greatest variation was found in the advances to the State by the Bank of France, which increased by 400,000,000 francs, in spite of which the note circulation fell by 53,000,000 francs. This was partly explained by the increase of 292,000,000 francs in private deposits.

There is no doubt whatever that the reason the Treasury borrowed 400,000,000 francs was that the demands for the redemption of the Defense bonds exceeded the new subscriptions very heavily. These demands were caused by the rumor that the Government intended to make compulsory the conversion of the Defense bonds into perpetual rentes. Fortunately the rumor was not taken seriously by many. The best contradiction was given in the details of the bill presented to Parliament by Finance Minister Caillaux.

GERMAN INDEX IS HIGHER.

BERLIN, June 28.—The wholesale index figure for June 24 was 134.2, against 133.3 on June 17. The cost-of-living index for May was 135.5, against 138.7 for April. The unemployment at the first of June totaled 233,744, against 319,656 for the first of May and 593,000 for the first of February.

After last week's big recovery which brought the index of stocks from 72.26 to 77.64, the Boerse reverted to moderate weakness. There was some outside buying and resistance against bear attacks.

ENGLAND'S RESERVE GAINS.

LONDON, June 28.—The return of the Bank of England continues to reflect improvement in the reserve position. The reserve was up by £289,416 to £31,663,380, a net loss of £41,589 in gold being more than offset by a decrease of £702,005 in note circulation. The ratio of reserve to liabilities, however, declined 1½ per cent. to 24, as deposit liabilities were largely increased owing to money market borrowing from the bank, this being shown in a rise of £8,628,000 in private deposits.

Further loans to the market are still being made owing to the customary half-yearly money squeeze.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 28.—Business optimism has been shaken by increasing obstacles to the fulfillment of Chancellor Luther's legislative program. The Chancellor counted on putting through the tariff taxation and valorization bills before the Reichstag disperses on July 18. The first bill, however, which is really most urgent, cannot possibly go through, and the latter are doubtful.

The Reichstag committee has rejected the Cabinet's bill increasing the beer and tobacco taxes and has radically amended its property tax draft by restoring the progressive rates, these rising 2 to 7.5 per mille per annum, whereas the draft provided a uniform 5 mille rate. The Finance Minister continues to insist that the beer and tobacco tax increase may be obliged in order to buy support from the opposition by granting their demands for a reduction in the sales tax.

The Left parties continue to obstinately demand a tax on inflation profits. Reichsbank Director Schacht supports the Cabinet's refusal to levy such a tax and declares that the yield would be insignificant, as profits were relatively small. The tax proposers, however, publish data showing that 419 corporations since 1913 wiped out more than 2,000,000,000 marks of bond and mortgage debts.

ITALY'S FOREIGN TRADE IMPROVES EACH MONTH

ROME, June 28.—The trade balance, month by month, shows an excess of importations greater than last year. Exports increased by 994,000,000 lire for the first four months of 1925, while the imports increased 3,270,000,000 over the same period last year. Some disproportion is revealed by the quantitative figures of foreign trade. It is known that May importations of foodstuffs, especially cereals, show an increase over the preceding months. After July, therefore, considerable improvement in the trade balance is expected.

Forecasts of the European harvests continue favorable and, on the whole, above the ten-year average. To this may be attributed the weakness in the wheat market and the stagnation in prices which manifested itself some time back. Further weakening of prices after the July-August harvest is expected. But the world situation justifies the opinion that prices will harden again toward the last because of the necessity of replenishing exhausted stocks.

There is no doubt entertained for the present in Italy that England will be able to face the situation of maintaining the gold standard.

LONDON, June 28.—China and Greece are very disturbing factors in our market situation. Money is scarce and dear owing to the end of the half-year. The tone at the moment, however, is rather bright. Investment stocks have been helped by the fact that the underwriters of the governmentally guaranteed by the Synthetic Ammonia and Nitrate Company had to take only 36½ per cent. This issue marked a definite change in the upward direction in industry giving 5¼ per cent. on what was to all intents and purposes a Government issue.

The congested state of the new security market and the depressed values of all gilt-edge stocks rendered the offering on better terms than parity. Only one out of five industrials issues made during the week was fully subscribed by the public, so that even new industrial securities appear to be waning in favor. The only stocks that now go at all are well-secured industrial debentures, giving a return of 5½ to 6 per cent.

BERLIN, June 28.—The minor tariff bill was first read in the Reichstag on Wednesday. Only the Socialists and the Communists opposed this legislation outright, whereas the Democrats accept the food duties in principal, opposing only the provision imposing minimum duties. The Reichsrat sanctioned the tariff bill and even proposed further slight increases in certain industrial duties. The Economical Council, however, has roundly condemned the tariff and has declared it useless as a basis for long-term commercial treaty negotiations.

Opponents of the duties proposed have published figures showing German cars have been offered in Holland 10 to 30 per cent. below the prices charged at home. The Socialists threaten obstruction if the Government attempts to rush the tariff bill through the Reichstag.

NEW HAVEN, June 28.—Professor Irving Fisher's index number of American commodity prices last week, based on 100 as the average of 1913, is 159.5, which compares with 158 a week ago, 156.9 two weeks ago, 157.2 three weeks ago and 158 four weeks ago. The highest weekly average reached this year to date was 164.4, on Jan. 31, which was also higher than any point reached in 1924; the lowest 154.1, on May 2. Last year's high point was 156.7, on Dec. 27; its lowest, 142.3, on June 29. The highest percentage since the war was 247, in May, 1920, the lowest 130 in January, 1922.

Crump's British index number as cabled for the last week was 149.6, compared with 149.8 the preceding week, 150.5 two weeks before, 151.9 three weeks before and 152.6 four weeks before. This week's average is the lowest point reached this year to date; the highest was 166.5, on Jan. 10.

LIRA'S DEVALUATION NOW IN PROSPECT

MORGAN CREDIT IS USED

ROME, June 28.—Lira lost sharply, as did the French and Belgian franc, during the last week. It also suffered from its own intrinsic depreciation, due probably to the unsettlement of the political situation as well as to other internal and external causes.

The fact that the lira during the last few days has shown a tendency to seek a new level around 19 centimes gold shows that the Morgan credit has been used to some extent at least. It is believed, however, that the proportion of the credit used was very small. This must of necessity be conserved in order to meet the demands which will be made upon it when the attempt is made to revalue the lira, when conditions approach normal.

The June 1 Stock Exchange liquidation was performed without grave disturbances. The decline in the lira, however, brought about an appreciable devaluation in the purchasing power as measured in terms of commodities. It is understood that Government officials have begun discussion of the advisability of starting soon the task ahead of legally devaluing the lira.

Securities on the Stock Exchange continue to be characterized by the absence of any decided tendency and are dominated by a feeling of distrust. Absence of statements by the Government banks would appear to justify fears of the operators. Nothing has occurred to overcome the prevailing feeling which is largely pyschological.

REPORT CROP FAILURE IN RUSSIAN PROVINCES

BERLIN, June 28.—The index of conditions for the whole of the Union of Soviet Republic is 3.1, against 2.8 at the same date 1924. The index shows extremely bad conditions in the central agricultural districts and an actual crop failure in the Provinces of Riacan, Tambov, Voronezch and Pensa.

The total circulation at the first of June was 791,500,000 rubles, represented in 417,300,000 State Bank notes, also including 250,260,000 Treasury notes. The rate of increased circulation declined considerably during the last three months. Official reports show a rapid increase in industrial production. Production of various industries for May was at a rate of between 27 and 122 per cent. more than in the same month of 1924. The biggest increases were in pig iron, rolled steel goods and cotton yarn, while the coal output declined.

May imports were 87,800,000 rubles, against 62,800,000 in April. The exports for the same month were 38,300,000, against 29,700,000 for April. The Financial Commissariat announces that Russia intends to buy no more gold owing to better prospects of exporting grain. It is expected that from this source the country will be well supplied with foreign exchange.

STINNES AFFAIR ENDING.

A Settlement Expected to Be Effected in Six Months.

BERLIN, June 28.—The Stinnes affair seems to be blowing over. President Schacht of the Reichsbank stated that he views the situation optimistically. He says that when the crisis became public he got numerous offers of foreign help, which were rejected as superfluous. The Prussian State Bank consented to advance 1,000,000 marks with Stinnes stock as security.

It is expected here that the entire settlement will be completed within six months, and it will be effected by liquidating part of the concern's industrial holdings.

LONDON, June 28.—The continued weakness in the franc and lira is ceasing to arouse comment. France is deep in a political and financial morass and appears to make little or no movement out of it. People here are confused by the everchanging situation, and business men simply buy or sell francs in sufficient quantities to meet daily needs. Nobody looks ahead, thinking that this is useless.

Italy is struggling against an adverse trade balance, while the uncertainty concerning the policy of stabilizing lire is leading to sales of Italian currency and to checking homeward remittances from our Italian immigrants.

Federal finances continue good, gross taxation receipts for May were 610,891,108 marks, which was 90,000,000 more than for May, 1924. Tax receipts for April and May totaled 1,263,770,000 marks or, in two months, 24 per cent. of the year's estimated yield of 5,239,700,000 marks.

LABOR DIFFICULTIES A WORRY TO ENGLAND

Trade Believed Held Back by Attitude of Workmen Toward Hours and Pay.

INICUITIES OF 'DOLE SYSTEM'

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 28.—During this week the Socialists will vote on the proposal to censure the Government for the unemployment situation. It is not expected to produce anything, however, beyond a general airing of views upon what is undoubtedly a very serious situation. In a general way it is felt that our industrial troubles spring from impoverishment which has followed five years of destructive war.

There are manifold indications, however, that we are not getting our fair share of the world's trade. There seems little doubt in the minds of most big industrial leaders that England is working upon an altogether uneconomic basis. In other words, that too much is being paid for too little work. Trade unionism is largely blamed for this, because it has secured and sticks to reduced working hours 'and in some trades actually says how much work a man shall do in a given time.

Trade Slipping Away.

Reduced hours and reduced output have enormously increased the overhead charges in many trades, and as the Continental countries have got into their swing again and work longer and for less money, they are easily stealing much of our foreign trade. Unemployment is greatest in industries which constitute the backbone of the country, and the general lowering of prosperity in these trades is creeping slowly but surely through nearly all other industries.

Labor itself is largely to blame for the present serious unemployment, but the Government, too, is partly responsible. It has failed to set an example by economy in its own administration, while all Governments since the war have been aware of the danger of the dole system. If the doles were withdrawn tomorrow it is believed that unemployment figures would drop substantially, because many of the unemployed are unemployable so long as the State will keep them.

The "Post-War Fallacies."

There has, however, got to be a general overhauling of relations between capital and labor before any real progress can be made. This overhauling is now commencing in talks between railway and collier managements and their men. A crisis is believed to be approaching in which there is likely to be a sweeping away of post-war fallacy. Somebody is going to be hurt. That is inevitable. Consideration of the labor position is upsetting the stock market which has just come through the trying settlement period, owing to the overreaching of speculators in certain industrials.

Currency notes outstanding at the end of the week aggregated £292,278,234 as compared with £292,249,766 last week, and £294,006,490 two weeks ago. The highest point for 1925 to date was £297,381,400 on Jan. 3, and the lowest £281,165,517 on Feb. 28. The highest on record was £368,331,000 on Dec. 22, 1920.

BEEF PRICES GO UP; HOGS ALSO HIGHER

CHICAGO, June 28.—An advance of 75 cents in general prices of beef steers to the highest of the year and to the highest average since November, 1920, with the price $11.25, or 75 cents better than the previous week and compared with $8.75 last year, was a feature of the live stock market the last week. Added to the advance in cattle, there was a gain of 60 cents to $1 in hogs, and 75 cents to 85 cents in lambs, to the highest of the year.

Yearling steers sold up to $12.50 and heavy corn-fed steers advanced to $12.60, with the dressed-beef trade improved. Butchers' stock gained 40 cents to 75 cents and feeding steers 25 cents to 50 cents. Arrivals for the week were 41,800, against 46,080 last year, and 45,000 are expected this coming week.

Hogs reached $13.75 as the top and the average was $13.25, against $12.65 the previous week and $6.90 last year. Prospects are for short supplies for the next few months. The week's arrivals were 143,200, against 199,000 last year, and 150,000 are estimated for the coming week, against 157,000 received last year. Shippers bought 43,000 and were a factor in the market, as packers took 112,000. Average weight was 237 pounds, or about right for this season.

Fat lambs sold up to $17.10 for Idahoes and $16.65 for natives. The average for the week of $16.10 was 65 cents over the previous week and $2.50 over last year.

Sheep averaged $7.75, against $7.25 the previous week and $6.15 last year. Arrivals were 51,800, against 62,367 last year, with 47,000 expected the coming week.

$5,000,000 REALTY BONDS.

To Be Offered for Home Building Company Here Soon.

The Manufacturers Trust Company is expected to make a public offering of $5,000,000 twelve-year 6 per cent gold bonds, due 1937, of the Realty Associates Securities Corporation within a few days. The bonds will be offered at 96½ to yield 6.40 per cent., it was announced yesterday. The Realty Associates Securities Corporation finances the real estate operations of realty associates, and, according to the statement, the latter guarantees the bonds unconditionally as to principal and interest and sinking fund requirements.

An annual sinking fund to retire $300,000 principal of the bonds will be provided each year, of which $150,000 will be available semi-annually beginning Jan. 1, 1928, and the fund, it is calculated, will be sufficient to retire 60 per cent. of the issue before maturity. Realty Associates, according to the bankers' statement, has constructed and sold about 500 homes in the metropolitan district this year.

OPPOSITION GROWS TO 'WOOL-CONTROL' SCHEME

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 28.—Strong opposition in trade and financial circles has developed to the suggested Australian scheme for the stabilization of wool prices. Financial circles object on the ground that artificial prices are bad for any industry. Trade circles regard it as yet another attempt to squeeze the last penny out of wool manufacturers. The Australian Wool Realization Association in England was brought to an end in order that wool might more quickly reach an economic basis. Now that prices have come down with a run and the wool trade has recovered, this fresh attempt to devise a scheme for the sole benefit of the wool growers has aroused the strongest sort of opposition.

The Bradford correspondent of The Yorkshire Post, writing on the suggestion, says the wool growers are bemoaning their fate, although they received £20,000,000 in excess of its economic value for the part of this season's wool they sold prior to last Christmas. He says there is urgent need for them to be educated in the condition of affairs and the opinion at the centre of wool consumption throughout the world.

It is hardly considered likely that within twelve months of the sale of the last bale of the Realization Association's wool the Imperial Government will seriously listen to another scheme for reestablishing control in the face of the fierce opposition it would undoubtedly meet. This seems an idea which only those who are out of touch with opinions and conditions in the wool consuming centres could entertain. Wool users in Yorkshire believe that the majority of wool growers in Australia will appreciate when a phantasy has been put before them and will turn it down.

GOVERNMENT WILL NOT INTERFERE IN RUBBER

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 28.—In reply to questions, the Government has made it quite clear that it will not interfere with the rubber restriction scheme. The rubber trade thinks that what it regards as misguided agitation to smash the scheme will now cease entirely. Manufacturers are now blamed for the present position. It is believed that if they had not neglected the safety device which was inserted into the scheme for their benefit there would have been at least 20,000 mor tons of rubber available today.

Instead, the manufacturers existed from 'hand-to-mouth,' thereby keeping prices down and preventing any increase in the exportable percentage. If they had bought what they really required early in the year, they would have been assured larger supplies later on.

New points in the general rubber situation are that the 1925 crop is not giving expected yield, that Chinese unrest may spread to other parts of the East, and interfere with shipping and therefore with exports of rubber, and that with the automatic increase in the export allowance there is likely to be a large extra demand for labor on the Malay plantations which it will be impossible to supply. Such conditions will make the current price of about two shillings per pound for 1926 rubber look none too high.

GOVERNMENT 'PARS' AID IN COTTON FORECASTS

NEW ORLEANS, June 28.—The publication of a set of "pars" by the Government to be used in determining the indicated yield to be issued with the approaching condition report was one of the factors in the cotton market during last week, making for improvement. This was because of the fact that the par yields per acre for most of the important States show a decrease compared with the pars used last year for the June 25 report.

The announcement of these lower pars made it at once apparent that even should the condition average show little change compared with a month ago the indicated yield will not be nearly so large as most traders were expecting unless the acreage estimate should be surprisingly large, that is, much in excess of the 45,000,000 acres which most people believe will be about the estimate of the acreage planted.

The effect of the lower pars soon became apparent in the indicated yields issued by various private authorities on Friday. One of these authorities figured the indicated yield at about 13,600,000 bales on a condition average of 73.7. But a short while back the trade was looking for a condition of about 77 and an indicated yield of 14,000,000 or more. Of course, the indicated yield to be estimated by the Government will depend entirely upon the condition percentage found and the size of the acreage increase. A material reduction in the condition average of Texas, for instance, would seriously cut down the indicated crop and there is every reason to expect that the Texas average will be reduced a good bit below the average given a month ago.

STABILITY OF MARK 'NOW BEYOND DOUBT'

BANKING POSITION IMPROVES

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 28.—The money market is tighter owing to the month-end demand for credit. Banks are withholding their credit in order that they may be able to show a higher degree of liquidity in their bi-monthly returns for June 30.

Reichsbank Director Schacht has declared at the Federation of Industries at Cologne that the stability of the mark is now beyond doubt, but added that the Reichsbank's credit rationing policy is indispensable and that at present 2,500,000,000 marks credit which has been granted by the Reichsbank, the Rentenbank and private note banks is the maximum sum bearable without prejudicing the currency.

The Reichsbank return for June 15 shows an improvement in its status. Discounts declined by 119,000,000 to 1,402,000,000 marks. Circulation declined by 125,000,000 to 2,362,000,000, and the gold cover increased from 40.8 to 44 per cent.

Foreign trade is improving. May imports were 1,084,034,000 marks, against 1,080,939,000 in April. Exports were 732,176,000 marks, against 672,376,000 in April. The exports of manufactured textiles increased by 14,000,000 marks, coal by 7,000,000, iron 6,000,000, but machinery exports dropped 4,000,000. The iron and steel foreign trade balance is improving rapidly. Exports for the first four months of 1925 were 1,122,250 tons and imports 547,033 tons. In all of 1924 the exports were 1,955,110 tons, and the imports 1,324,011 tons. In 1913 there was an import surplus.

STEEL MILLS HOLD TO PRICE SCHEDULES

PITTSBURGH, June 28.—It continues to be the case, as it has been since the latter part of February, that when steel prices show any change it is in the softening direction, but changes from week to week are almost insignificant, and there is ground for thinking that when mills have shown such resistance to price declines when they were competing so strenuously for business any turn in conditions in sellers' favor will be embraced to stiffen prices.

In the past week nails and barb wire have come to be quoted openly at $2 a ton below former open quotations, making nails $2.65, but the action is in the main merely a recognition of cutting that had spread over nearly all sales territory.

Merchant bars seem to be holding rigidly to 2 cents as minimum, the price to which they declined more than two months ago. In merchant pipe and oil country tubular goods buying has lately been so good that it requires no courage on the part of mills to hold prices. In fact, mills are three or four weeks behindhand in shipments of some sizes of lap weld pipe. The pipe mills have had a sharp increase in operations in the past two months and are now running at practically 100 per cent. in lap weld and at fully 80 per cent. in butt weld pipe.

Contracting for Connellsville furnace coke is now practically ended, one contract having been closed in the past week, with the furnace at Standish, N. Y., while some other inquiries have been withdrawn as the furnaces involved will not operate. The volume of contract business beginning July 1 is unusually light and the prices are very close.

Foundry pig iron has grown quieter, the recent mild buying movement having covered most consumers in a conservative way through September. The price remains firm at $18.50, valley, Bessemer and basic are quiet, as formerly. A sale of 1,000 tons of basic at $18, valley, confirms the previous appraisal of the market level. Bessemer is $19, valley.

Heavy melting steel scrap has advanced 50 cents, recovering its recent decline. At $17.50 to $18, delivered Pittsburgh district, it is $4.50 below its recent top, at the beginning of the year, and $1.50 above its recent low, two months ago.

NOTES STABILIZATION TREND

Guaranty Trust Survey Sees Business Near an Equilibrium.

A strong tendency toward stabilization is noted in the prevailing business situation by the current issue of The Guaranty Survey, published by the Guaranty Trust Company.

"The culmination of an upward swing in production and the volume of business activity as a whole was reached early this year at levels comparable to the high points reached in the first quarter of 1924," the review says. "But in contrast to the sharp decline of activity which brought midsummer business in 1924 to the lowest levels reached since the Spring of 1922, the recession this year was halted in April. Further declines in production in May, with distribution remaining active, have apparently brought a nearer approach to equilibrium.

"In some lines of production the usual seasonal slackening is now apparent. Inventories, however, are in most cases conservative; involuntary employment is low; and a high rate of consumption in general is maintained, in contrast to the decline a year ago. The country's foreign trade in the first five months of the year shows important gains over that for the corresponding months of 1924. Interest rates continue easy, and there is likelihood of only a moderate advance, if any, with the passing of the Summer slackness in credit demands. Activity in retail trade is well sustained.

"These conditions tend to maintain essentially sound bases for a general expansion of activity."

WHEAT PRICES HANG ON THE SPRING CROP

CHICAGO, June 28.—Wheat prices are off 10 cents from the best figures for the week on futures, and cash premiums in Chicago have slipped about 5 cents on hard Winters. The late advance made on buying, instigated by reports of black rust from the Northwest, has been more than lost. The trade has become rather pessimistic on crop prospects in the Northwest, which have improved on both sides of the international line as a result of rain and favorable growing conditions.

Should nothing happen to the Spring wheat crops in the United States and Canada, there will be a big yield, from all reports, and those who take an impartial view of the situation say that, unless there is material damage within the next few weeks, lower prices are likely. If present Spring wheat prospects materialize, wheat prices in the United States will be governed by the Spring rather than by the Winter wheat; in other words they will set the level for the country, regardless of an alleged shortage of around 200,000,000 bushels in Winter wheat.

No Wheat "Famine."

Six months ago statisticians estimated that the United States would have less than 250,000,000 bushels of wheat to export, including flour. These figures have already been practically equaled in eleven months and, for twelve months, exports are estimated at around 260,000,000 bushels. Predictions were, too then, that there would be a wheat famine the world over and that prices would be around $2.50. The season of 1924-'25 is practically ended, as it runs to July 1, and wheat prices are around $1.50, with no absolute scarcity.

The new crop season starts, however, with the lightest carry-over in years, not only in North America, but especially in Europe. Consumption of the new crop will begin as soon as it is available in Europe, while in the United States there are 31,000,000 bushels in the visible supply and light interior reserves.

High prices for wheat and rye abroad have curtailed consumption in the last six months, while in the United States there is evidence of consumption having been overestimated and supplies somewhat underestimated.

Indications are for a decrease in the visible supply in Monday's report, also for a liberal run of new wheat at Southwestern markets. Hedging sales of moderate volume are in evidence, against purchases of cash wheat in the country, but as yet the latter have not been heavy and farmers are not expected to sell more than the average after-harvest run of the new crop wheat in the next few months.

If predictions by millers in the Southwest are right, Kansas and Oklahoma will have little wheat for export, or to ship out of the state. Texas has the smallest wheat crop in years and will have to draw its supplies from elsewhere.

Export buying of wheat, oats and rye increased last week with around 2,000,000 bushels of each grain sold for export, for nearby loading. For the present, export business is a secondary consideration, as compared with crop news, but for the moment the trade is inclined to indulge in its annual stunt of selling spring wheat prospects short and prices are off 6⅝ to 7⅛ cents for the week, with September leading.

WEATHER HELPS THE CROPS

CHICAGO, June 28.—Black rust and red-leaf rust have been found in many places in Minnesota and the Dakotas, with little in the Western Canadian provinces. So far no damage to the crop of Spring wheat has occurred.

Wheat is heading in the Southern portions of the Northwestern States with considerable short straw. Elsewhere the stand is heavy and favorable for rust damage with the right kind of weather. Winter wheat harvest has progressed northward to above the middle of Illinois, Indiana and Ohio and is on in Northern Kansas and Southern Nebraska.

Threshing returns in Oklahoma and Kansas return poor to good yields, with much wheat in Kansas showing high protein. Rains have improved all small grains and late planted oats have improved, but rains came too late to help early planted, which was stunted by drought.

The corn belt has had good to excessive rains and with warm weather the plant has grown rapidly. Much corn has been laid by in Southeastern Kansas and it averages knee high in parts of Iowa. That State has had around three inches more rain than normal this month. Except on low lands, where it is too wet, fields are usually clean and well cultivated.

High temperatures caught corn in tassel in Texas and Southern Oklahoma, with some damage by burning of tassels. Meadows and pastures have been helped by rains, but yields of hay are light.

ABUNDANCE OF CROP CUTS PRICE OF CORN

Market at Lowest in Two Months —Rye and Oats Also Are in Severe Slump.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 28.—Rains and favorable weather have improved corn crop prospects, scared out new buyers and induced short selling, which, combined with the weakness in wheat, carried corn prices down to the lowest in more than two months, with the near-by futures around the dollar level and the December below 90 cents. There is more corn in the visible supply than at this time in twenty-seven years, with the exception of 1921 and 1922, the total being 17,794,000 bushels, the greater part of which is in Chicago.

The effect of this is in a measure offset by lighter supplies in the interior. But prospects are for a crop of more than 3,000,000,000 bushels and one crop expert, after going over the country, says that, unless there is an August drought, there will be one of the largest crops ever raised. He figures that the crop is earlier than usual and will not be affected by frost.

Oats have lost all the advance created by unfavorable crop prospects due to the decline in other grains and to crop improvement. Prices are off 4⅛ to 4⅝ cents for the week.

The rye season is closing with around 9,000,000 bushels in the visible and prices nearly 80 cents under the highest of the season, and 4⅝ to 6 cents lower than a week ago.

CAPITAL TAX RETURNS MUST BE IN BY JULY 31

Collector Bowers Announces That Forms May Be Had at Custom House—He Explains Levy.

Capital stock tax returns must be filed on or before July 31, it was announced yesterday by Frank K. Bowers, Collector of Internal Revenue for the Second District. Tax forms, he added, could be obtained at Room 628 at the Custom House.

"The tax on domestic corporations," he said, "is $1 for each $1,000 of so much of the fair average value of its capital stock for the preceding year ended June 30 as is in excess of $5,000. Foreign corporations are required to pay a tax at the rate of $1 for each $1,000 of their capital employed in the United States, without the benefit of the $5,000 deduction.

"Returns are required of each domestic corporation, regardless of the par value of its capital stock, except insurance companies which have been classified as such, and organizations determined by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to be entitled to specific exemption under Section 231 of the law, and of every foreign corporation, irrespective of the amount of capital employed in this country in the transaction of its business. The penalty for failure to file a return within the time prescribed is an added assessment of 25 per cent.

"In addition to the added assessment, a fine of not more than $1,000 is provided for failure to make a return on time. For willful refusal to make a return, willful evasion of the tax, willful refusal to supply information requested by the Commissioner or for attempting in any way to evade the tax and not to pay when due, the penalty is a fine of not more than $10,000 or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both."

LESS STEEL DEMAND SEEN.

Freight Car Buying Light and Rail Orders Slow Up.

PITTSBURGH, June 28.—One news development of the week is in the direction of lessened consumption. Some railroads have curtailed rail shipments and the rail mills will not have altogether as heavy an operation in the next two months as was expected. This action on the part of railroads has directed attention afresh to the fact that freight car buying has been very light for three months past, and in some quarters it is suspected the railroads are designedly restricting their commitments with a view to economizing in prices paid for supplies. Certainly the railroads are not disposed to help the steel industry tide over the Summer.

Automobile production statistics are very favorable, April having been the record high month by a good margin, with May showing only 2 per cent. decrease, while there has been little further decrease this month. Fabricated steel awards make a particularly favorable showing as to the latest trend. Bookings reported by months show April and May comparing much more favorably with the first three months than was the case a year ago, while the weekly reports in the last few weeks show a substantial gain over the earlier portion of the year.

U. S. COTTON REPORT AWAITED IN SOUTH

TRADE CONDITIONS IMPROVE

Belief Expressed That Mill Curtailment Will Not Be So Drastic as In 1924—Weevil Now a Factor.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 28.—Cotton prices have been generally on the up grade during the past few days, although the net gains have not been large nor have fluctuations been overviolent. Uncertainty as to what the Government will show in its report next Thursday held bullish enthusiasm in check and at the same time rendered those bearishly inclined cautious, although there have been several periods of reaction. These reactionary periods were due, on the one hand, to map indications which held out the promise of much needed rains in Texas and to the process of liquidating the July position, which led to the circulation of notices for about 30,000 bales here and about 100,000 in New York.

These developments exercised but a temporary influence, however, because in the first place the hoped-for rains in the drought sections of Texas did not materialize, and in the second the large July notices were either taken up by exporters or recalled by those issuing them. As a matter of fact, the volume of notices absorbed by exporters proved something of a surprise and soon caused the July position, which had slumped off here fully 80 points when the notices were first circulated, to recover all the loss and more, virtually wiping out the discount under October which existed soon after the notices were circulated.

New Crop Needs Rain.

The failure of the dry sections of Texas to obtain relief and a realization that notwithstanding good showers in many parts of the belt the crop will need a constant recurrence of such showers to offset the lack of subsoil mosture was the main cause of the gradual improvement in prices during the past week, although the publication of a set of "pars" by the Government to be used in determining the indicated yield to be issued with the approaching condition report greatly helped the tendency to improve because of the fact that the par yields per acre for most of the important States show a decrease compared with the "pars" used last year for the June 25 report.

In addition to the drought in Texas there has been insufficient moisture in many parts of the Central and Eastern divisions of the belt, which may affect adversely the condition average of other States than Texas. It is also a fact that the boll weevil has become decidedly more active in southern portions of the Eastern belt. Just what allowance may be made by the Crop Reporting Board in the forthcoming report for weevil activity is problematic. That it will figure more or less as a factor in the calculations, however, may be accepted as certain.

Market Seems Healthy.

There is no disguising the fact that a much healthier tone prevailed in the market during the last part of the week than was the case at the beginning, due mainly to the continued drought in the West and to the lower pars. While, of course, the purely arbitrary parities decided upon by the Government will not prevent the crop from turning out large or small, they will influence calculations throughout the growing season and consequently influence prices to an important extent.

Another sustaining influence during last week was the evidence of a substantial revival of activity in the manufactured goods trade. The demand for dry goods has become quite active, and although this demand has run mainly on ginghams and lightweight Summer fabrics, there has also been a noticeable betterment in staple goods and in yarns. As a result there has been less talk of curtailment by the mills than was the case a little while back, and it is now safe to predict that there will be no such curtailment this Summer as there was last year.

The National City Bank of New York, Fiscal Agent

SECURITY

These First (Closed) Mortgage Bonds will be secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a first lien on the land, buildings, furniture and furnishings, of the new Stevens Hotel to be constructed in Chicago, Illinois, on a site embracing the entire block front on Michigan Boulevard between Seventh and Eighth Streets, facing Grant Park and overlooking Lake Michigan. The location of the property for hotel purposes is unsurpassed in the city of Chicago. This hotel, the construction of which is undertaken to meet existing demands for greater hotel facilities, will contain more than 2,800 outside rooms, each with private bath, and will be the largest and most up-to-date hotel in the world.

VALUATION

The actual cash cost of this entire project, with carrying charges during construction, is estimated at over $26,000,000, including the cost of land purchased at an exceedingly low figure. The $13,000,000 First (Closed) Mortgage Bonds, Series A, will thus constitute a loan of less than 50% of the estimated actual cash cost. Experienced Chicago realtors appraise the entire project, upon completion as a going enterprise, at a valuation substantially in excess of the actual cash cost.

GUARANTIES

The United States Realty and Improvement Company and its principal subsidiary, the George A. Fuller Company, contractors, will guarantee completion of the building in accordance with the architect's plans and specifications. The United States Realty and Improvement Company owns or controls through subsidiary corporations, the Plaza Hotel and the Trinity, United States Realty and Whitehall Buildings, all in New York City. The Company itself has no funded debt; and at April 30, 1925, a consolidated balance sheet of the Company and its subsidiaries indicates a net worth of $33,006,540.

CAPITALIZATION

Upon completion of the financing necessary in the construction of this property, the outstanding capitalization of the Company will be substantially as follows:

First (Closed) Mortgage Twenty-Year Sinking Fund Gold Bonds:
Series A, 6% (this issue)	$13,000,000
Series B, 6½%	3,000,000
General Mortgage 7% Gold Bonds	6,000,000
Preferred Stock ($60 par value)	3,500,000
Common Stock ($10 par value)	3,400,000

By the terms of the Mortgage, the payment of interest and sinking fund on the $13,000,000 Series A Bonds will be made specifically prior to payment of interest and sinking fund on the $3,000,000 Series B Bonds, which latter, the United States Realty and Improvement Company has agreed to purchase.

SINKING FUND

The sinking fund applicable to Series A Bonds will provide for retirement by purchase or redemption of $7,500,000 aggregate principal amount Series A Bonds prior to maturity.

MANAGEMENT AND EARNINGS

The Stevens Hotel will be controlled and operated by the same interests that control the Hotel La Salle, one of the largest hotel properties in Chicago. On the basis of fifteen years' successful experience in hotel operation, the management estimates the net income from The Stevens, upon completion, available for interest after property taxes and depreciation, at over $2,800,000 per annum, or more than 3½ times the maximum annual interest charges on the Series A Bonds.

Application will be made to list these Bonds on the New York Stock Exchange.

Bonds offered if, as and when issued, and received by us, subject to approval by counsel.

TRADE IN THE WEST GOOD FOR SEASON

Pre-Inventory Dry Goods Sales Are Said to Be Best in Volume in Five Years.

TEXTILES ARE IN DEMAND

CHICAGO, June 28.—Business in all branches is making a good showing and the results are satisfactory to those who have not expected more than an average run of buying. It is said by close students of business conditions that complaints of slow business have come of late from those who placed their ideals higher than warranted by the underlying conditions. These people have readjusted their views to actual conditions and less criticism is heard.

One illustration in the commodity line is seen in the large business secured in the pre-seminannual inventory sale, which was the best in five years for volume and general conditions. More orders for dry goods were also booked by salesmen on the road.

Adjusting Cotton Goods Prices.

Values of cotton goods are being adjusted downward, but shipments are greatly increased over those of the same time last year. Bad weather was against retail trade and no gains were made during the week, but it was somewhat overcome by special price reduction sales.

The steel industry is doing fairly, with supplies and demand about even and with more tonnage in hand and a larger operating capacity than last year. Despite the recent heavy buying of pig iron and a fair run of orders placed during the week, two blast furnaces in the Chicago district shut down.

Price easements were announced in steel sheets and of $2 per ton in wire nails, with a fair sized tonnage secured. Structural steel buying continues heavy for buildings scattered all over the West. The coal industry is working into better shape, with indications of larger buying from now on.

A heavy consumption of building materials and especially of cement is on and the season promises to be one of the best known. Shoe manufacturing continues at around seventy-five per cent. of capacity, with retailers placing increased orders. While the wool market is showing slightly increased activity and firmness in values there is no disposition on the part of large users to stock up.

Collections Good.

Collections are reported good by all lines. Money is meeting an enlarged demand and rates show more firmness, with call loans at 3½ to 4 per cent.; time loans are abundant at 4 to 5¼ per cent. Funds for crop-moving purposes are being furnished by interior banks, and indications are that farmers in the Southwest may borrow more money than usual, as they are disposed to hold their wheat for high prices.

Gold loans and deposits of the Seventh Federal Reserve Bank increased moderately for the week and the ratio of reserve increased from 77.7 the previous week to 78.7 the past week, showing the highest of any week since March 18.

Savings deposits have increased in most of the Western States since May 1, with Iowa making the best showing.

AUTOMOBILE OUTPUT RECEDES BUT SLIGHTLY

Decline in May Was 2.4%, Compared With 16.7 Last Year in Identical Plants.

The Chicago Federal Reserve Bank has issued a summary of conditions in the automobile industry in the Middle West. The situation in the industry, with statistics of production for the month of May, is as follows:

A slight recession took place in automobile production during May; output by identical American manufacturers from their plants in the United States and Canada aggregated 382,972 passenger cars, a decrease of only 2.4 per cent. from the preceding month, while last year the decline was 16.7 per cent. In the same comparison, Production this year increased 33.6 per cent. over May, 1924. Manufacturers who produced 46,765 trucks in April reduced their May output to 42,322, a decrease of 9.5 per cent., but a gain over last year of 26 per cent.

Dealers in the United States continue to sell cars to users at a higher rate than they receive them, as indicated in a ratio of 104.9 per cent. for May of dealers' sales to receipts from manufacturers, whose output was 92.7 per cent. of total May production; this ratio is somewhat lower, however, than in the preceding month, and considerably less than in May last year, when dealers were rapidly reducing their stocks.

Distribution in the Middle West appears to be holding up well, although some slight declines from April were reported. In comparison with a year ago both wholesale and retail sales gained in number and value. Fifty-three per cent. of the aggregate sales of forty-eight retailers were made on the deferred payment plan.

STEEL PRODUCTION ABOVE 1924 MARK

60% RATE IN JULY FORECAST

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, June 28.—Even with July, the traditionally dull month in steel, right at hand, the steel situation has shown very little if any loss of position in the past week. This means that conditions today are very much better than it was expected two or three months ago they would be.

It is certain that the steel industry has not averaged in the past fortnight a rate of operation much below 70 per cent., and it is not certain indeed that the rate has been altogether as low as 70 per cent. It seems safe to forecast that the ingot production report for June will not show output below 70 per cent., which would compare with 76½ per cent. in May and 93 per cent. in March, the recent peak month. A precisely similar peak was reached in March of last year and a slightly lower peak in April of 1923. The present rate is far above that of one year ago and is 20 to 25 per cent. below the rate of two years ago. There is the important difference that in 1923 operations continued to decline to the end of the year while in 1924 they began picking up sharply after July.

It being probable that the mills will operate at above 60 per cent. next month, and certain that they will not operate at much below 60 per cent., the question is what will occur afterward. Two years ago the operations continued downward. One year ago they turned upward. Yet last year general business was growing poorer, election uncertainties causing hesitation. This year it is easier to expect an upturn.

Steel Stocks Light.

Stocks of steel in the hands of buyers must be light, for all the circumstances of the past three or four months have counseled liquidation. There has been a conservative feeling in all business circles, largely from disappointment that the very rosy predictions made for the year were not being fully confirmed. Mills have been making very prompt shipments, and railroads have given excellent service. Steel prices have been softening. When prices are advancing, buyers may accept shipments on old orders and contracts when they do not need the material at the time. When prices are softening, they permit shipment of only such material as is currently needed. On such contracts as survive now little steel is being shipped, except as mills take a price adjustment.

The volume of steel shipments in the past few weeks is proof that consumption is heavy and stocks on the whole are light. There are stocks of some lines, particularly nails, but they are small compared with the aggregate movement.

All the indications are that stocks of steel in buyers' hands are lighter today than they were a year ago and much lighter than two years ago. Production of ingots in the half year now ending, however, has been about 22,350,000 tons, which is only 4 per cent. under production in the first half of 1923 and is 13 per cent. above production in the first half of 1924. The suggestion is strong that steel consumption in the first half of this year has been greater than in the first half of 1923, yet 1923 was the best year in steel of the six most-war years, with the possible exception of 1920, with its smaller tonnage but higher prices.

The chief question therefore is as to the continuance of consumption. There could be a moderate decrease in the second half of the year and still leave room for an upturn in the rate of buying from that of the past two months, and an upturn in mill operations after a low point in July or August.

Further Sharp Declines Last Week, With Wheat Off 10 Cents—Corn Also Down.

Trading in the wholesale markets last week was marked by further drastic declines, particularly in the grains. Dairy products held steady, however, and firmness was also evident in standard metals. The more notable changes in quotation follow: Wheat, No. 2 red, dropped 10 cents, to $1.91¼; corn, No. 2 yellow, lost 8½ cents, closing at $1.21½; rye, No. 2, f. o. b., declined 7 cents, to $1.11¼, and oats, No. 2 white, lost 3½ cents at a closing quotation of 57½. Middle Western lard dropped 20 cents, at $17.70, and family beef closed at $21.50, off $1.50.

UNITED LIGHT MAKES HOLDERS NEW OFFER

COMMON IS AT 94¼

Stock Hit New High of 96½ Saturday—Earnings Statement Made.

The United Light and Power Company announced yesterday the offering of certain subscription rights to holders of its common stock. Holders of the Class A and Class B common have the privilege of purchasing one new share of Class A common for five shares of either Class A or Class B common held as of July 3, at $72.50 a share. This price compares with a closing price Saturday for the Class A common of 94¼. The lowest price at which the shares sold this year was 44½. The stock went to a record high Saturday of 96½.

Frank T. Hulswit, President of the company, in a letter to stockholders following a meeting of the directors in Chicago last week, said that the proceeds from the sale of the additional Class A common shares would be used to pay for properties now in process of being acquired and to refund the treasury of the company for expenditures in the erection of its new 25,000 kva steam-electric station on the Mississippi River, near Davenport, Iowa. The new station is known as the Riverside Power Manufacturing Company. The properties being acquired, it was said, serve a population of approximately 200,000. Until details of the transaction are completed Mr. Hulswit would not divulge the identity of the concern.

Recently Increased Dividends.

The directors at a recent meeting increased the cash dividend on the common stock of the company to 50 cents per share per quarter, and the company is also paying at semi-annual intervals (May 1 and Nov. 1) a yearly dividend of one-twentieth of a share payable in Class A common to holders of both Class A and Class B common stocks. This stock dividend is equivalent to 5 per cent. per annum, making a total dividend, including a cash dividend, of 7 per cent.

There were outstanding in the hands of the public on June 26, 222,431 shares of the Class A common and 200,000 shares of Class B common, a total of 422,431 shares. There has been an increase of 20,150 shares of Class A common stock since Jan. 1, partly due to conversion of a large amount of the 6½ per cent. series prior preferred stock of the United Light & Railways Company of Delaware, of which $5,000,000 face amount was outstanding as of Jan. 1, 1925.

Gross Exceeds $34,000,000.

The company's earnings statement, made public yesterday, shows gross earnings from all sources, $34,094,105; net earnings after operating expenses and taxes, $13,532,067; balance after interest on bonds and notes of subsidiary companies due the public, $10,549,067; gross income available to the United Light and Power Company after dividends on preferred stocks of subsidiaries, &c., $8,040,749; net income before United Light and Power dividends, $5,-340,926; surplus after preferred dividends of United Light and Power, $4,-287,484.

The direct gross revenue of the United Light and Power Company, exclusive of Continental Gas and Electric Corporation, exceed $13,250,000 additional.

Business conditions in the territory served by the company and its subsidiaries are described by Mr. Hulswit as satisfactory and improving. The company, he adds, has every prospect of continued good results in both gross and net revenues.

1925 ORDERS LIGHT FOR RAIL EQUIPMENT

Car and Locomotive Business Low Compared With Same Period of 1924.

Orders for railroad equipment placed so far this month total 762 freight cars, 31 passenger cars and 23 locomotives. These figures include only purchases by domestic roads and industrial corporations. There were export orders for 27 engines placed with the Baldwin Locomotive Works.

Since the first of the year domestic equipment orders reported by The Railway Age include 35,608 freight cars, 462 passenger cars and 340 locomotives. In the first six months of 1924 there were 71,242 freight cars and 822 passenger cars and 701 locomotives ordered for domestic use.

Baldwin received more than half of the locomotive business placed. This is a sharp contrast with the early part of 1924, when the American Locomotive Company took a large share of the orders.

Three companies, the American Car and Foundry, the Pullman Car and Manufacturing and the Standard Steel Car, took the bulk of the freight car business. Of 35,608 domestic orders placed this year the American Car and Foundry took 7,196, Pullman took 7,250 and Standard 7,963.

While the buying of new equipment has been very light so far this year there has been a fair amount of repair work, which has helped the equipment manufacturers to tide over the lean period.

Lard Goes Lower in Chicago Market.

CHICAGO, June 28.—Liquidation has been on in the provision trade despite the advance of $1 in hog prices of late, but net losses on lard for the week are only 20 to 22½ cents. The make of lard is reduced and stocks are being cut down. Short ribs ar 5 to 10 cents lower than a week ago and bellies are unchanged to 5 cents higher.

Beneficial Loan Society Report.

The Beneficial Loan Society announced yesterday that the number of its licensed offices, operating under State Banking Departments in many States, was 80, compared with 17 in 1919 and 6 in 1915. The society lent $13,368,675 in 1924, compared with $2,857,922 in 1919 and $264,319 in 1915. Loans for May were $1,179,111, against $1,138,219 last year.

RAIL MEN MARVEL AT LOREE'S NERVE

WOULD FOSTER OPTIMISM

Just the Same, Many Wonder If Move Is Real or Merely to Protect the D. & H.

Railroad men in the financial district are remarking upon the fact that, in a day and age when there is so much pessimism about the future of railroading, Leonor F. Loree, President of the Delaware & Hudson, has had the courage to go before the Interstate Commerce Commission with a proposition to spend $216,000,000 in the construction of a new railroad which he plans to join to existing minor lines to form "the premier railroad of the United States."

There has been so much talk of the ruinous effect of motor bus and Panama Canal competition on the earning power of the steam carriers, of the demands by railway labor, of the necessity for the roads spending millions in electrification, and even of a suggestion that restrictions were driving the railroads into Government ownership, that many observers consider Mr. Loree's step worth while simply from the standpoint of fostering optimism.

Mr. Loree's plan for a new railroad is considered the crowning act in a career filled with audacious deeds. He has usually played a lone hand in his efforts and has made it a point to keep very quiet about what he has in mind. During many a dull season in railroading he has startled the financial world in much the same way, though in less degree, than he did recently with his consolidation scheme.

See Loree Playing Deep Game.

Those who have directed their attention to the features of this plan have reached divergent conclusions. One group, composed of many railroad and banking veterans, believes the Delaware & Hudson head to be playing a game of railroad strategy. They point out that when the word was quietly passed from the Interstate Commerce Commission to the trunk line heads that the commission was in a receptive mood for consolidation suggestions no move was made to make room for Mr. Loree at the council table. None of the minor line executives, in fact, was consulted when Daniel Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio, Samuel Rea of the Pennsylvania, Patrick Crowley of the New York Central and the Van Sweringen brothers of the Nickel Plate outlined the "four system plan" for the consolidation of all railroads east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio.

Mr. Rea of the Pennsylvania withdrew from this conference, dissatisfied, as he said, because the Pennsylvania had been considered "a complete system" and slight provision made for linking short lines to it. He prepared an independent statement for the commission in which he set forth some very definite additions his road should have to make it a successful competitor of the three other great trunk lines contemplated by the "four system" plan.

Mr. Loree, however, who was the outstanding railroad executive outside of the trunk line field, declared the whole proceeding an "outrage" and immediately set to work to undo what the others had done. He declared war silently and began the campaign of getting together a new railroad by picking what might have been a choice subsidiary from the New York Central, another from the B. & O. and still another from the Nickel Plate.

When his consolidation plan was ready he did not make it public, but showed it only to a few friends pledged to secrecy. Then he set about convincing the railway world that he was doing more than bluffing. He proposed to lease the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh, which had been eyed greedily by both the New York Central and the Baltimore & Ohio. His terms were such for the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh that they could not be refused. He offered to assume all funded debt and pay the common and preferred stockholders 6 per cent. on holdings which have not paid that much since 1917. Now he is said to be angling for the Lehigh Valley.

May Be Seeking D. & H. Safety.

In spite of his apparent seriousness, however, many railroad men say that Mr. Loree is not seeking the Presidency of the gigantic railroad his plan outlines, but hopes by his interference in trunk line agreements to insure the safety of the Delaware & Hudson and prevent it from being attached to a major system. He believes, they say, that the Delaware & Hudson as well as the Lehigh Valley, Lackawanna and others should occupy an independent position in the East, regardless of what consolidation plans are consummated.

The other group asserts that Mr. Loree's ambitions do extend to the leadership of a trunk line and that his plan presents many traffic and financial features that would make his proposed "premier railroad" one to be reckoned with by the larger lines. They say that it would produce an enormous amount of lucrative traffic of its own and would be the shortest distance between many of the points it would serve.

The nine roads which Mr. Loree seeks to join into a fifth Eastern system include four soft coal carriers, the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh, the Wheeling & Lake Erie, the Pittsburgh & West Virginia and the Western Maryland. The Wabash gives the proposed system true trunk line character and also makes it a competitor of the New York Central, B. & O. and Pennsylvania for fast freight traffic. The Ann Arbor, which was recently purchased by the Wabash, would give the system a feeder in the Michigan peninsula and connect over the entire Eastern length of the country and beyond the other Eastern trunk lines into Kansas City. The Kansas City terminal also makes possible a tie-up with the Kansas City Southern, of which Mr. Loree is Chairman of the Board, and the Missouri, Kansas & Texas, in which he is a director, and in which the Kansas City Southern recently acquired a 25 per cent. interest.

Considering the possible volume of business of the proposed Loree road, railroad men have found that the combined operating mileage would be larger than that of any existing road and with a large dormant capacity for handling business unutilized under present conditions, because of the shorter length of haul. In general, they have come to the decision that from a financial point of view the new road should command the attention not only of railroad men but of the public at large.

In conclusion it may be said that the interest of the financial district will be centred upon the next move by Mr. Loree in the hope that it will disclose whether he is vitally concerned in consummating his unification plan or whether his interest is confined simply to the welfare of the road whose destinies he is directing.

Hungary Expects Big Wheat Crop.

BUDAPEST, June 23 (AP).—Official estimates of the wheat crop for the current year place the yield at 15,000,000 quintals, as compared with 14,000,000 last year. The rye crop will be 6,700,000 quintals as compared with 5,600,000 last year. (A quintal is about 100 pounds.) The Southern and Western parts of the country have had much rain and hail, while the Eastern portion has been subject to drought.

RADIO TRADE ENTERS WEEDING OUT STAGE

RAPID GROWTH OF INDUSTRY

Sales Go From $2,000,000 in 1920 to $300,000,000 in 1924—2,500,000 Sets Used in Country.

Like all new industries, the radio business is passing through the first stages of the "weeding out," the usual happening with an industry whose growth is for the time being abnormal owing to the enthusiastic public reception of its products. About twenty-five companies were born in New York in the last twelve months, while the "radio fever" was at its height, but whether they and others formed previously will all survive a year hence is said to appear from recent indications as improbable.

Wall Street a few months ago was witnessing a radio stock a day, and with each new stock offered to the public there was reared a new company engaged in the manufacture and sale of receiving sets. It is said now that the public, being equally receptive regarding radio company stocks, probably got more than they wanted.

What has been true of the Eastern companies in this connection has also been true of the companies established in Western territory. In New York the public is reported to have absorbed approximately 5,000,000 new shares of radio stock offered in the last year, and present quotations show a loss from the original prices of close to $100,000,000. A more or less similar situation is said to have characterized the stock values of the Mid-Western and Western radio companies. Overproduction, followed by more cautious buying on the part of the public, is said to have astonished many promoters of new companies, and caused widely advertised sales of receiving sets at prices sometimes at half or less of the price prevailing a few months ago.

There is a disposition in the trade at present to get sold out before the dull summer period arrives. It is estimated that 750,000 to 1,000,000 sets have been offered at greatly reduced prices in what is referred to as the New York and New Jersey districts alone. Of these, it is said that 500,000 or more have been bought by the public at the cut sale prices.

The so-called "weeding out" is becoming more manifest as the public's demand for receiving sets slackens. At the same time some companies, whose merchandise has established them on a relatively permanent basis, are said to be coming through in good shape. Some promoters are being eliminated altogether, with the "mushroom" companies they have been sponsoring. Other companies are undergoing reorganization with a view to stabilizing their sales and business and retaining their places in the industry.

On Jan. 1, 1920, it was estimated that there were only 5,000 receiving sets in the United States, these largely in the hands of experts, and sales annually up to that time of receiving sets and parts did not exceed $2,000,000 a year. In 1921 sales showed an increase of 150 per cent. In 1922 the public enthusiasm began to assume large proportions and sales were $60,000,000. Sales for 1923 totaled $120,000,000, and the total for 1924 was between $300,000,000 and $350,000,000. Estimates of sales for this year put the total at $450,000,000.

The end of last year found approximately 2,500,000 radio receiving sets in use in the United States, against 12,000,000 automobiles and 9,000,000 phonographs. These figures undoubtedly, it is said, offer an excellent idea of what possibilities there are for the extension of the radio in the country. Price cuts, with unfounded rumors in regard to new invention possibilities, have had something to do with restricting sales so far this year, according to those in the industry. Beyond this, however, is a somewhat natural disposition of the public to lose some of its enthusiasm.

It was pointed out that the field of greatest potentiality for the industry may soon lie in the strictly intercommunicative phase of radio telegraphy. Meanwhile, the present halt in abnormal sales activities is being utilized for consolidating the positions of the various manufacturing companies and stabilizing the trade, so that it will be ready when the busy season opens in the Fall.

One radio manufacturer recently remarked that if companies owning patents wanted to enforce their rights there would be thousands of infringement cases cluttering the courts throughout the world. The patent matter constitutes another unsettling phase in the industry. It is believed, however, that the existing litigation over patents will soon be settled and the patents so allocated as to benefit the industry as a whole, although it has been suggested that many such patents probably will run out or expire before they can be adjudicated.

Despite its troubles, common to a new and lusty industry with an unquestionably interesting future ahead, there is declared to be abundant room for expansion in manufacturing and sales activities.

RAILROADS TO HOLD A SAFETY CONTEST

As a means of bringing about greater safety to trainmen as well as a reduction in the claims resulting from damages to freight while in transit, a contest is to be conducted by the railroads in the Southern and South Atlantic States to determine which terminal can bring about the greatest decrease in damaged freight and railroad equipment during July. The carriers consider that in addition to the benefit derived from less damage to freight shipments, the contest should bring a saving of many thousands to them from the damage to equipment which results when draft gears between cars "go solid in impact" from careless handling.

The contest will be under a special committee on rough handling of the Southeastern roads, the Chairman of which is G. L. Candler, Assistant General Manager of the Central of Georgia Railway Company.

Three important yards on each of the larger roads in the South will be selected for these contests and the amount of damage to cars and contents by rough handling checked and recorded, the record to be based on the total number of cars handled in each of the yards named.

The cities in which the contest will be conducted follow:

On the Atlanta and West Point and Georgia Railroads—Montgomery, Ala., Augusta, Ga., and Atlanta, Ga.

On the Louisville & Nashville—Louisville, Ky., and Birmingham and Montgomery, Ala.

The Southern Railway also will participate, but so far the three cities where the contest will take place have not been designated.

In addition to the contest, the mechanical division of the American Railway Association has also taken steps to bring about further public safety, and a reduction of loss and damage claims to freight shipments while in transit, due to the buffeting of cars, by providing an appropriation of $50,000 to be used to test draft gears on cars. Draft gears are placed just back of the couplers to absorb the shock when a train starts or stops. As the result of these tests the mechanical division of the American Railway Association hopes to prescribe a standard of efficiency for draft gears to restrict the use of those that fail to meet such a standard.

RAIL RATES AFFECT CORN, OATS LITTLE

Other economic conditions were more important than freight rates in affecting the prices paid to the farmer for corn and oats during the twenty-month period from August, 1923, to March, 1925, according to a survey just completed by the Bureau of Railway Economics.

The results of the survey, according to the bureau, indicate (1) that farm prices of corn and oats fluctuated widely during the whole period, (2) that freight rates were practically stationary throughout the same period, (3) that fluctuations occurred between different kinds and grades, (4) that the various fluctuations were many times the freight rates to representative markets, (5) that since freight rates were practically stationary they were not responsible for the wide fluctuations in prices, whether these fluctuations were up or down.

The study as a whole is based upon prices at 77 points of origin for corn and 87 origin points for oats. Altogether 288 movements for corn and 293 for oats were covered.

"While freight rates during the entire period remained stationary, between the stated points of origin and destination, prices on identical kinds and grades of corn and oats show a very wide fluctuation, often amounting to several times the freight rates to the different markets. For example, the prices paid the farmer for No. 2 yellow corn at Churdan, Iowa, fluctuated from 60 cents to $1.19, or 59 cents a bushel. This spread of 59 cents was almost nine times the freight rate to Council Bluffs, Iowa, and more than five times the freight rate to Chicago. At Bellevue, Ohio, prices paid the farmer for No. 1 yellow corn fluctuated from 54 cents to $1.38, or 74 cents a bushel. This spread is equal to almost eight times the freight rates to the five representative markets shown. Similar examples may be drawn from the second table and chart covering oats, where the spread in prices ranged from two to almost twelve times the freight rates to representative markets.

"As the freight rates remained practically stationary during the entire period, they could not have been responsible for these fluctuations in prices. It therefore follows that economic factors other than freight rates, have a determining influence on the returns to the farmers for these products."

8 BILLIONS A YEAR SPENT FOR AUTOS

17,500,000 CARS IN USE

The importance which the automobile has assumed among the country's industries, and the extent to which it has become a part of the daily life, is contained in a report by the American Committee on Highway Transport which has been submitted to the Third Biennial Conference of the International Chamber of Commerce now in session at Brussels. The report is designed to furnish the International Chamber a picture of the development of automotive power in the United States, with the thought that it will inspire a greater appreciation among Europeans of the importance of motor transportation.

The report set forth that $8,000,000,000 is now spent annually by Americans in the purchase and maintenance of automobiles. Two billion go for new cars and the remainder for accessories, gasoline, tires, repairs and garage items. The last available figures for the number of passenger cars and trucks in use give a total of 17,500,000, or one to every seven inhabitants, according to the committee. Sufficient in case of a national picnic to give everybody a ride.

"Great changes in marketing and distributing, it is set forth, have been brought about by the use of the motor car. In Indianapolis and St. Paul more than 90 per cent. of the milk is hauled directly from the producer to the city distributer by motor truck.

"The farmer possessing motor equipment, it is declared, has quadrupled the economic range of his choice of markets, enabling him to take advantage of more favorable prices at a greater distance.

"The employment of hundreds of thousands in the automobile and allied industries, the growth of the tourist business, the building of good roads all over the country and the development of suburban home centres are other factors cited as resulting from the development of the motor car.

Value to the Railways.

The report says:

"Obviously it is as a unit of transportation that the motor passenger vehicle and the motor truck assume their greatest importance. One of the lessons that Americans have learned, after some bitter experience, is that the transportation problem is of a dual nature; its major or truck line functions and its minor or local distribution functions. The tying-in of individual transportation to water, steam and electric railway systems presents a major problem, since no one form of transportation can ever reach its greatest state of usefulness to the community unless all other agents are duly weighted. Out of the welter of conflicting interests and active opposition there is developing in the United States a definite understanding of the relation between motor and other transportation, and we are now able to avoid many of the losses and the conflicts in which railways and motors previously competed for service for which they were economically unfitted.

"We have realized the fact that the main railway trunk lines can carry a load much greater than they at present handle. It is as a feeder, a supplement to the main lines of railway transportation, that the motor truck and motor passenger vehicle exercise their greatest usefulness. It is probable that, in spite of the fear on the part of the railways that competition with motor transportation would reduce their traffic and earnings, the loss of certain local traffic has been more than offset by the new traffic created through motor feeders reaching into territory hitherto unavailable to the railway territory, in some cases not previously under cultivation because lacking in transportation facilities. And certainly the railroads have derived much new traffic from the direct movement of automobile parts, finished automobiles, petroleum and road materials."

Mistakes at the Outset.

The report adds that many mistakes have been made in the development of motor transportation. The functions it could best serve, it is explained, were not fully understood at the outset and it has taken much time and money to rectify some of the errors. Inferior highways have been made to serve where the cost of maintenance was uneconomically high and traffic justified their replacement with better types.

"Motor vehicles," the report concludes, "have been sold by overenthusiastic manufacturers or dealers where their use was not economically justified or where a different type was warranted. There has been destructive and in some cases disastrous competition between the motor vehicle and the older established forms of transportation. But as the development has proceeded it has become evident that motor transportation is a utility which can render valuable service, not alone in the definite additions which it makes to the national wealth, but to the more far-reaching effect which it has on the social structure and the standards of living and nationalism.

"The motor car has performed a significant function in eliminating sectional differences and the manifold uses of modern highway transportation are welding the nation into a homogeneous whole. The development of motor transportation which has taken place in the United States will inevitably come in other countries."

ST. PAUL'S LOSS LAID TO THE GOVERNMENT

ELECTRIFICATION A BENEFIT

Reorganization Plan Opponents Hear Panama Canal Also Was Factor in Failure.

The investment house of Roosevelt & Son, which declared opposition to the reorganization plan of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway when the plan was announced by the bankers of the road, is making public today the report of an investigation of the financial structure of the line, prepared for them by T. A. Hamilton, formerly operating Vice President of the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Company.

The report, compiled from data furnished by the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Bureau of Railway Economics, and the annual reports of the steam carriers, places responsibility for the failure of the St. Paul to meet its financial obligations upon the rates allowed the road by the Government rather than upon the contributory causes advanced by the reorganization managers.

The reorganization managers concurred in the statement of the management of the road and the firm of engineers employed to survey its physical and financial status, that the Panama Canal had contributed to the St. Paul distress. Regarding this statement the report asserts: "Since the first full year of operation of the Panama Canal, viz., 1915, the freight traffic density of the St. Paul has increased 23 per cent. and the tonnage of forest products handled by the road has increased 84 per cent."

Traffic Maintained.

"The St. Paul has not lost traffic," it is added, "since the days when it was prosperous. Since the Puget Sound extension was taken into system operations in 1913, freight traffic has increased from 8,570,000,000 tons hauled one mile to 11,064,765,000 in 1924. * * * Of course the mileage of the road has been increased, but the volume of freight traffic has increased even more, as is evidenced by an increase in density of 12 per cent. since the Puget Sound extension was taken over for operation. In fact, since putting the new mileage into operation the St. Paul has fared much better than its principal competitors, the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern, the traffic density of both these lines showing a slight decrease in 1924 as compared with 1913."

Taking up the contention that the electrification of about 640 miles of the St. Paul lines was one of the causes which led to its failure, the report declares that electrification has not been financially detrimental but advantageous. The electrification only cost $24,000,000, it is said, of which the Government spent one-half during the period of federal control, to put one-third of the mileage under electric power, and the management the other half to electrify the remaining two-thirds.

The report concludes with a plea for higher rates in Northwestern territory saying: "It is plainly apparent that these Northwestern carriers have lacked an increase in freight rates comparable to that afforded carriers in other sections of the United States, to offset at least in some measure the large increases which have taken place in wage scales, material costs and taxes since 1909; and in this we find the real reason for the decline in the financial strength of these three Northwestern roads (Great Northern, Northern Pacific and St. Paul) which formerly were among the strongest in the United States.

Receivership Explained.

"The reason why the Northwestern situation has reached the stage of receivership in the case of the St. Paul is because of the very fact that it surpassed all the other Northwestern roads in the amount of additional investment in plant devoted to the public service during this confiscatory period. It was forced to borrow large sums for this purpose. The public has the benefit of this increased service and increased efficiency, but the road is not allowed to earn even simple interest on the investment, not to mention a reward for the risks involved. Since 1906 the stockholders bought over $100,000,000 stock and $80,000,000 bonds, and the road sold over $200,000,000 bonds in addition. Now, in spite of the doubling of traffic and doubling of efficiency, those investors are threatened with a drastic reorganization based upon freight rates which the receivers of the St. Paul, joining with sixty-six other Western carriers in a petition for relief now pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission, have declared 'were and are confiscatory.'"

Work Begun on Japan's Great Dam.

Preliminary work on the proposed Otaki Dam on the Kiso River, Japan, which will be the largest dam in Japan and one of the highest in the world, has been started according to cable advices. The dam is being built for the Great Consolidated Electric Power Company, known as the Daido Company, and will be two and one-half times the size of the Kiso No. 6 dam of the Daido Company, completed last December out of the proceeds of the $15,000,000 Daido bond issue which was offered here by a banking syndicate headed by Dillon, Read & Co.

FIREPROOFERS PUT BRAKES ON BUILDING

FLOOR ARCH LAYERS QUIT

Building material manufacturers and distributers were looking with some alarm at the close of the week upon the situation that has developed between the journeymen plasterers and fireproofers, writes Allen E. Beals in the current Dow Service Daily Building Reports.

By itself the disturbance would have little effect upon the building material, appliance and equipment market in general, except perhaps momentarily, but it so happens that a regulation exists whereby in each steel skeleton building under course of erection the floor arch setters must never be less than three floors above the bricklayers.

This rule was designed to protect the operative bricklayers and other workers from danger of building materials falling upon them from what might otherwise be vast labyrinths of I-beams, girders, columns, &c., towering high above them. In an accident three concrete floors would be expected to break the fall of almost any object used on the job.

Under the operation of this requirement, when jurisdictional disputes arose between the plasterers and the cement workers recently the matter was taken to arbitration and, being awarded an adverse decision, the fireproofers, or cement workers, ceased work. When that happened the bricklayers upon reaching a point in the walls three stories below where the cement floor arches were laid also had to stop work.

That stopped deliveries of masons' supplies to the "struck" building operations, and one by one other sub-contractors had to withdraw their men until it looked to some as though the entire section of the building construction industry of New York City catering to fireproof construction faced a protracted tie-up.

It was agreed to arbitrate the differences, but, not approving the decision, the fireproofers withdrew from their jobs. In protest against this action, members of the fireproofers' union bearing special red membership cards drew to their side members of the original union, thus at once supporting the principle of arbitration and, incidentally, making it possible for certain of the building jobs to proceed. It was said that about 75 per cent. of the fireproofing trade was idle at the close of the week.

Meanwhile, the fifty-eight bargeloads of brick awaiting discharge at dealers' docks around the city on June 19 had increased to seventy-three on June 26, and the new delivered-on-the-job price of $18 to $20 for Hudson and Raritan hards announced last week held firm. The situation regarding strikes and labor difficulties in the Hudson River brick manufacturing district has been adjusted, but the manufacturers were not able to accomplish this until they restored the wage scale attained by the men in the closing months of the 1924 season. In the opinion of some, this takes away normal chances for cheaper brick this year.

With the passing of the first half of the year, speculation as to what the next half will bring forth is rampant or cautious, depending upon what phase of the building industry is uppermost in mind.

Building material manufacturers tell of low stocks and great demand almost everywhere, but complain that they cannot get their costs down below last year's levels. The first half of 1925 will probably turn the decrease from the first quarter's national construction totals of 10.3 per cent. into a net gain of approximately 7 per cent.

New York City's plan filings up to June 15 totaled 22,406, as compared with 33,990 in the same period last year. The estimated value of this construction shows $378,537,000 for 1925, as compared with $500,426,000 for the same period in 1924. Bradstreet's for May, however, credits the country with a 16 per cent. increase over the same month in 1924.

Building financiers have plenty of money to place on well-secured building construction projects, but they foresee at the same time a tendency that is destined to become more pronounced as the year wanes in the matter of restraining indiscriminate housing speculation.

Commercial speculation is now having its fling. Following it next year will be a continuation of the institutional and industrial construction development which is just now emerging from the war-time depression. That which is progressing at this time was projected last year. So it evidently is to be that the vast quantity of construction of these increasingly dominant types will be the plan filings and permits issued in the latter half of this year and the fore part of 1926, by which time wage scales will have been agreed upon.

BUYS where Improvements are Already Made

SPECIAL SALE NEXT 5 DAYS

Every real estate investor must realize that fully improved property is a far BETTER INVESTMENT than unimproved property, where you must do the improving yourself, thereby wiping out the profits YOU would otherwise get. YOU want beautiful scenery, bathing, fishing, splendid train service, of course. In addition you want conveniences, sanitary features and those many improvements which make all the difference in the world between the modern home and the backwoods cabin.

Whether investing for a quick profit or a permanent home, the same sound principles of good business judgment are essential. The same reasons which impel YOU to buy make others want to buy. Thus LAND WISELY BOUGHT must always be in demand, and the faster the community is growing the greater will be the RESALE VALUE. So why not BUY IMPROVED LOTS when you can buy at practically the SAME PRICE AS FOR UNIMPROVED LOTS? Too much money spent after you buy will eat up your profits as fast as they are made.

$5 EASY TERMS

Just think of buying lots on such easy terms in a town only 38 minutes from New York, where last year 385 new houses were built and close to 500 will be built this year. Just think of buying one of these choice locations only 4 blocks from the station.

BUILDING MATERIAL. | BUILDING MATERIAL. | BUILDING MATERIAL.

Get the facts about Face Brick before you build. The savings in repairs, maintenance and depreciation effected by this permanent, enduring material will amount to large sums as the years pass, far overbalancing the slight extra initial cost. Investigate actual figures presented in our "Hy-tex Brick" booklet.

Hy-tex

The Standard of Quality in Brick

IN building, as in any other investment, the best is always the cheapest in the end. Quality products always pay a dividend.

For more than fifty years the Hy-tex organization has been producing high-grade Face Brick, and marketing them at reasonable prices. The emphasis has been on quality, instead of on producing a brick to meet price competition.

Power and Protection

First, to prevent metal-to-metal contact, by maintaining a film of oil between moving parts. Second, to maintain a leak-proof seal between piston rings and the cylinder walls. Third, to resist the thinning-out process to which all oil under heat is subjected.

Socony Motor Oil meets them all.

Used in the proper grade, it presents the most effective metal-to-metal film. Its body and consistency effect the maximum leak-proof seal between piston and cylinder walls. It resists to a high degree the excessive heat of a motor, no matter what the pulling load. Insist upon Socony Motor Oil; resist spurious and cheap imitations sold at a price.

Chassis Lubrication

$38 Week

FOR MEN WITH $50-$60 TASTES

PROBABLY no establishment showed as many wonderful woolens as did we, this spring. An astonishing range of beautiful patterns, in an astonishing range of weaves.

Market prices for these qualities once were $50 to $60.

And now hundreds of these fabrics are down to last ends. We have put them all in a single collection, regardless of former prices. It is to be a great one-week disposal, at a real disposal price, $38, made to order.

The selection will surprise you. The values even more. Come before Saturday
